CITY GOES TO POLLS TODAY

WIRT HEARING OPENS TODAY; CAPITAL AGOG

Interest Great as in Morgan Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—The capital tonight was awaiting with almost breathless anticipation the revelations concerning the Roosevelt "brains trust" which Dr. William A. Wirt will make tomorrow before a select committee of the house of representatives.

While controversy over scope of his testimony continued to rage in both houses of congress, the Gary, Ind., educator arrived quietly in town and went at once into seclusion at a local hotel.

Until he takes the stand tomorrow, friends said, he will make no statement of any kind.

All Seek Reserved Seats.

Certainly not since J. P. Morgan appeared in person before a senate committee months ago has the capital—usually blasé as far as congressional hearings are concerned—been so keenly interested. Members of the cabinet, their wives, and representatives of every other stratum of officialdom were clamoring for reserved seats at the proceedings.

Whatever the outcome of Dr. Wirt's testimony, it was agreed that the session tomorrow will be one of the best shows Capitol hill has seen in many a day. The proceedings, Chairman A. L. Bulwinkle [Dem., N. C.] announced, will be broadcast over the radio, and loud speakers will be installed so that all the audience can hear distinctly every word. Arrangements were being completed for motion pictures of the session.

Fight Over Coverage.

As a prelude to the actual proceedings, Republicans and Democrats waged a pitched battle over the lengths to which the congressional investigators are to go. It was definitly established that if the Democrats have their way Dr. Wirt will be denied the traditional right of congressional witnesses to read a prepared statement from the stand.

It was established with equal certainty, however, that the two Republican members of the investigating committee will make a strenuous effort to accord Dr. Wirt every opportunity to enlarge his charges against the "brain trust."

Representative Harold McGugin of Kansas, a militant Republican foe of the administration radicals and a member of the committee, announced that he will try to force the Democratic majority of the committee into calling Gen. William I. Westervelt of Chicago to testify regarding his association with the "brain trust" during his recent service as chief of processing and marketing in the agricultural adjustment administration. Gen. Westervelt, an executive of Sears-Roebuck, was squeezed out of the AAA by the "young liberals" at the same time former Farm Administrator George N. Peek was forced to resign.

Will Use Caucus Rooms.

The vaulted caucus room in the new house office building was deliberately chosen for the Wirt hearing because it is the largest chamber on Capitol hill. But it appeared that its spaciousness will fall far short of accommodations for the crowd which is expected to turn out to hear Dr. Wirt name the "brain trusters" who told him President Roosevelt is "only the Kerensky of this revolution."

Gen. Westervelt, according to McGugin, has advised him that he is ready and willing to appear before the committee with sensational disclosures regarding the activities of certain members of the so-called "young liberal" group. While serving under Mr. Peek in the AAA, Gen. Westervelt came into daily and direct contact with Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture; Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to Secretary Wallace; Jerome Frank, AAA general counsel, and other members of the "brain trust."

Says He Won't Testify.

Messages from Chicago, however, said that Gen. Westervelt had no intention of testifying, declaring he had no knowledge of any conditions pertinent to the present inquiry.

McGugin was not sanguine, anyway, that the committee will agree to hear Gen. Westervelt. The three Democratic members of the committee, he pointed out, have shown a disposition to stifle charges against administration radicals and he feared they would vote down a motion to call the former AAA official who was ousted because his conservatism conflicted with the theories of Wallace, Tugwell, Frank, and others.

Already the Democratic majority on the investigating committee has drastically restricted the scope of Dr.

COURT ORDERS 12 STORIES OF HOTEL REBUILT

Ruling Upholds City Zoning Ordinance.

Upholding the validity of the Chicago zoning ordinance, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals handed down a decision yesterday which means in effect that the rear section of the top twelve stories of the 40 East Oak street apartment hotel must be dismantled and reconstructed. The building is 20 stories high. It was erected at a cost of $1,300,000.

The court ordered the issuance of a mandatory injunction to compel the hotel's owners to conform to the zoning ordinance, which calls for a setback of one foot for each nine feet of construction above the eighth story level.

Six Years of Litigation.

The ruling came after six years of state and federal court litigation begun by the owners of two smaller apartment buildings which front on Bellevue place and are separated by an alley from the Oak street hotel.

The owners of these properties are Mrs. Maud W. Welton, 45 Bellevue place, who owns the building at 43-45 Bellevue; and Mrs. Rebecca S. Chandler of Winnetka, who owns the building at 33 Bellevue. Mrs. Welton's husband is Arthur D. Welton, advertising man. Mrs. Chandler is the wife of Buckingham Chandler, real estate operator.

The decision of the federal Court of Appeals reversed a ruling of former Judge George A. Carpenter of the United States District court. The decision was written by Judge Evan A. Evans and concurred in by Judges Will M. Sparks and Louis FitzHenry.

Zoning Ordinance Upheld.

In its ruling the Appeals court held that the payment of monetary damages to the plaintiffs by the owners of the Oak street apartment hotel would not be sufficient. The court said:

"In the fight for better living conditions in large cities, in the contest for more light and air, more health and comfort—the scales are not well balanced if dividends to the individuals outweigh health and happiness to the community.

"Financial relief to appellants [Mrs. Welton and Mrs. Chandler] is not the only factor in weighing equities. There is involved that immeasurable but nevertheless vital element of respect for and compliance with the health ordinance of the city. The surest way to stop the erection of high buildings in defiance of zoning ordinances is to remove all possibility of gain to those who build illegally."

Battle Began in 1928.

The legal battle began in March of 1928, when application for a building permit was made by the 40 East Oak Street Building corporation. The application was first denied, but was later granted by the city zoning board of appeals.

At that time Mrs. Welton and Mrs. Chandler protested the issuance of the permit. Represented by the law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, they carried their fight for an injunction to the Superior court of Cook county, and later to the Illinois Supreme court.

The Supreme court ruled in their favor.

In the meantime the hotel had been constructed and occupied. As the Appeals court phrased it in yesterday's decision:

"Although erected in defiance of law, it was completed. More important to the promoters was the fact that they had sold the stock of the corporation and its bonds. Their profits had been secured, and the venture was ready for a court of bankruptcy or an equity court receivership. They defiantly and somewhat tauntingly asked their adversary: 'What can you do about it?'."

The building did go into federal receivership, the American National Bank and Trust company being named as receiver by Federal Judge Charles A. Woodward. This gave the opportunity to carry the injunction case into the federal courts.

Carried to Appeals Court.

Judge Carpenter's decision followed and the matter was then carried to the Court of Appeals. In its decision the court took cognizance of the bondholders' protest that they were innocent sufferers. The court, however, took this position:

"The stockholders [of the building corporation] are liable for the action of the officers and directors whom they selected. The bondholders, had they investigated, would have discovered the frailty of their mortgagor's rights."

Upon hearing of the decision Walter H. Eckert, attorney for the receiver, declared that he would immediately ask a rehearing. Failing that, he said, he would try to carry the case to the United States Supreme court.

Alarm Grows for Safety of Missing Child

A search of alleys, basements, and other places over an area of a square mile in the Shakespeare avenue police district failed yesterday to uncover any clews to the whereabouts of Dorette Zietlow, 3½ years old. The child was lured away Sunday from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Dora Witte, 1942 North Central Park avenue, by a young man who promised her a nickel.

The failure of the search and the absence of any other traces of the missing child intensified the alarm felt for her safety. Throughout the day police, working on orders of Acting Capt. Charles Essig searched the vicinity of the Witte home. Aided by neighbors they extended the search for blocks in all directions, and questioned scores of people. No one was found who had seen Dorette or the youth who enticed her away.

Description of Kidnaper.

The best information police have as to the apparent kidnaper is the description given by Dorette's sister, Lois, 12 years old, and her brother, Kenneth, 4, but even there a discrepancy developed, for his age was given as 13 and 15 years. Dorette was playing with Lois and Kenneth when he coaxed her away.

Late yesterday Dorette's father, George Zietlow, 3246 North Orange street, Elmwood Park, appeared voluntarily at the police station for questioning. He did not know of his youngster's disappearance until he had read of it in the newspapers, he said. Earlier police had been ordered to find him on the theory he might be able to help in the investigation. He denied he knew where Dorette was, and police later expressed themselves satisfied with the truth of his story.

Mother in State Hospital.

Zietlow has been keeping his three children with their grandmother, Mrs. Witte, paying what money he could for their support. His wife, Gertrude, the children's mother, is now an inmate in the Chicago State hospital at Dunning.

SHOWERS BRING END TO YEAR'S WARMEST WEATHER IN CHICAGO

Thundershowers brought an end last night to Chicago's premature summer weather. The prediction for today is cloudy and much colder, with a minimum temperature of 40 degrees or perhaps lower. There will be rising temperatures tomorrow, however.

Yesterday was the warmest day of the year, with a maximum reading of 74 degrees at 2:50 o'clock. This was a rise of 22 degrees in ten hours. The 74 mark was not a record, however, the high temperature for April 9 being registered in 1931 with 78 degrees.

The balmy weather of yesterday and Sunday attracted many thousands of men, women, and children outdoors. The Oak street beach promenade was crowded and a half dozen bathers appeared on the beach.

CONFESSION OF 3 SOLVES MYSTERY THEFTS OF DOGS

The mysterious theft of more than a score of valuable dogs in Hinsdale and surrounding communities, which had caused police to be besieged by pleas to find the missing animals, was solved last night with the arrest of three men who confessed the thefts. Eight pedigreed dogs were recovered and restored to their owners. Fourteen mongrels, also believed stolen, were found in possession of one of the thieves and were locked in the dog pound at Hinsdale.

The men arrested are Walter Reese, 21 years old, of Downers Grove; Harry Poss of Westmont, and Joseph Randall, also of Westmont. Reese was seized when police found him loitering in Hinsdale. He confessed, implicated the others, asserting that he stole the dogs, sold them to Poss, and that Randall kept them on his property until they could be sold to Chicago pet shops.

Four of the eight dogs recovered were located in a pet shop at 1900 North Cicero avenue and another on Milwaukee avenue, both the property of the same owner. Two more dogs were found in a Maxwell street apartment, one in a Halsted street pet shop, and another was located in Poss' home. The three men confessed stealing 12 dogs in Hinsdale and 15 in adjacent suburbs.

U.S. Envoy Dies at Fete Given by De Valera

BY HUGH CURRAN.

(Picture on Back Page.)

DUBLIN, April 9.—William Wallace McDowell of Butte, Mont., who became the American minister to the Irish Free State just two weeks ago, collapsed and died of a heart attack tonight at a state banquet given in his honor by President Eamon de Valera in Dublin castle. He was 67 years old.

Richard Washburn Child, who is studying European economic conditions for President Roosevelt; members of the Free State government and the diplomatic corps, and society leaders attended the banquet.

Collapses While Speaking.

Mr. McDowell was replying to congratulatory speeches when he collapsed. The minister had seemed to be in excellent health and cheerful spirits. He smiled as he started to respond to a toast by President De Valera. He was paying tribute to the achievements of Irish-Americans when he collapsed. He faltered and fell back into his chair.

De Valera, who was sitting at McDowell's left, and the papal nuncio, Msgr. Robinson, who was on the minister's right, sprang to their feet in an attempt to help him, but he was already dead.

Succeeded F. A. Sterling.

McDowell succeeded Frederick A. Sterling, who was transferred to Sofia, Bulgaria, as minister to the Free State. He arrived in Dublin March 20 and was greeted by De Valera. The minister presented his credentials directly to the Free State president on March 27 instead of to Gov. Gen. Donal Buckley, the representative of King George.

In some quarters at first his action was described as a "snub" to King George and the British government. However, an official announcement by the legation said a responsible official of the Free State government had told the legation that the presentation of credentials to the president rather than the governor general had been agreed to by the king after a discussion between Irish and British authorities.

McDowell's wife died in Chicago several months ago. They had no children.

Leading Montana Democrat.

Butte, Mont., April 9.—(AP)—William Wallace McDowell, 67, was named minister to Irish Free State last summer after having twice served Montana as lieutenant governor and the state house of representatives as its speaker for two terms.

A native of Trenton, Tenn., where he was born Jan. 22, 1867, he came to the Rocky mountain region about 35 years ago and became one of the Democratic party's leading counselors in Montana.

Jirka Guilty of Conspiracy in Jail Plot

Attorney Harold W. Jirka was found guilty last night by a jury in Judge Daniel P. Trude's Criminal court of conspiring to help a group of prisoners in an attempt to escape from the county jail on March 24. The verdict was returned shortly after 8 o'clock following three hours' deliberation by the jury and marked one of the shortest trials of its kind in recent years.

The attorney is a brother of Dr. Frank Jirka, state director of health, who is a son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak. He faces a sentence of one to five years in the penitentiary if his new trial motion is denied on Saturday. The jury fixed the maximum prison penalty under the law, but did not assess any part of a possible $2,000 fine.

According to the testimony of state witnesses, Attorney Jirka smuggled a revolver to a jail prisoner who was a leader in the plot after being promised a payment of $8,000. Two ballots were taken on the question of guilt and one ballot on punishment.

Courtney Orders Speed.

The speedy justice was the result of an order issued by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, who said the case was one of great importance to the public because it involved an attempt to aid desperate prisoners, some of them ex-convicts and others already under conviction, to escape and again prey on the citizens of the community.

The escape plot was discovered by Warden David Moneypenny and his assistants an hour before Francis [Mickey] O'Gara, an ex-convict who says he is a university graduate, was about to lead a group of eleven prisoners on a break for liberty. After several days of investigation the case was presented to the grand jury and indictments were returned against Jirka and ten others.

Judge Trude expedited the case by putting it at the head of his court call. The trial was started yesterday morning and within an hour a jury was selected.

O'Gara Is First Witness.

Assistant State's Attorneys Donoghue and Frank McGarrie immediately began presentation of the prosecution evidence. O'Gara was the first witness. He testified that he had hatched the escape plot because he faced a possible life imprisonment sentence under the habitual criminal act for a second robbery.

O'Gara said Jirka was counsel for Carl De Salvo, who was confined in the jail under a robbery sentence, and that he asked De Salvo to talk to Jirka about smuggling in a revolver. Jirka agreed, according to O'Gara, and passed the weapon to him on March 23 on the promise that $6,000 would be paid to him if the prisoners were able to raise the money after they were at liberty.

The prisoners, O'Gara said, made a rope out of torn bedsheets, and were ready for the break when a stool pigeon tipped off the warden. The prisoners were searched and the weapon found on O'Gara.

Corroborates O'Gara Story.

De Salvo, the second state witness, corroborated O'Gara's testimony. Two other prisoners in the escape plot also took the witness stand for the prosecution, and by 2 o'clock the state had concluded presentation of its evidence.

Jirka took the witness stand in his own behalf and denied the charges made by the prisoners. He said that De Salvo was angry with him because he had withdrawn as his attorney.

The jury began its deliberations soon after 5 p. m.

HEAVY RETURNS ARE PREDICTED IN BOTH PARTIES

Primary Facts

POLLS OPEN—6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

TO BE NOMINATED—Democratic and Republican candidates for two state offices, for congress, for general assembly, for county offices, and for Municipal court of Chicago.

TO BE ELECTED—State and county central committees and senatorial district committees of both parties.

CHANGE OF PARTY—Cook county election officials have ruled that the elector who voted in the 1932 primaries cannot change his party this year. In downstate counties generally shifting will be permitted.

LITTLE BALLOTS—Chicago and nine suburban precincts will vote on park consolidation. Twenty-three Chicago precincts and four suburban precincts will vote on local option.

TOTAL PRECINCTS—Illinois, 7,365; downstate, 3,710; Cook county, 3,655; Chicago, 3,152.

REGISTERED VOTE—Cook county, 1,682,967; Chicago, 1,396,151; country towns, 286,816. Voting by affidavit will be permitted in country towns outside the jurisdiction of the election board.

WEATHER—Cloudy and cooler.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Campaign managers for both Democrats and Republicans expressed certainty last night that the regular organization candidates in both parties will win by narrow margins, and those concerning only minor places, will win out in the Illinois state, county, and city primaries today.

Without qualification, the generals in the two separate but simultaneous wars over the nominations for the election of Nov. 6 asserted their opinions that this is an organization year. Neither party has had an issue within its ranks to cause splits similar to those of some former years. Only minorities with little organization behind them have attacked the regulars.

New Deal Chief Issue.

The leaders of both parties said that if there is any general issue characterizing both state and, in many instances, local battles it is the anomalous one of the New Deal, a defendant not really on trial until the fall election.

Republicans said that this subject alone has been accountable for something akin to a resurrection of their party, which was left almost in ruins by the landslides of 1930 and 1932.

On the other hand, spokesmen for the Democratic organization expressed pleasure that lack of difference of opinion on ordinary primary topics had made President Roosevelt, his policies, and his brain trust the center of today's test of voting strength between the parties.

Large Vote Is Forecast.

Forecasts that the vote will be large continued to emphasize this phase of the situation, but it also was pointed out here and there that the outcomes of many local battles in the state probably will be settled by local issues so that the results in those instances cannot be considered as reflecting the swing of sentiment on the Washington administration.

But in general the way the state divides on party lines will be construed by the nation as some indication of the attitude of Illinois toward the New Deal. The Democrats say the result will be favorable to the administration. The Republicans say the reverse.

The Races for Congress.

With no attraction such as the nominations for governor or for United States senator to stir the state as a whole, and with no real contests over the nominations for the two state offices open at this time—treasurer and superintendent of public instruction—the only office that has attracted statewide interest is that of congressman at large, for which two nominations are to be made by each party.

The analysts say that even the contests for these nominations have produced little activity because of an apparent certainty that the candidates with the strongest organization support will win. These candidates are Congressman Martin Brennan of Bloomington and Michael L. Igoe of Chicago on the Democratic side; and C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago and Milton D. Jones of Sangamon county on the Republican side.

Under these conditions scrutiny of the program has turned to its backing for the nominations for congress in the twenty-five districts of the state. Here also the results of the primaries are considered certain in many spots and the politically minded have confined their attention to a few districts where intraparty battles are under way.

At the top of this list stands the Tenth district. The spotlight fell upon it when Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior in President Roosevelt's cabinet, took a hand in a Republican fight by permitting to be read over the radio a letter he had written attacking Congressman James Simpson Jr.

Simpson is once more opposed by Ralph E. Church who ran against him unsuccessfully twice in 1932. Although Secretary Ickes did not write a public word in behalf of Church, the Simpson forces have pinned the Roosevelt label on him. They have shown that the Ickes forces in Winnetka, the secretary's home town, are with Church and that the minority organization following Newton Jenkins, who has been close to Ickes for years, are with Church.

Simpson's Final Appeal.

"I am appealing," said Simpson in radio talks yesterday, "not to the so-called intelligentsia, not to the advocates of the 'planned economy,' as a stepping stone to a regimented state, but to the overwhelming number of citizens in my district who believe in fair play and who believe in handing American principles and traditions down to the next generation unimpaired.

"I am sure they believe more in this than in becoming subjects to be experimented upon by the impractical 'brain trusters' and theorists who are so intent upon working out some economic doctrine that they are willing to deceive not only our President but even the American people themselves as to what are their true aims and objects."

The last words of Mr. Simpson's speech were these:

"If you believe I am standing for American principles, vote for me. If you are in favor of regimenting America and think the time has come to scrap our form of government and try another, support my opponent."

Nation's View of Outcome.

Whatever the outcome of this battle, the result probably will be construed by commentators throughout the country as for or against the NRA, the CWA, the PWA and the general array of alphabetical units at Washington. It will be taken as a vote of approval or disapproval among Republicans as to the Roosevelt.

In the field of local battles, the situation in Cook county is considered reflected accurately by the manner in which police returns — the advance figures collected from the precincts before the official returns are handed in late at night—are to be handled this year.

Meeting the wishes of the newspapers, the City News bureau will collect precinct returns by telephone on four Republican primary fights. There is no demand for early information concerning Democratic results. That is because the regulars are believed certain to win everything with such possible exceptions as a place or two on the ticket for county commissioner or for associate justice of the Municipal court. Those figures will wait until messengers can carry them in.

Four Hot G. O. P. Contests.

The four Republican contests on which telephone returns will be handled are those for the nominations for sherif, county judge, president of the county board and assessor. Experts agree that if the regular G. O. P. slate is smashed anywhere outside of the county board and Municipal court sections it will be by one or more independent candidates for these places.

The surge of strength recently shown by Patrick A. Roche in his race for sherif was said yesterday to have come to an end. It is now believed that the regular support for James P. Ringley may nearly equal the combined vote for Roche, Christian G. Kiessling and Kenneth Rouse.

In the same way the regulars showed new confidence that Municipal Judge Samuel Heller will defeat both his principal opponents, Municipal Judge John H. Lyle and Wiley W. Mills, for the county judgeship nomination, and that George F. Nixon, now a member of the board of tax appeals, will win easily over H. Wallace Caldwell, former city hall follower, for the nomination for presidency of the county board.

Moreland Reported on Top.

The Republican race for the county assessorship nomination is not considered close. Ald. James C. Moreland, it is said, will easily defeat William Jansen, the Jenkins candidate, but it was made the fourth office for telephone returns because no closer Republican contest was in sight.

Lively scrapping over ward committeeships continued up to last night. Michael L. Igoe denied authorship of a letter purporting to bear his signature which indorsed Sherif William D. Meyering for Democratic committeeman of the 8th ward.

In Country Towns

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS (DEMOCRATIC.)
[5 to Be Nominated.]

DANIEL P. BERGIN.
EMMETT McGRATH.
*HOMER J. BYRD.
WALTER A. ROONEY.

The asterisks [*] indicate the incumbents. There are twelve candidates seeking the five nominations.

POLLS OFFICIALS TO BE PAID WHEN THEY FINISH JOB

Judges and clerks of election in the precincts in Chicago and in the country towns that are under the jurisdiction of the board of election commissioners will be paid tonight after they finish counting the votes and deposit the tally sheets with the board. Payment will be made in County Treasurer McDonough's office on the first floor of the county building, which will be open throughout the night.

The election officials, five to each of the 3,291 precincts under the election board, or a total of 16,455, will receive $8 each for the day's work, a sum of $131,640. These officials have been paid for registration and revision days, but the owners of the various polling places, who haven't, will be paid $25 each for the three days, a total of approximately $80,000.

No announcement was made by the county officials as to the payment of the election judges and clerks in the 364 precincts in the county that are outside of the jurisdiction of the election board.

FARMER KILLS HIMSELF.

LOUGHRAN SUES DONOVAN; 11TH DISTRICT FIGHT

Another legal action growing out of the Democratic primary fight in the 11th congressional district opened yesterday when Attorney Francis J. Loughran filed a $100,000 suit for defamation of character against Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan. Loughran is opposing Donovan for a seat on the Democratic state central committee. Both men reside in Joliet.

Loughran's suit is based on a complaint filed recently with the Illinois Bar association, in which Loughran is alleged to have accepted $150 from a convict on the promise of getting him a parole from the Joliet penitentiary, then doing nothing to merit the fee. Loughran filed an answer to the complaint setting forth that he had visited his client at least four times, and had interceded twice with the state board of pardons and paroles. The client subsequently was paroled.

In his suit, filed in the Will county Circuit court at Joliet, Loughran charges that Donovan, George T. Scully of the parole board, and Joseph P. Burke, parole agent, had the complaint filed solely as a political move to embarrass his candidacy.

California Financial Chief Would Tax All Bachelors

Sacramento, Cal., April 9.—[Special.]—Rolland Vandegrift, state director of finance, favors taxing California bachelors $5 to $25 a year.

RULES CITIZENS MAY VOTE PARK BALLOT ALONE

Unnecessary to Declare Party Affiliations.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday ruled that voters who do not wish to declare their party affiliations in order to vote for party candidates on the primary ballots may still participate today in the city-wide park consolidation referendum, which is on a separate ballot. They may visit the polling places, he said, and vote only on the question of approving the Chicago park district act which provides for merging of the city's 22 park districts under a single board of five commissioners.

This proposition ballot is the first opportunity the voters have had to simplify the maze of overlapping governments in the city and county and thus reduce taxes. The one board of five commissioners, who would be appointed by the mayor, would supplant the now existing 22 boards with their 114 commissioners.

Restores Home Rule.

Approval of the consolidation act would eliminate the costs now involved in the election of 19 of these boards and their 95 commissioners. It would also restore home rule to the city by taking away from the governor the power of appointing commissioners of the west and Lincoln park boards and from the Circuit court judges the appointment of the south park commissioners.

Another advantage, it was pointed out, is that it will reduce the number of tax levying and tax spending bodies in the city from 27 to 5, thus resulting in further economies in the county tax offices in the fixing of tax rates and the spreading and collection of taxes. Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, State's Attorney Courtney, and other public officials, civic leaders, and civic and community organizations have indorsed the consolidation plan.

Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, an expert in municipal government, yesterday issued through the Chicago park district campaign committee a statement in favor of the merger.

Sees Greater Economy.

He said adoption of the parks act would result in better planning of park development and improvement; aid economy and efficiency; restore home rule to Chicago in its park affairs; remove political considerations from downstate and from the Circuit court judges; make it easier to keep track of the finances and affairs of one park district than of 22, and that it would be a step in the direction of a simple and responsible government.

The consolidation is being opposed by commissioners of several small park districts, who would be voted out of office if the merger wins. Their contention is that no administration improvements would result from the consolidation.

MERGE LEDGER, INQUIRER IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., April 9.—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight that "on Monday, April 16, the morning and Sunday Public ledger will be combined with the morning and Sunday Philadelphia Inquirer, the combined newspaper being published at the Inquirer plant."

The evening Public Ledger will continue to be published from the Ledger plant.

The Public Ledger has been in the morning newspaper field for 98 years, having been established in March, 1836.

George W. Childs became its editor and proprietor in 1864 and continued as such until 1894. It passed into other hands and Cyrus H. K. Curtis was the publisher from 1913 until he died in June, 1933.

DISMISSES PLEA AGAINST POLICE IN DEITCH'S RACE

Federal Judge Barnes yesterday dismissed a petition for an injunction to restrain Commissioner of Police Allman from interfering with the political workers of Samuel J. Deitch, a candidate for the Republican nomination to congress in the Sixth congressional district. In dismissing the petition, Judge Barnes ruled that no case of interference had been established.

Attorney Joseph R. Roach, who appeared for Deitch, also stated that the police had interfered with workers of William Parrillo, former assistant United States district attorney, who is a candidate for Republican committeeman in the 25th ward against James J. Savage, the present committeeman, who is a brother of School Trustee Savage. The petition was alleged by observers to have grown out of the hot fight between Parrillo and Savage.

4,181,600 BALLOTS ARE DISTRIBUTED; NO DISTURBANCES

The election board yesterday distributed 4,181,600 ballots for today's primary election without any disturbances being reported. Each truck carrying the ballots was manned by a uniformed policeman, two employés of the election board, a chauffeur and his helper. Lists of voters, who are to be challenged because they do not now live at addresses given for them on the poll books, also were delivered to a number of precincts. The names were a small percentage of 19,695 given to the board by a citizens' committee.

CONTRACT LET FOR EVANSTON RESERVOIR JOB

The city council of Evanston last night awarded a contract for the construction of the long sought five million gallon capacity reservoir to be erected at Lake and Lincoln streets in the suburb at a cost of $27,597. The job was given to the A. L. Jackson company, builders, 210 South Michigan avenue.

The action was taken following receipt of information that the federal public works administration, which is financing the project by a grant and loan, had sent a requisition to the Federal Reserve bank in Chicago advising that $60,000 be credited to the city of Evanston.

HUDSON PLANT REOPENS SOON; STRIKE SETTLED

Makers of Parts Back at Work Today.

Detroit, Mich., April 9.—[Special.]—Another threat of a shutdown of the automotive industry was averted tonight with the settlement of the strike at the plant of the Motor Products company. A plan proposed to the 4,600 strikers tonight was accepted by them and thus practically was assured the reopening tomorrow or next day of the factory of the Hudson Motor company, which had been closed today, letting out 15,000 men, because of the lack of parts which had been supplied by the former company.

The settlement at the Motor Products company plant followed unsuccessful efforts of the automobile labor board, appointed by President Roosevelt when the threat of an industry-wide strike of automotive workers was brought to him before he went on his vacation.

McGrady Takes Chair.

Dr. Leo Wolman, selected as neutral member of the board, took a walk tonight while Edward P. McGrady, assistant to Brig. Gen. Hugh Johnson, took the chair. Nicholas Kelley also left the conference that preceded McGrady's visit to the strikers. A settlement was accepted by the company and put before the strikers by McGrady. It was accepted. It calls for a 10 per cent increase in pay and arbitration of disputes over piece work pay rates. It also protects the seniority rights of the men who were on strike. The strike started over grievances of about 1,000 men. The union is an A. F. of L. affiliate.

The settlement followed a telephone call to Washington by McGrady, who asked the advice of Gen. Johnson, who later left the capital to join President Roosevelt on Vincent Astor's yacht. The statement of the Hudson Motor company issued when the plant was closed said the plant would stay closed until the company could obtain parts again from the Motor Products company or from some other source.

Terms of Settlement.

The terms of the agreement provide the employes of that concern will resume work tomorrow. It is therefore regarded as certain that the Hudson plant will reopen at once.

The head of the Hudson advertising department, William A. James, said:

"Hudson will swing into full production as soon as the Motor Products company is able to deliver parts."

A. L. Lott, vice president of Motor Products, said: "Government mediators presented the agreement with our consent."

The outlook this afternoon was threatening because at that time William Collins, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, had denounced the auto labor board for "too much mediation and too little action." About the same time there were rumors that shortage of parts might cause several other large manufacturers of automobiles to follow the lead of the Hudson Motor company. The strikers at the Motor Products company had sent a message of protest to President Roosevelt, ignoring the labor board created for the auto industry.

The 1,700 employes of the Campbell, Wyant & Cannon foundry at Muskegon, Mich., struck today. The concern makes castings for automobile builders. The 4,600 employes of the Nash Motor company still are on strike at Kenosha, Wis.

Another Strike Threatens.

The Mechanics Educational Society of America, an organization of tool and die makers, has voted to strike at midnight Thursday unless executives of jobbing plants meet their demands for a 20 per cent pay increase and 36 hour week.

Operators and jobbing plant members of the American Tool and Die manufacturers' association are to confer Wednesday with officials of the Mechanics Educational Society of America to discuss the problem.

The powers of the federal government to enforce the strike settlement have not been defined. The Mechanics Educational Society, however, is not a party to the agreement.

Workers who this afternoon returned to the plant of the Detroit-Michigan Stove company were attacked by strikers, 800 of whom had been picketing since they walked out this morning when their demands for a 20 per cent increase and a five day 35 hour week were not met. Guarded by police, the men who so desired went back to work. Officials of the stove factory said they had met all existing regulations and have treated with the men, but when the new demands could not be met the men walked out.

"Wages Before Dividends."

New Haven, Conn., April 9.—(AP)—Demands for increased wages backed by strikes or threats of walkouts found Connecticut industry today on the threshold of a state-wide movement for the restoration of wages to the level of 1929.

John J. Egan, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, asserted: "No company should declare any dividends until the 1929 wage level is restored."

"We are hitting," he said, "where they least expect it."

Employes of three aircraft companies in East Hartford formally submitted demands for a 10 per cent increase and were told they would receive a reply tomorrow.

The Hamilton Propeller company, the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft company, and the Chance-Vought corporation were involved in the wage disputes.

In Norwalk, about 150 workers left the Norwalk Tire and Rubber company plant after demanding a 30 per cent increase. The factory, however, continued to operate.

SALE OF LIQUOR FORBIDDEN WHILE POLLS ARE OPEN

Commissioner of Police Allman yesterday announced that any one selling liquor or beer today between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m., when the polls are open, will be subject to arrest and their liquor licenses revoked. The state law, he said, prohibits the sale of liquor on primary and election days when the polls are open.

The commissioner said that nearly all of the city's 6,000 policemen will be on duty during the day. One uniformed policeman will be assigned to each of the 3,152 precincts in the city. In all of the precincts in the 35th and 29th wards and in some precincts in the 26th and 28th wards two police men will be on duty.

FEDERAL JUDGE FLORENCE ALLEN TAKES HER OATH

Starts Work in U. S. Court of Appeals.

Cincinnati, O., April 9.—(AP)—As the portraits of men who have occupied high places in the nation's judicial councils looked down upon her, the country's first woman federal judge today was sworn in as a member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth district.

Florence E. Allen, 50 years old, of Cleveland, said of her first day's labors as a member of the court: "I sat down beside my colleagues and went to work, and that's about all there was to it."

JUDGE FLORENCE E. ALLEN.

Then she confessed she was "thrilled by the courtesy and consideration" of her fellow judges and the attaches of the court.

Starts as Prosecutor.

Judge Allen, first woman in Ohio to become an assistant prosecutor, and first in the land to be elected to the bench of a state supreme court, was named to the federal bench by President Roosevelt to fill the vacancy due to the death of Judge Smith Hickenlooper, of Cincinnati.

On the walls of the courtroom were portraits of seven former judges of the tribunal, four of whom occupied places on the country's highest bench, and one became President. Directly above her was a life-size likeness of the late William Howard Taft. Around the walls were others of Judges R. S. H. Larton, William R. Day, and Henry F. Severns, all of whom became justices of the U. S. Supreme court; John W. Warrington, Maurice Donahue, and Howell E. Jackson.

She's Native of Utah.

Judge Allen was born in Utah, and is a graduate of Salt Lake City college and Western Reserve university. She studied law at the University of Chicago, and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1914. She was elected to the state Supreme court first in 1922 and again in 1928.

She twice was defeated in congressional races, first in 1924 when Atlee Pomerene beat her for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, and again in 1933 when she sought the Democratic nomination for congress from her district in Cuyahoga county.

She was one of the early champions of women's suffrage, and is regarded as "liberally conservative" in her views on public matters.

Aurora's Aldermen Vote Open Saloons on Sunday

The city council of Aurora voted yesterday to permit saloons to open Sunday in that city between noon and midnight. An ordinance which had previously required Sunday closing was changed because liquor dispensaries on the outskirts of Aurora were allowed to operate on Sunday by the recent enactment of village and county regulations.

Campaign Finished

Anti-liquor organizations yesterday made their final pleas for dry votes in the 23 Chicago precincts and the four precincts in the unincorporated territory of New Trier township, which are the only places in Cook county to vote today on the wet and dry proposition.

All except one of the Chicago precincts are on the south side of the city, the exception being the 46th precinct of the 39th ward, which lies in the Albany Park district. Nineteen of the precincts are in the traditionally dry Beverly Hills residential section of the 19th ward, while the other three south side precincts are in the 3d ward, the 5th ward in Woodlawn, and the 17th ward in Englewood.

The New Trier precincts are sparsely settled, and political observers along the north shore predicted that probably less than 400 votes would be cast on the proposition. The dry votes are being directed at "No Man's Land," a small section lying between Wilmette and Kenilworth. Those two suburbs will vote on April 17, and are expected to follow the lead of Evanston and Winnetka, which went dry by big margins on April 3.

Zion, in Lake county, also will vote today on a liquor proposition. Lake Bluff and Gurnee, in the same county, will vote on April 17.

2 GET SUSPENDED SENTENCES FOR U.S. TAX FRAUD

Samuel H. Feighley, mayor of Rock Falls, Ill., and J. J. Lauer, 6920 Ottawa avenue, a former accountant and business associate of Feighley, were given suspended sentences yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan and admitted to two years' probation. Feigley was charged with filing false income tax returns and Lauer with aiding in the filing of false returns.

Feigley had pleaded guilty to the charge that he scheduled an income of $21,000, on which he paid a tax of $451. He admitted from the witness stand that his actual income was $73,182, on which he should have paid a tax of $8,152. Feigley testified that Lauer aided him in making the false return, but Lauer, who gave the original information to the government, denied throughout the trial that he knew the return was false.

14 Year Old English Boy Makes 5 Hour Solo Flight

LONDON, April 9.—(AP)—Victor Ottley, 14 years old, of Alexandra Park made his first solo flight yesterday, remaining in the air five hours and making a perfect landing. When the lad, who had only five hours instruction, climbed out of the cockpit he was considerably abashed by the great reception given him by a large crowd. His father was among the spectators, but his mother, greatly affected, went into the clubhouse and remained there until assured her son had come down safely.

BILL DRAFTED TO EXPAND 15% TAX CUT ORDER

Provides Rebate on Bills Paid in Full.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1933, were $700,044, making a total of $181,706,535 collected since enforcement of the Korner-Shards act began, on April 25, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the four years follow:

	1930.	1929.
April 9	$ 3,736	$ 26,379
Uncollected	14,600,833	29,831,813
	1932.	1931.
April 9	$ 32,503	$ 106,379
Uncollected	65,833,627	58,818,129

The day's collection of 1932 real estate taxes totaled $599,754; of 1931 personal property taxes $5,837, and of 1930 personal property taxes $47,930.

The draft of an assembly bill to expand the benefits of County Judge Jarecki's 15 per cent cut in the 1931 assessments on single homes and on two and three flat buildings was submitted yesterday to the Chicago recovery administration at its weekly meeting.

The bill, drafted by Hayden N. Bell, head of the civil law department of the county attorney's office, would make the 15 per cent cut effective on the 1932, 1933, and 1934 assessments and would also extend the cut to citizens who paid their 1931 taxes in full without protest. Judge Jarecki's order, as the matter now stands, applies only to objectors on 1931 bills which were not paid in full.

Would Equalize Reduction.

Mr. Bell said his legislative measure probably would have to be revised in some respects before it is submitted to the legislature. The purpose of the measure, he said, is to give equal treatment to all tax payers in the small property class, to avoid a further stoppage of tax machinery and to stimulate current tax payments which have fallen off since Judge Jarecki gave his decision.

The bill provides that whenever a court of competent jurisdiction has given a cut to a majority of the tax payers in any particular assessment class or classes, the County court shall grant those who did not get the cut a credit on their taxes for the succeeding year.

The bill also provides that any such cut, granted in one year of a quadrennial assessment period, shall be continued by court order and action of the appropriate assessing officials for the remainder of the quadrennial period.

Point Out Possible Flaw.

Tax officials pointed out that the bill, as drawn yesterday, might not apply to the case of the 15 per cent cut which Judge Jarecki ordered in 1931 building valuations, because of its provision that the powers granted under it shall be exercised only when a majority of the tax payers in any class receive the cut.

While the number of objections filed before Judge Jarecki was more than half of the 438,000 properties in the assessment classes affected, not all of those who objected will get the cut. Some of the objections were on ineligible property—as high as 18 per cent in the first two tax books in which Assessor Jacobs has started entering the reductions—and an even greater number were made after 1931 taxes on the properties affected had been paid in full.

PARENTS FLYING TO GLENCOE GIRL ILL IN CAROLINA

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence F. Stern of 81 Sheridan road, Glencoe, left last night by airplane for Durham, N. C., where their daughter, Marjorie, 17 years old, a student at Duke university, was suddenly stricken yesterday with an attack of appendicitis.

With them was Dr. J. R. Buchbinder, 1137 East 50th street, on the staffs of Northwestern university medical school and Passavant hospital. He is to handle any emergency phase of Miss Stern's illness.

On receiving word of his daughter's condition, Mr. Stern immediately chartered a Bluebird line new Bellanca plane, and engaged Dr. Buchbinder. The group took off from the Chicago airport. Joseph Bailey was the pilot.

UTILITY SUBMITS BRIEF OPPOSING RATE REDUCTION

Answers I. C. C. Motion for Electric Cut.

A voluminous brief setting forth arguments as to why neither a temporary nor permanent reduction of the electricity rates of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois should be ordered was filed with the Illinois commerce commission yesterday by attorneys for the utility.

The 101 page brief was filed in answer to the motion entered last week by attorneys for the commission asking a temporary reduction pending completion of an investigation which the regulatory body is conducting, looking toward a permanent rate ruling.

Serves 321 Communities.

The Public Service company serves 8,000 square miles of rural and urban territory in the Chicago area. It serves 321 communities. The company was among state gas and electricity purveying utilities which were cited several months ago to show cause why their rates should not be revised to conform to changed economic conditions.

Salient points in the answering brief, which was prepared by Attorneys Harry J. Dunbaugh and David F. Taber, are that the aggregate valuation of the company properties is $150,00,000 and that a fair rate of return on that investment as a rate base should be not less than 7 per cent. United States Supreme court decisions are cited to justify the 7 per cent return.

In recent hearings which have been held before Assistant Commissioner Charles E. Byrne the commission's lawyers, Irvin Rooks and Harry R. Booth, had experts testify that a fair property valuation would be $125,000,000 and that a reasonable rate of return should be about 6 per cent.

Claim an Omission.

The Public Service brief yesterday also set forth that the commission staff had omitted entirely any amount for going value of the business in the valuation total. The going value, it was asserted, should be not less than $15,000,000. It also was argued that the working capital of the company should be fixed at $5,000,000 instead of at $3,000,000, the figure proposed as equitable by the commission's experts.

Attention is also called in the brief to the increased price levels of materials and labor which has resulted from the National Recovery campaign, a factor which enters into the valuation figures. It was asserted that those price levels are now within 1½ per cent of the 1926 index figures, the goal of the Washington administration.

HEARS ARGUMENT OF TWO STATES FOR TINY ILANDS

Final arguments in the boundary dispute between Michigan and Wisconsin over the ownership of two small ilands in northern Lake Michigan, were heard yesterday by F. F. Faville of Des Moines, Ia., who has been appointed special master in chancery by the United States Supreme court. The ilands are the Sugar and Beaver ilands, over which the states have been bickering for several years as to which should receive the revenue from fishing licenses.

After many years of controversy the United States Supreme court decided in favor of Michigan in 1926, but Wisconsin succeeded in reopening the case, claiming a mistake had been made in drawing the boundary in accordance with the court's decision.

A. J. Bieberstein of Milwaukee argued for Wisconsin, and Attorneys Meredith Sawyer and Gerald O'Brien spoke for Michigan. Mr. Faville announced he would soon submit a report of the case to the United States Supreme court.

REPORTERS VISIT ROOSEVELT AND HEAR FISH YARNS

Depart Unconvinced of Piscatorial Prowess.

ABOARD NOURMAHAL, off Gun Cay, Bahamas, April 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt received White House correspondents on board his vacation yacht Nourmahal today and gave a two hour interview which left the newspaper men unconvinced of his fishing luck on this trip.

Wearing a blue jersey and old gray trousers, the President sat on the awning-covered quarterdeck of the yacht, anchored just off the shore of the Bahamas ilands, as he indulged in his first contact with public affairs since leaving the White House more than 10 days ago.

He declined to break his vacation for comment on current affairs and waved goodby with the declaration "all is well" and the word that he would land somewhere in Florida Wednesday night or Thursday morning for the return to Washington.

Reads Fishing News Bulletins.

The newspaper men went to the yacht presumably as an investigating committee to inquire into Mr. Roosevelt's joshing complaint against the story of his son, Elliott, that he wasn't having any fishing luck.

Members of the Nourmahal party gathered around the sun tanned President to back up a series of "news bulletins" which he read to support his side of the argument.

One of the bulletins told how Mr. Roosevelt had landed a sperm whale with a three inch line after an all day fight. The bulletin explained that the whale was caught just under the eight hour limit beyond which the President would have refused to work.

However, the newspaper men couldn't find the proof and they were unanimous in siding with young Elliott's doubt of his father's luck.

Vincent Astor, owner of the Nourmahal, was reported in the President's bulletin as having caught two turtles at the price of $1 apiece from a fish market.

Fish Displayed in Tanks.

Astor showed the newspaper men various catches of fish placed in tanks about the yacht.

Four speckled trigger engaged in a furious fight in their tank last night and two were killed.

Some excitement was aroused this afternoon when the call of a fish catch was sounded. Lytle Hull of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., however, only had one of the dead fish which had been thrown overboard on his line and the doubt of fishing luck aboard the Nourmahal was further increased.

Mr. Roosevelt said nothing about the impending visit of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, and it was presumed that his recovery lieutenant was coming here to report on developments and more particularly get a few days of rest.

While carefully refraining from any comment on national affairs, there was just an indication that Mr. Roosevelt felt the time had come to return to the capital to deal with congress.

Beauty Queen Sues Millionaire Peer for Breach of Promise

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 9. — A writ for breach of promise was issued today against Lord Rupert Revelstoke, wealthy young banker, by Angela Joyce, an actress. Miss Joyce is now in Hollywood and will return to England for trial of the suit, which is expected to be held next autumn.

Revelstoke, who is 23 years old, was married on March 2 to Flora Fermor-Hesketh, daughter of Sir Thomas Fermor-Hesketh. The young couple have just returned to London from a honeymoon in Italy. Lord Revelstoke is heir to the $3,000,000 estate of his father.

Miss Joyce, who became "Miss England" in 1930 in a beauty contest, later went to Hollywood. She has appeared in films in both England and Hollywood.

Actress Describes Romance.

Hollywood, Cal., April 9.—(AP)—An idyllic romance with 23 year old Lord Revelstoke, British nobleman, was described today by Angela Joyce, English actress, a few hours after her lawyers started a suit in London charging he broke a promise to marry her.

She said he adored her "like a goddess in the clouds," and that she "loved him to distraction."

"Imagine my heartbreak and astonishment on learning he had married another woman," said Miss Joyce.

The actress said Lord Revelstoke was "just a Cambridge undergraduate, and not a very wealthy one," when she met him. She charged he was "poisoned" against her.

Met in London Night Club.

"I met Lord Revelstoke in a London night club in February, 1931, said the actress, "and we fell violently in love. I knew him then as Rupert Baring, his family name. The name meant nothing to me because I loved him.

"We kept company and planned a secret elopment. I received 58 letters from him. He is the best looking man in the world. All the time we were together we were in a state of love's exuberance. I don't think it will be possible in life for me ever to feel a greater happiness.

"Robin [she said he liked to be called Robin] worshiped me. He would go to the market to buy groceries for me to cook for him. I lost my greatest happiness in life when I lost him. Had he been the son of a butcher it would have made no difference to me.

Not a Good-bye Kiss.

"I suppose Robin thought at one time he had kissed me good-by. Well, he hadn't. I was not some little chorus girl. I've been a bright star in London, and I'm one beauty queen who has brains.

"Some people may think I fell in love with Rupert's money and position, but nothing could be farther from the truth."

POVERTY STORY TOLD BY FATHER OF MARY ASTOR

Lives on Hilltop Estate; Says Cash Is $5.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 9.—[Special.]—Mary Astor's father, Otto Langhanke, 63, former Quincy, Ill., and Chicago high school teacher, in Superior court here today told a story of poverty despite the fact that he and his wife live in a $165,000 hillside mansion in Hollywood. Langhanke is suing his $1,000 a week screen actress daughter for support. Mrs. Helen Langhanke, the actress' mother, also was in court. Miss Astor was not present.

The Langhankes have an automobile, grand piano, and swimming pool, but only $5 in cash, the father said on the witness stand. He pulled a bill from his pocket and then added that he and his wife also owned "$40 worth of stock."

"Have you had any other means of support in the last eight months?" his attorney, Mark Jones, asked.

Given Grocery Coupons.

"My daughter has given us five grocery coupons worth $30 each in the last six months," he replied.

"Have you managed to exist on that?"

"No, the neighbors have helped us out by bringing in food."

Langhanke then added that he had earned $30 as a movie extra since last fall.

In her answer to the suit, filed recently, Miss Astor said that her father as her manager collected her income of $461,000 in the period from 1920 to 1930 and that she received only a small part of it. After that period, she said, she gave her parents as much as $1,000 a month for living expenses, but that they mortgaged their home and built a swimming pool.

Offers Home to Parents.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Lasher Gallagher, Miss Astor's counsel developed that the actress had written a formal offer to her parents, a year ago, offering to establish and maintain a home for them in San Mateo, 400 miles from Hollywood.

The letter read in court, was as follows:

"I am very happy to let you know I have made arrangements for you and mother to live in a lovely residence in Montara, Cal., and if you will consent to live there, I will make necessary arrangements for delivery of groceries, vegetables, meats and staples as may be necessary to adequately take care of your needs, and will also arrange and pay for electricity, fuel and water."

Father Refuses Offer.

Langhanke said he had not accepted the offer, but would be willing to live in other quarters, "if we could sell our house. There is a $15,000 mortgage due on it, and $5,000 in back taxes and interest. It is due to be foreclosed May 4."

"But I wouldn't want to move out of our present home until I would have to," he said in answer to the attorney's query whether he would agree to go to some other place his daughter would agree to set up for her parents.

Questioned regarding the Langhankes' automobile and grand piano brought the witness' insistence that "I need the piano because of the music lessons I give." Further questioning disclosed that Langhanke is now down to one pupil, and that this pupil does not pay for lessons.

JOKE OVER MILK SELLING STAND BRINGS A BOMB

An unused barbecue stand at North avenue and Thatcher road in Elmwood Park was demolished by a bomb last night a few hours after the owner, William Mafkris, had been threatened with death because of reports that he intended to open the place as a cut rate milk station. Damage by the blast was estimated at approximately $600. Mafris was in another barbecue stand which he operates about 500 feet from the one bombed. He denied that he intended to open a milk station, explaining that he had been joked about the possibility and that he had jestingly said he might do so. He said the bombers had apparently thought he meant to go into the milk business.

TRIO ABANDONS CAR FOR TROLLEY, SEIZED BY POLICE

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 40; recovered, 45; stripped, 2 (from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Sunday).

Three alleged automobile thieves, who abandoned their stolen car and boarded a street car in an effort to escape, were captured by police yesterday. They are Joseph Bralansky, 18 years old, 1719 West 16th street; Thomas Szafren, 19 years old, 2934 West 40th street, and Stanley Jachom, 20 years old, 3036 West 41st street. Sergt. Edward Rubacek became suspicious of the youths at West 38th street and Kedzie avenue and gave chase. The trio, after fleeing several blocks, left their car and boarded a 36th street surface lines car. While passengers looked on in amazement the police followed and placed their quarry under arrest.

NEW YORKERS SEEK TO RAISE SUBWAY FARE

New York, April 9.—[Special.]—Twenty-three civic associations plan a joint meeting on Thursday to begin an "educational campaign" to show New Yorkers that the city would gain by a higher fare on its subways.

Several organizations, such as the chamber of commerce of the state of New York, have been "higher fare organizations" for a number of years, but their arguments have always fallen on deaf ears, so far as the city administration was concerned.

The civic leaders regard the higher fare as the solution of the city's financial problems, which lead them to feel that their chances are better than in the past.

2 ARE ARRESTED AS SUSPECTS IN EXTORTION PLOT

Report Confession Made in Hanna Case.

Thomasville, Ga., April 9.—[Special.]—Federal authorities announced here tonight that the Howard M. Hanna $10,000 extortion case had been solved with the arrest of two men and a confession from one of them.

After being trailed through Georgia and Florida for nearly three weeks, Emory Callahan, 24, surrendered to officers here and admitted that he originated the scheme to obtain some "easy money" from the Cleveland capitalist by sending death threats through the mail.

Callahan implicated J. E. [Uncle Sam] Pullian, 55, of Thomasville, but the latter maintained through hours of questioning that he had no connection with the plot. Callahan's arrest was brought about when two officers seized upon a chance bit of conversation repeated by workmen at Melrose plantation, the Hanna winter estate here, in which Callahan was quoted as wishing for a "Tommy gun."

Authorities immediately recalled that one of the extortion notes threatened members of the Hanna family with death from "Tommy Gun" unless the money was forthcoming. They then trailed Callahan to Miami and Bellegrade, Florida, and back into Georgia, before Callahan, learning that he was suspected, gave himself up.

12 MILLION U. S. CASH ASKED FOR 170 MILLION CALIFORNIA PROJECT

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—Army engineers recommended today that congress appropriate $12,000,000 as the federal government's contribution toward the $170,000,000 California central valley project.

The recommendation, made in a report sent the house rivers and harbors committee by Maj. Gen. H. M. Markham, chief of engineers, would increase the federal share from $6,760,000 originally recommended by the board of rivers and harbors.

Markham also recommended that the dam, to be built at Kennett on the Sacramento river, be 420 feet high as desired by local interests, instead of 460 feet as recommended by the board. He also recommended that the Sacramento river be improved to provide a depth of 9 feet from Sacramento to Colusa and 5 feet from Colusa to Chicago Landing at a cost of $390,000.

KIMBALL

Your Willing and Most Capable Ally—The MUSIC TEACHER

EDUCATIONAL authorities have agreed, for many years, that nothing speeds the cultural development of the child like music. Its softening influence brings out the best of the child's imagination, creative ability, appreciation of the finer things of life. Yet the young mind must be expertly guided in this cultural pursuit; carefully guarded along the road. Luckily for our community, we have some excellent teachers of music—able, earnest, conscientious. It would be our pleasure to recommend them by name; their value to your home life can be made large indeed for truly moderate cost.

DEBT QUESTION BLOCKS CREDITS TO RED RUSSIA

RFC Sets Terms for Trade Deal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—Diplomatic relations with soviet Russia, which were resumed less than five months ago, appeared today to be headed for their first severe strain because of Russian unwillingness to settle up past debts.

An impasse has been reached between the United States and the soviets with the American government declaring semi-officially that it will not grant Russian trade credits unless outstanding debts are refunded and with the Reds maintaining unofficially that they will not recognize debts incurred by imperial Russia.

Issues Trade Debt Order.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, today declared flatly that the RFC's Export-Import bank will advance no credits for Russian trade until assured by the state department that the question of old debts has been satisfactorily settled.

The state department meanwhile appeared to be the center of the movement to put pressure on the Russian debt problem, although the department was keeping its hand well hidden, avoiding any official commitment. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., a leader in the early Russian discussions, similarly would make no official statement.

Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, who also is a director of the RFC's export bank, has stated openly, however, in a letter to congress that the bank will grant no Russian credits until Russia makes a debt settlement satisfactory to President Roosevelt.

Although Mr. Moore wrote his letter as a director of the Export bank, it appeared today that he had done so with the knowledge and consent of his assistants in the state department. The bank was used merely as a convenient device for avoiding official commitment.

Would Reject Credits First.

Mr. Moore's letter appearing in Russian press dispatches has brought the retort that Russia will forego the trade credits rather than refund the czarist debts. The debt question was one of those left open at the time of recognition, and the strain which now surrounds it is in sharp contrast to the optimism prevailing five months ago.

Russia owes the United States 337 million dollars lent to the governments ruling prior to the successful Red uprising. The soviets have repudiated this obligation as one with which they have nothing to do.

Pay War Debts with Bonds Is Proposal of Senator Lewis

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—In a pleasant, conversational mood, the senate today resumed consideration of the revenue bill which is expected to add nearly half a billion dollars to the taxpayers' buprden. War debts, Dr. Wirt of Gary, the lace industry, the operations of the Home Owners Loan corporation—almost every possible subject except the revenue bill itself—occupied the attention of senators during the session which wound up on a determined note to get down to business tomorrow.

The courtly, eloquent James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois delivered an oration on the subject of the billions owed us by foreign nations. Always sure-fire material for a senate discussion, the war debts stirred Senators William E. Borah [Rep., Ida.] and Millard F. Tydings [Dem., Md.] to a sprightly debate.

No Interest for 2 Years.

Senator Lewis proposed that the foreign governments pay off their obligations by issuing bonds to the amount of the debts due the United States and that the United States could then distribute these bonds to the people who would be willing to accept the credit of the nations involved. No interest would be paid on such bonds within the first two years of issue.

"This system," declared the Illinois senator, "protects the debtor from immediate stress, cancels the obligation, enables the United States to be both just and generous and revives in mutual respect and restored confidence the affectionate relations between the nations."

Senator Tydings was prompted to a recommendation that a lump sum settlement be made of the obligations.

"Let's get out of Europe and stay out," he urged.

Lace Problems Come Up.

Senator Felix Hebert [Rep., R. I.] then discussed the problems of the lace industry for an hour. Senator Huey Long [Dem., La.], who prefaced his remarks by saying that he was anxious not to delay the senate in acting upon the revenue bill, took up only fifty minutes in remarking about the operations of the Home Owners' Loan corporation in his native state.

For another hour Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] expatiated on the virtues of Dr. Wirt, the Gary educator.

"Gentlemen," pleaded Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], "we have this most important revenue bill to consider. Much work remains to be done on it. May I ask that these discussions be postponed for a time or at least shortened considerably?"

Editorial Read Into Record.

This request had some effect. After an editorial on the subject of the late Chief Justice Marshall had been read and introduced into the record on the insistenes of another senator the senate at 5 p. m. looked at the revenue bill.

Two important amendments were to be considered. One was the proposal of Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] that a flat horizontal increase of 10 per cent be made on all income taxes to provide an estimated $55,000,000 extra. Another was the proposal of Senator Robert La Follette [Radical, Wis.], to boost the super estate or inheritance levies to add another $95,000,000 to the estimated revenue.

But first Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] insistec that his amendment providing a lower tax upon cut rate theater tickets be considered.

"It will light up many a theater that is now dark and silent," he declared. But the senate voted his amendment down.

And Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] introduced another amendment providing that no corporation might deduct from its corporation tax a salary of more than $50,000 for any one individual.

Asked If He's Serious.

"This will put an end to million dollar salaries which are paid merely to avoid the payment of taxes," he declared.

"Do you seriously contend," inquired Senator Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.], "that congress can regulate the salaries a company may pay its employes?"

"They can pay them more than $50,000 if they want to," insisted Senator McKellar, "but they can't deduct more than $50,000 for any man.

"It seems to me to be about the same thing," commented Senator Bailey. And the senate rejected Senator McKellar's amendment. It was then 5:30 p. m., and time for adjournment.

3,000 YOUNG MEN STORM CHICAGO OFFICES OF CCC

The registration offices of the Civilian Conservation corps at 310 West Madison street, were stormed yesterday by more than 3,000 youths between the ages of 18 and 25 years who sought enrollment for the summer term. For hours after the office opened at 8 a. m. there was a line of young men around the building awaiting admittance and the prize of an application blank. Police lines were formed and mounted officers were summoned to control the gathering.

Although there are only 2,500 openings for the CCC in Cook county a total of 3,000 application blanks were distributed by S. H. Olmsted, who is in charge of registration, and his assistants. The youths were ordered to fill out the blanks and return them to the office. From those who return their applications Cook county's quota for the next six months of work in the forests will be chosen.

The throng yesterday consisted of youths who were jobless and upon whose earnings others were dependent. The stipulation that families from which the youths were drawn must be on the relief rolls has been withdrawn by the federal authorities.

CHICAGO ADDED TO PROTESTERS OF WAGNER BILL

Senators Hear Commerce Association Head.

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—Chicago business leaders are unanimously opposed to the Wagner labor disputes bill, George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, told a senate committee today.

"The bill bears the misleading title, 'A bill to equalize the bargaining power of employers and employes,'" he said. "As matter of fact, the effect of the bill, as readily noted from a reading of its provisions, is to handicap employers in dealing with their employes and to encourage, rather than adjust disputes between them.

Bill to Unionize Industry.

"More properly the bill could be termed a bill to unionize all business and industrial establishments. It gives the national labor board and its regional labor boards and agents unrestricted power to declare as unfair labor practices nearly every act of an employer in his relations with employes.

"Once passed, it would forever remove the last vestige of control an employer possesses over his labor costs and, in large part, over the management of his business. It would create a labor party stronger in power and influence than either of the existing political parties. It would impose the will of approximately 10 per cent upon 90 per cent of the nation's employes."

Would End Free Bargaining.

Mr. Young said the real purpose of the act was to force unionization of business and industry under authority of federal law. Workers could no longer bargain through self-organization or individually, but would be compelled to bargain only through union labor organizations, whether that represented their real choice or not, he pointed out.

"Apparently the act is based upon the theory that all employers are unfair in their labor relations and that the interests of the employers and employes are essentially antagonistic rather than mutual," he declared.

"Nowhere in the act is the employer given an opportunity for fair treatment. Nowhere are labor unions subjected to the same onerous conditions as are employers. In our opinion the act is one of the most unfair and un-American measures ever submitted to the congress."

Both Sides Claim Johnson.

A letter from Gen. Johnson, made public by Senator Wagner, was signed by both sides as upholding their views. In it Johnson declared for company unions, which would be barred by the Wagner bill.

Johnson's letter said in part:

"As you may or may not know, I recommended the national labor board to the President and you as chairman. We wrote and must have a supreme court of industrial relations.

"In my opinion, the government should not favor any particular form of labor organization.

"While a company might initiate a form of 'company union,' its activity should stop there. It should neither finance, sponsor, or direct what the men do."

"I regard Johnson's expression as an endorsement of my measure," Wagner said. "I have said already that I would be willing to change my measure to enable companies to initiate company unions, but with Gen. Johnson I do not think company influence should extend further."

"Nothing like it ever before"... say those just returned from the First South Seas Exploration Cruise. And now the famous expedition cruise-ship, "City of Los Angeles", schedules a Second glamourous voyage just in time for the summer vacation.

Here is a vacation...like no other in the world. Off the beaten path, to unspoiled, primitive islands that have stirred within the hearts of romance-lovers the yearning to visit them. But these ports, are usually inaccessible at any cost. Only occasional pleasure yachts or tramp freighters ever go there. The coming of the "City of Los Angeles" will be an event in the lives of the simple natives. To be on board will be an event in yours.

Just to read the names of the islands is an inspiration. Only years of intimate knowledge of the South Seas could assemble such a list in a single voyage. And only long experience in Cruise Conducting could conceive such an ambitious expedition, particularly at such a low figure.

The sailing date is near. Make early reservations. Ask for brochure at your travel agent's, or

JOHNSON'S EX-AID POKES FUN AT NRA IN NEW DEAL TALK

Quotes "Nuts Run America" Interpretation.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, former president of the Illinois Manufacturers association, who resigned that post to serve as assistant to Gen. Hugh Johnson for six months in Washington, in an address before the Chicago post of the American Legion in the Tavern club yesterday, found time to poke fun at the New Deal, even as he cited some of the virtues of the NRA.

The letters NRA, he said, which are known nationally as designates of the National Recovery administration, often in Washington are derisively interpreted as meaning "Nuts Run America."

Quotes NRA Jokesters.

"That's the way I've heard a good many people describe the meaning of the letters," Gen. Hammond told his listeners. The room rang with laughter in response to this statement, and the Legion men demanded more information on the subject.

"Well they are a lot of cracked gentlemen down there," said the general. "It seems that every one with a cracked idea wants to get a job with the administration for a dollar a year. You never know who they are. You'll decide to consult someone working in the same office with you, someone you naturally suppose to be working on identical problems with you. You speak to this gent and discover he's another one of the cracked crew. He will have just one cracked idea that he wants to put across."

In a more serious vein, Gen. Hammond who is president of the Whiting company at Homewood, and is a member of both the Chicago Regional Labor board and the Illinois State Adjustment board, stated that there was much good in the NRA principles but he added: "The government is taking too big a part in business affairs.

"If the NRA stood for what it started out to be—Industrial self government—it would be fine. There are lots of businesses that need the help the NRA could give. However, the further back in the picture that the government remained the better it would be.

On Road to Moscow? Maybe.

"How can business go ahead if the rules are constantly changed. We are entitled to play at least one full season without change. However I don't think everything is going to smash. If we are on the road to Moscow—and maybe we are—we'll find some way to take it, although not without a lot of kicking. If some of us have got to be classed as Tories we'll just have to accept the title and let it go."

Referring to Secretary of Interior Ickes' recent attack upon James Simpson Jr., candidate for renomination in the 10th congressional district in a letter which was publicized, Gen. Hammond said: "I don't see that polo playing should make a man unfit to hold office. He learns team play in the game, and any fellow who can play along is upholding the precepts of the NRA."

Warns of Tax Increases.

The raising of every type of tax if the federal government continues its "huge expenditures" was prophesized by Major Henry H. Curran, director of the National Economy league, who met with the Illinois branch of the organization yesterday at the University club.

"Upon the balancing of the federal budget hangs the taxpayer's fate," stated Major Curran. "The proposed ten per cent raise of the personal property tax is a small potato when compared with what's coming unless the government stops spending.

"On the other hand, instead of a general tax boost, this country may wake up some morning to find a 20 cent dollar," continued Curran. "Inflation, as I see it, is the only alternative. Both inflation and tax raising may occur." The director, whose home is in New York, left last night for St. Louis, Mo., where he will confer with the Missouri branch of the league.

NRA ACCUSED OF VIOLATING OWN ACT BY COAL MEN

Producers Say Wage Order Is Illegal.

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The recovery administration itself was accused today by southern coal producers of violating the recovery act and the bituminous code.

In an attack upon the new wage and hour scales for the industry at the NRA's code revision hearing, Forney Johnston, representing Alabama producers, said Gen. Hugh S. Johnson had violated the recovery act and the code by ordering the industry, without a hearing, to put into effect higher wages and shorter hours.

The new schedules put into effect April 1 by an order of the recovery administrator established a seven-hour day, increased wages generally and greatly reduced the wage differentials accorded southern coal regions.

Strikes Follow Order.

Strikes and shutdowns have followed the promulgation of the order in many sections.

Johnston said it had thrown the Alabama coal industry into "inextricable chaos" and had resulted in putting 15,000 miners out of employment in the state.

Johnston was followed by representatives of Tennessee and Kentucky operators who insisted that lowering of the wage differentials between their coal fields and the north would wreck the south industrially and return it to a pre-civil war agricultural state.

Clashes with Lewis.

The Alabaman said union representatives, during conferences with the operators leading to a wage contract, had assured the operators they had no intention of initiating another wage increase.

Lewis interrupted with a question as to whether Johnston meant to imply the union had a secret understanding with the operators apart from the contract. An argument ensued.

The two finally were ordered to confine themselves to direct statements of fact.

Johnson said that with the competition from natural gas and hydro-electric power, and especially in view of the government's Tennessee valley development, increased production costs would wreck the coal industry of the state.

Complains at Partiality.

"In short, although showing the greatest loss per ton and the highest cost east of the Mississippi, the proposed order would saddle Alabama with an additional increase of $1.20 per man per day, with no hope of being able to maintain even the present tonnage if an effort were made to adjust prices to absorb this increase in cost," Johnson said.

Col. H. J. Weeks, representing southern Tennessee operators, said producers there were opposed to the new wage scales.

"We ask that you leave us alone," he said, adding that the code had helped the southern Tennessee coal industry some."

THIRD MOTOR CAR COLLISION VICTIM DIES IN HOSPITAL

The death toll of a head-on collision of automobiles near Gary on Sunday night was raised to three yesterday when Mrs. Benjamin Lynch, 40 years old, of Lowell, Ind., died in the Methodist hospital in Gary. Her husband, who is an insurance agent, is still in the hospital in a critical condition.

The others killed in the accident were Miss Esther Hershman, 25 years old, of Crown Point, daughter of George Hershman, attorney for Lake county, Ind., and a state Democratic leader, and Herman Rosenthal, 25 years old, a lawyer employed in Mr. Hershman's office.

The collison occurred when the car in which Miss Hershman and Rosenthal were passengers was driven around a disabled truck on State Road No. 53, five miles north of Crown Point, and struck the automobile occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Lynch.

Two deaths to Cook county yesterday increased the motor toll since Jan. 1 to 332. The victims:

Joseph Body, 25 years old, 3709 West 58th place, an employé of the Continental Baking company. Fatally injured in a collision of his car and a truck driven by Edward Horak, 1504 South 53th avenue, Cicero, at Wabash avenue and 46th street.

Frank Adams, 31 years old, 2419 North Kedzie avenue. Crushed to death yesterday beneath the wheels of the motor bus he drove for the Logan department store, when Ralph Royer, 43 years old, 2416 North Francisco avenue, a driver for the same concern, drove the bus forward. Royer did not know that Adams was beneath the vehicle making repairs.

BLAZE DRIVES OUT CARMEN.

Twenty-five conductors and street car men lunching in the Terminal Inn, 7800 Vincennes avenue, were forced to the street yesterday by a fire which attacked the roof of the place.

U. S. RECOVERING DESPITE 'FIXERS,' VIEW OF FORD

Says New Deal Hinders but Can't Stop Nation.

BY EARL MULLIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., April 9. — [Special.] — The country is now definitly on the upgrade, but is being retarded by "fixers" who are attempting to control business for their own ends, Henry Ford said today to a group of Chicago newspaper men who were in Dearborn for a preview of the Ford Motor company exhibit for the Century of Progress Exposition.

The end of the depression would have arrived much sooner, he said, if outside interests had not constantly tinkered with the enterprise of the nation.

"International financiers are trying to get control of everything," the sage of Dearborn said, "to make peasants of the people. We have entirely too many fixers."

Blames Presidential Advisers.

By inference he absolved the administration and President Roosevelt of the interference he charged, but placed the blame on Presidential advisers. Asked if he referred to the administration in charging "fixers" with hindering recovery, he shook his head vigorously.

"Decidedly not," he said. "You can't make me say that. The President is always the goat."

After talking at great length about the Chicago Fair and the exhibit his company is erecting in Burnham Park he was questioned about the national recovery program and the Wagner bill, which is now pending before congress.

He avaded any answer to NRA allusions, but damned the Wagner bill with faint praise.

Says Key Is with Farmers.

"The Wagner bill will do no harm," he said, after a moment's hesitation. "In fact, no one or no thing can hurt this country. It is too big. All they can do is try.

"Conditions are definitly better but this New Deal legislation has had nothing to do with it. If business had been left alone, we would have ended the depression much sooner."

Mr. Ford made it plain that his main interest at the present time was in the bettering of the condition of the farmer. Not until the farmer has been given a new financial life can the country hope to recover generally, he said. This agrarian problem will be one of the major parts of the Fair exhibit now being constructed by the motor company.

"Farming has come to a new deal," he said. "Farming has to change. Up to the last few years, it has been the crudest type of industry. The only thing that can be done for the farmer, I believe, is to stimulate his imagination and help him solve his own problem. The best thing is to leave him alone and quit selling him bum stock—and I don't mean live stock. The last few years he has been sold stock and has been duped with it. Now he is suspicious."

Tells Plans for Fair.

One of the major portions of the Fair exhibit will deal with the growing of soy beans which, in the opinion of Ford, is the most versatile crop that can be grown. Not only will a patch of the beans be grown at the Fair exhibit but machinery to handle the full processing and extracting of oil will be shown. Farmers who become interested will be given advice and free literature dealing with their growth.

Reporters were shown a complete line of products extracted from the beans and manufactured from the meals. The products included panels, instrument boards, handles, knobs, and like devices which are used in the manufacture of automobiles.

A survey of the plant showed that this new industry was being used in every manner possible in the manufacturing of Ford products. The oil is at the present used as the base of all enamel used in the motor cars, and also Ford foundries in casting. Further industrial uses are being developed rapidly, laboratory technicians said.

For centuries, Ford pointed out, the bean has been a wholesome food for man, while the oil has more uses than any other vegetable oil excepting linseed oil. It is used in salads, cooking and general culinary devices, and further tests are being made to develop still wider uses.

No Commercial Interest.

Ford denied that his company had any commercial interests in the advancing of soy beans. No farmer will be financed in the growing of the crop, he said, and the assembly of machinery will be entirely up to the communities. However, advice and the aid of farm economists in the erecting of the machinery will be forthcoming at demand.

The preview of the Ford exhibit shows that one general idea is to be carried out in the huge Ford pavilion, one of the largest single exhibits at the Fair. "How" is the watchword. The only modern Ford to be shown is a 1934 model, which ends the drama of transportation which starts with an Egyptian chariot, the only reproduction in the assembly of 67 vehicles.

The drama includes a complete history of the automobile from the 1863 European creation, and shows that the so-called "knee action," touted as a development of the last year, in reality has been known since 1906.

Reveals Secrets of Exhibit.

Henry Ford yesterday, also for the first time, revealed the secrets of the exhibit to be housed in the south end of the building, and termed by workmen as "Ford's personal show." The first car to be built by Ford, which he sold for $160 and later bought back for about $50, will be one of his exhibits in this wing. Another will be his first workshop. While the remainder of the space will be filled with personal collections of the automobile industry, collected over a number of years.

SPAIN OCCUPIES IFNI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MADRID, April 9.—Four young army officers yesterday raised the Spanish flag over the last piece of unoccupied territory in Africa—land claimed by Spain since the days of Ferdinand, but ignored for the last 400 years. The place is Ifni, a stretch along the western coast, 60 miles long and 15 miles wide, once known as the Holy Cross of the Little Sea.

Ifni burst into prominence in the last few weeks due to the publication of rumors that Germans were smuggling arms ashore for the use of Arab chiefs against the French in the Atlas mountains of Morocco.

The hero of the occupation was announced at Madrid today as Col. Fernando Capaz. He led a captain, a lieutenant, and a corporal ashore while the gunboat Canalejas stood by, and an airplane circled overhead. Col. Capaz sailed from Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, several days ago under a secret order to do the job.

One thousand Spanish troops left Ceuta today, and are due in Ifni on Wednesday. Nine army planes will leave Madrid tomorrow. The government is ready to send more troops if the 20,000 natives of Ifni decide to fight. Madrid hopes to avoid trouble by getting the blue sultan, Merebbi Rebbo, fanatic Mohammedan chieftain, who fled to Ifni to escape the French, to arrange things with the natives.

Ifni was first claimed for Spain by the governor of the Canary Ilands in 1499. Under Ferdinand's order he built three castles and fortresses. In 1830 the territory became Spain's by a treaty, but no Spaniard ever landed officially until Col. Capaz stepped ashore yesterday.

POLICE MINGLE WITH GAMBLERS, THEN RAID PLACE

Lieut. Martin McCormick of the morals division and members of his squad walked into a large gambling house on the second floor of 155 East Grand avenue yesterday and freely mingled with a crowd of 200 men and women without being recognized.

They watched a blackjack game for several minutes and looked on as men and women placed wagers on horse races at special betting booths. After getting enough optical evidence, Lieut. McCormick and his detectives announced their identity, confiscated gambling paraphernalia and $49.

The patrons in the place were released, but six men were held as keepers. They were Harry Hagan, William Campbell, Charles Gaston, John Keefe, Frank Ryan, and Martin Schwartz. They will be arraigned in the South State Street court today.

ELMHURST MAN GIVEN MEDAL FOR WAR GALLANTRY

Frederick L. Edwards of 400 Mitchell avenue, Elmhurst, was notified yesterday by the war department at Washington that he has been awarded the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action during the world war.

The citation states that Edwards, while a sergeant of Company H, 138th infantry, led a raid at Hilsenfirst, France, on July 6, 1918, and when caught under severe artillery fire "did, by excellent disposal of his troops, effect a safe return of the detachment to our lines."

Edwards, when reached at his home last night, recalled the incident, but described it as "nothing much" when asked for details. He is married and father of two children and is employed in Chicago by the Con P. Curran Printing company of St. Louis. He came here from St. Louis seven years ago.

KENTUCKY EDITOR'S LEGISLATIVE DAMAGE SUIT IS DISMISSED

Frankfort, Ky., April 9.—(AP)—The petition of Vance Armentrout, associate editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, seeking $50,000 damages from seven members of the state legislature for false imprisonment, was dismissed by Judge H. Church Ford in Franklin Circuit court today on the ground of constitutional immunity.

Judge Ford did not rule on the question whether the house lobby investigating committee's action in ordering Armentrout to jail for alleged contempt was illegal, but held that whether or not the action was void its members were protected by the state constitution providing that legislators "shall not be questioned in any other place" for any speech or debate in either house. Judge Ford indicated the immunity would not extend to the sergeant-at-arms or the jailer.

In overruling Armentrout's demurrer to the answer claiming immunity, Judge Ford indicated he would set aside his ruling if it could be shown it was incorrect. Polk South, Frankfort, attorney for Armentrout, said he would cite other cases in support of his demurrer.

CHICAGO GIRL VICTIM OF RARE BLOOD MALADY

Six year old Loretta Sitowski, 8556 Burnham avenue, fifth known victim of lymphatic leukemia, rare and fatal malady, is a patient in the county hospital, unaware that she likely will spend the rest of her days there.

According to Dr. Maurice Blatt, pediatrician and head of the staf of the Children's hospital, the cause of the disease, which produces too many white corpuscles and decreases the number of red corpuscles in the blood stream, is unknown. Loretta has been given several blood transfusions since she was taken to the hospital on March 2, following a three months' illness. These have aided her only temporarily, Dr. Blatt said. Loretta suffers little pain, but daily grows weaker.

The specter of death hovers over four other small girls in the country, who are helpless to combat the disease. They are Willie Mae Miller of Memphis, Tenn., Theodore Alosio, 4 years old, who is wasting away in Christ hospital, Jersey City, N. J.; Marie Van Geffen, 9 years old, a patient in a New Orleans hospital, and Roma Garrett, 4 years old, who is existing in a glass cubicle in Grasslands hospital, Eastview, N. Y.

NAZI MOB BREAKS INTO PALACE OF CATHOLIC BISHOP

Compels Him to Remove Liberated Priest.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MUNICH, April 9.—The palace of the Catholic bishop of Wuerzburg, one of the most beautiful in Germany, was invaded by Nazi demonstrators today. The bishop was compelled to promise to fulfill their wishes before the mob dispersed.

While the crowd was attempting to break into the bishop's room to confront him personally, the leader of the Wuerzberg storm troopers appeared and offered to negotiate with the bishop on behalf of the Nazis. The demonstrators were demanding that the bishop remove the Rev. Father Stoeger of Waldbuttlesburg, which is located near Wuerzburg. The priest returned to his parish last week from a concentration camp where he had been imprisoned since Jan. 15 for "making disparaging remarks about the Nazi government."

Priest Suffers from Strain.

Father Stoeger is still suffering from the strain of his imprisonment. He was compelled to postpone the ceremonies of his first communion until he had recovered.

The Waldbuttlesburg Nazis and their Wuerzburg comrades staged today's demonstration.

The storm troop leader, after conferring with the bishop, told the Nazi invaders that the bishop would yield to their demand. Expressing their satisfaction the Nazis dispersed.

In Stuttgart the "town captain of the Catholic Youth association of the New Germany" joined forces with the Hitler Youth organization, thus abandoning the prerogatives to which the Catholic Youth are entitled under the concordat.

Stuttgart is the home of the Rev. Father Mannwald, leader of the Catholic Youth organization of southern Germany. Consequently, the Nazis hail the incorporation of the Catholic Youth into the Hitler Youth association as a great victory.

Predicts Decree Against Catholics.

COLOGNE, Germany, April 9.—(AP)—Robert Ley, German Labor Front leader, said in an address before members of his organization today that a decree would be issued soon to curtail the "sneaking methods" of the Catholic clergy, whom he accused of "tampering" with the Labor Front.

"Of course they are protected by a concordat which we do not desire to change," Ley said, "but if they think they can get privileges for their people reserved by a national labor law for our members with their sneaking methods they are badly mistaken. A decree will be issued shortly making this impossible."

He did not explain details of the projected law.

"The reverend fathers and the reverend ministers," he said, referring to both the Catholic and Protestant clergy, "ought to confine themselves to their pulpits."

PRUSSIA REPLACES WOMEN TEACHERS WITH WAR VETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, April 9.—The Prussian minister of culture today decreed that women teachers in high schools must be replaced by war maimed men instructors except in biology and gymnastics classes. The women, who formerly held a great portion of the jobs in girls' schools, will get only two-fifths of the posts in these schools.

Thus the majority of Germany's young womanhood will be trained by men.

The girls also are given a setback in the "country year" provided for city children to give them physical training in the country after they have finished school. The proportion will be nine boys to one girl in the trial year.

OPEN PWA FRAUD TRIAL OF BANKER AT DES MOINES

Lieut. Governor Faces Charges April 24.

Davenport, Iowa, April 9.—[Special.]—Selection of a jury and the partial testimony of one witness today opened the trial of Carleton D. Beh, Des Moines investment banker, on a charge of forgery growing out of Iowa's recent PWA investigation. The case is being tried in federal District court.

The proceedings involved were in connection with the application by the city of Ottumwa, Ia., for a public works administration grant and loan for a $400,000 bridge across the Des Moines river.

Among the principal witnesses for the defense will be Lieut. Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel of Des Moines. He is scheduled to testify Tuesday. The lieutenant governor is indicted with Beh on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government with PWA contracts. Kraschel and Beh are slated to go on trial on the joint charge in federal court at Des Moines April 24.

Tells of Alterations.

In the opening statement of Merrill Gilmore, Ottumwa, attorney for the defense, and the testimony of Mayor Edwin C. Manning, also of Ottumwa, it was charged that Beh altered the application for the federal funds, and that the question for the jury to decide is whether he had any authority for so doing. The attorney declared he had authorization and that it was done in good faith.

U. S. District Attorney Robert Colflesh, in his preliminary address to the jury, stated, after reading the indictment, that the evidence will show the application to have been altered without authorization so that it falsely states to the public works administration that the loan necessary to finance 70 per cent of the city's $200,000 share of the expense had been issued and sold. He also declared that Ottumwa officials first learned of the change when they received word from the PWA that the city had been allowed $50,000 as a grant to cover 30 per cent of the city's portion of the amount necessary to finance the project.

Tells Application Plans.

Manning told of the preliminary plans for making application for the loan.

About 25 witnesses have been summoned by the government, outstanding of whom are Col. Henry M. Waite of Washington, D. C., deputy administrater of public works, and Edward H. Foley Jr., also of Washington, assistant general counsel for the Public Works Administration.

GERMAN IDLE FIGURE DROPS 570,000; TOTAL IS NOW 2,800,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 9.—Authorities today announced that German unemployed numbered 2,800,000 on April 1, which is 50 per cent less than a year ago. A total of 570,000 found jobs in March, a government spokesman said.

Many of these jobs pay little more than the workers formerly received as doles after they have paid their unemployment insurance fees. The workers claim that thousands were stricken from the government's unemployment lists when they refused to accept three days' work for $3 a week because they were too underfed to perform heavy tasks.

A total of $100,000,000, apportioned by the government for storm troopers' voluntary labor forces, further helped to reduce unemployment.

WIDOW ADMITS ROW PRECEDED MATE'S KILLING

Poise Is Broken When She Sees Wound.

Mrs. Ida Michaels, 52 years old, of Bensenville, who is being held in the Du Page county jail in Wheaton without bail on a charge of murdering her estranged husband, Jesse, a railway labor foreman, admitted yesterday that she and her husband had quarreled over alimony Saturday night before he was shot to death.

Mrs. Michaels still maintained her innocence of the crime, clinging to her story that she took her husband's body to the Elmhurst hospital after he was injured in an automobile accident while riding with her Saturday night. After hours of questioning her, Alan Myers, chief investigator attached to State's Attorney Chauncey Reed's office, failed to break down her story.

It was not until he took the woman prisoner to Robillard's undertaking parlor at Elmhurst to view the body of Michaels that her poise was broken. Shown the bullet wound in his back, Mrs. Michaels appeared near collapse for a moment. Then she looked deliberately at the wound and said she thought it was "a bruise, not a gunshot wound."

"Look closer," the investigator told her.

"I'll say nothing more until I see my attorney," she replied.

Before the wound was revealed to her, Mrs. Michaels wept and called the dead man "Jesse." She was dry eyed, however, as she was taken back to the jail.

An inquest will be held into the death of Michaels tomorrow in the undertaking establishment. Authorities will present evidence which they believe will result in her being held for the next grand jury of Du Page county, which convenes April 16.

WIRT HEARING TO OPEN TODAY; CAPITAL AGOG

Officialdom Rushing for Seats at Session.

Wirt's testimony, McGugin pointed out. Over the protests of the two Republican committeemen, the Democrats adopted a motion by Chairman Bulwinkle which will limit Dr. Wirt's statement at tomorrow's hearing to a mere recitation of the names of the men from whom he heard that the "brain trust" is hatching revolt among the masses.

While he and his fellow Republican committeeman, Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach of New Jersey, will exert every strategem in an effort to broaden the inquiry to include the general activities of the brain trust, McGugin said there was no question but that the Democratic majority could curtail the hearing at any point it sees fit.

"Whitewash" Is Charged.

Similar charges that the Democrats are attempting to "whitewash" the brain trusters by stifling Dr. Wirt's testimony, were heard also on the floor of the senate. Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] declared that Dr. Wirt is being put on trial by the house, whereas the brain trust is really the subject to be tried.

"Let there be no 'whitewashing' of the brain trust," Senator Robinson asked. "Let there be thorough and searching investigation to expose the invisible government in Washington."

On the floor of the house, Representative Louis T. McFadden [Rep., Pa.] declared it would be "most extraordinary" if the Gary educator were not permitted to make an uninterrupted opening statement at the hearing tomorrow. If the committee denied him that privilege, said McFadden, Dr. Wirt should refuse to say anything.

Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], one of the five Wirt investigators, replied that the committee certainly did not intend to go into an "academic discussion of revolution."

"We want to get at the bottom of Wirt's charges," said the New York Democrat, "and if he's reluctant to talk, we'll ma'e him talk."

Threatens Contempt.

Later, Speaker Rainey amplified Representative O'Connor's threat with a statement that Dr. Wirt will be cited for contempt of the house if he refuses to answer committee questions.

From Representative George Foulkes [Dem., Mich.], who has injected himself gratuitously into the Wirt controversy, the investigating committee today received a virtual "catechism" for use at the hearing tomorrow. Ten questions, prepared by Mr. Foulkes, were directed at an alleged connection between the Gary educator and the "steel trust."

At the same time, Speaker Rainey attempted to discredit Dr. Wirt's prospective testimony by giving to newspapermen mimeographed copies of four articles alleged to have been written in 1933 by the Gary school authority. All of them dealt with the monetary question, and it was Speaker Rainey's contention that they advocated a monetary program similar to that of the present administration, which Dr. Wirt now criticizes.

Nudist Colony Inspectors Require Consent of Wives

San Francisco, Cal., April 9.—(AP)—Health department inspectors who visit San Francisco nudist colonies must carry the written consent of their wives, Dr. J. C. Geiger, health director, ruled today. The inspectors will have the right to "maintain and wear suitable clothing—even including dark sun glasses."

Prosecutor Arrives

HORACE H. HAGAN.
(TRIBUNE Photo.)

Horace H. Hagan of Tulsa, Okla., newly appointed special assistant United States attorney general, arrived yesterday to participate with other government officials in the prosecution of Frank F. Parish, former president of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, and three other officials of that concern who are charged with using the mails to defraud. The trial is set for May 1 before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Mr. Hagan will be associated with Assistant United States Attorney Warren Canaday and Postoffice Inspector D. D. F. Lyons in the prosecution.

START TRIAL OF BISHOP CANNON AND SECRETARY

Charged with Election Fund Violation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—After the defendants had lost a preliminary legal skirmish, the trial of Bishop James Cannon Jr. and his secretary, Miss Ada Burroughs, for conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act got under way in the District of Columbia Supreme court today.

When the jury was completed at 3 o'clock, United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, in his opening address, said the government would establish that Bishop Cannon converted to his own use a "considerable portion" of the $65,000 contributed by E. C. Jameson to the bishop's anti-Smith campaign committee in 1928. He said the bishop and Miss Burroughs failed to make a true report of this contribution to the clerk of the house of representatives, as required by the corrupt practices act.

Defense Motion Overruled.

Bishop Cannon arrived at the courthouse with his son, David P. Cannon, and E. B. Dunford, Anti-Saloon league counsel. Miss Burroughs, wearing a brown dress and hat, was accompanied by Dr. Eugene Crawford, a friend.

The motion for the bill of particulars was summarily overruled by Justice Gordon after he had heard a brief argument from Bishop Cannon's attorney, Robert H. McNeill. The attorney said they wanted to know when they engaged in the alleged unlawful conspiracy, when and how Miss Burroughs, a treasurer of the committee, received her acquired knowledge of the Jameson contribution, if she received it. He also said the defendants would like to know when, where, and by what means Miss Burroughs conspired with Bishop Cannon to fail to make the report.

United States Attorney Garnett told the court the defense really wanted to be given the government's case in advance.

Cites High Court Approval.

Justice Gordon pointed out that the indictment had been carried to the United States Supreme court and held good as to the two courts on which they are being tried. He said he believed the charge against the defendants was sufficiently set forth and that it seemed to him they were asking for the evidence the government intends to rely upon and to which they were not entitled.

Nearly an hour was consumed in a conference at the bench in deciding what questions should be asked the prospective jurors. Bishop Cannon, who is the leader of the southern Methodist church, has publicly commented on the fact that the indictment against him was drawn by "a Roman Catholic district attorney."

It was finally decided to ask the jurors whether they would be prejudiced against Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs as a result of their participation in a campaign against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928 because he belonged to the Catholic church.

Religious Questions Asked.

"Does the fact that Cannon is charged with opposing Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, on the ground that he was a member of the Roman Catholic church and because said Smith was opposed to the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States prejudice you against said Cannon?

"Do you hold any religious prejudice preventing you from giving to the defendants, Bishop James Cannon Jr., chairman of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and Ada L. Burroughs, an employe of the Anti-Saloon league and a member of that church, a fair and impartial trial on the issues involved?"

Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs were indicted in October, 1931. The indictment charged they reported to the house of representatives only part of the money contributed to their committee by Jameson.

Both Plead Not Guilty.

Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs were arraigned immediately before the first 12 talesmen were called into the jury box to determine their fitness to serve as jurors. Both defendants pleaded not guilty and waived reading of the indictment.

Assistant United States Attorney Wilson introduced all parties connected with the case to the jurors. These included Mr. Dunford, Anti-Saloon league attorney, M. J. Fulton, Richmond, one of the defense attorneys, arose and said Dunford had not entered an appearance in the case, but was sitting at the counsel table merely as an adviser to the defense.

U. S. AGENTS SIT AT BED OF DYING DILLINGER ALLY

St. Paul, Minn., April 9.—(AP)—Alert federal agents watched tonight beside the hospital bed of Eugene Green, hopeful that he would give them a clew to the whereabouts of his chief, John Dillinger. Shot down by department of justice operatives three days after his escape with Dillinger and a woman from an apartment here, Green can live only a few hours, physicians said.

Once, agents said, he revealed in his stupor that Dillinger had been wounded. Today he was conscious for a short time, but agents did not disclose whether they learned anything.

Body of Salesman, Missing for Month, Found in River

The body of Charles L. Lawrence, 40 years old, a salesman who had been missing for nearly a month, was found yesterday in the north branch of the Chicago river. He had been sought by Albany Park police since the morning of March 17, when he arranged his belongings neatly in his room in his home at 4958 North Whipple street and went out to mail a letter. His son, Dean, said his father had been ill for nearly a year and was unable to continue his work. Police said the body had been in the water since about the time Lawrence disappeared. His survivors now live at 5309 Winthrop avenue.

ACTION DELAYED IN GRAND JURY CONTEMPT CASE

Six grand jurors who wrote a critical report concerning the wooden gun escape of John Dillinger from the Crown Point, Ind., jail were respondents yesterday in contempt of court citations before Circuit Judge William J. Murray, to whom they attached some blame for the walkout of the desperado. The jurors were granted a continuance of the hearing until next Friday, the 13th.

The continuance was asked on behalf of the jurors by former Judge Martin J. Smith, who was Judge Murray's predecessor on the bench. Former Judge Smith, as a special prosecutor, conducted the grand jury investigation into the Dillinger escape. As prosecutor, he admitted he had made some corrections in the report, from the stenographer's notes, before it was written. Judge Murray objected to his being counsel for the accused jurors.

"You may be a witness in this case," the judge said, "and have you thought you might be a principal? You are still an officer of this court and if there is an appeal [this had an ominous sound to the grand jurors, they said later] it may be your duty to represent this court. You certainly can't represent both sides."

Smith said he understood his work as special prosecutor had ceased and he was appearing as a private lawyer whom the jurors wanted to act for them.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of those little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

PILES Relief at Last!

No more torture! Walk, sit and sleep in comfort. Go to the stool without dread. Pyr-Pazo Ointment absolutely puts an end to Pile suffering of all forms—Blind, Itching, Bleeding and Protruding!

Pazo does the three things necessary. (1) It relieves the pain and inflammation. (2) It heals—repairs the torn tissue. (3) It absorbs—dries up the pile mucus and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles.

The method of application makes Pazo doubly effective. Special Pile Pipe attached to tube permits application high up in rectum so all parts are thoroughly anointed. Thousands say Pazo saved them the need of a painful operation. Thousands say it is the only thing that ever gave them anything like real relief. Get Pazo today and make the relief in store for you!

INSULL MAY BEGIN HIS VOYAGE BACK HOME THIS WEEK

U. S. Envoy Prepares for Fugitive's Departure.

BY EUGENE EPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, April 9.—Still undecided officially over the best means of returning Samuel Insull, fugitive utilities magnate, to Chicago to stand trial on criminal charges, the American government nevertheless indicated its intentions sufficiently today that only one conclusion is possible. That is that Insull is to be returned to the United States as a prisoner aboard an American export line steamer, possibly the Executive, which is leaving Constanta, Rumania, tomorrow on the way home.

United States Ambassador Robert P. Skinner today said he is waiting for routine documents from Ankara, the Turkish capital, which he must have before technicalities are cleared up. These probably will not be ready until later in the week. Consequently it is unlikely that the extradition can be effected by Wednesday, when the Executive passes Istanbul.

May Take Him to Smyrna.

It would be necessary to halt the ship by wireless anyhow, since the vessel does not have any cargo to be landed here and does not plan to stop.

At any rate, Skinner indicated Insull would be sent direct to Izmir [Smyrna] aboard a Turkish boat and then put on the American vessel so as to avoid a tedious voyage to Turkish and Greek ports between Istanbu and Smyrna. The Executive is expected to reach Smyrna Monday.

If Insull is not turned over to American authorities aboard the Executive he, in all probability, will be put aboard the steamer Excelsior, which will arrive at Istanbul eight days hence.

If sent home on the first boat he will be in cramped quarters. There are only four cabins on the ship. Two cabins are occupied by two American women on a round trip voyage from New York. Assuming that Insull will have a cabin to himself—although no reservation has yet been made here—and that another is to be occupied by Burton Y. Berry, third secretary of the American embassy, who has been assigned to deliver the fugitive to authorities in the United States, anybody accompanying them probably will have to sleep in the lounge.

Raises Question in Parliament.

ANKARA, Turkey, April 9.—(AP)—Suleiman Sirri Bey, independent deputy, today demanded an explanation of the government's handling of the Samuel Insull case. The legislator filed an interpellation in parliament calling upon the minister of justice to furnish particulars.

Some quarters believed the move might be an attempt of the former Chicago utilities magnate's lawyers to gain a delay in the extradition order.

TOKIO ORDERS 45 U.S. SHOWGIRLS TO LEAVE COUNTRY

TOKIO, April 9.—(AP)—Police, cold to the beauty of 45 show girls whose charms have packed Japan's largest theater for the last six weeks, ordered their early departure today. The company, known as the American Revue troupe, headed by A. B. Marcus and including 75 members, was notified it must leave Japan on the first liner after completion of the Tokio engagement April 15.

The action will force the cancelation of several weeks' booking in Nagoya and Osaka. The troupe arrived in Tokio from San Francisco on Feb. 23. The showgirls' transit visas expired March 28. Police granted an extension until April 15. A further extension was refused.

Since the police move was in conformity with the law, the United States embassy was unable to act officially. It was understood, however, that embassy attaches had informally asked the foreign office to intercede.

Confer on Prosecution of Insull

Seek Early Trial

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green conferred yesterday with Forest A. Harness, special assistant United States attorney general, on plans for the prosecution of Samuel Insull, fugitive utilities magnate, on charges of using the mails to defraud when he is returned here from Turkey. The federal officials announced they are looking forward to an early trial and will be busy up to that time preparing their case.

NEW PORTRAIT OF ROOSEVELT IS ACCEPTED

New York, April 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt formally accepted today, on behalf of her husband, at the museum of the city of New York a portrait in oils of the President which was painted by Ellen Emmett Rand. It will be on exhibition at the museum for one month and will then be hung in the White Hous along with the portraits of the President's predecessors.

Mrs. Roosevelt was accompanied by the President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt. Both commented favorably on the portrait, which the artist began with four sittings last August at Hyde Park, the President's summer home, and finished in Washington during the winter. It is a three-quarters length portrait and shows the President sitting in a chair. Behind him, on a table, is a model of the frigate Constitution. The expression on his face is rather stern.

"It is a dignified portrait as befits the White House," said the President's wife.

DR. VON MILLER, MUNICH MUSEUM FOUNDER, IS DEAD

MUNICH, Germany, April 9.—(AP)—Dr. Oskar Von Miller, founder of the famous Deutsches Technical museum, died here today at the age of 78. He was a pioneer in electrical water power engineering.

From 1882 to 1889 he was a director of the German Edison company, later reorganized as the Allgemeine Electric company. He became internationally famous through his project, made to the public in 1903, for a technical museum. It was started in 1909, but war and post-war conditions delayed its completion until May, 1925.

Woman Drowns in Lake, Leaving Note on Beach

The body of Mrs. Emma Shilling, 70 years old, 1851 Farwell avenue, was taken from the lake at Columbia avenue early yesterday morning. Police found a note with her purse, gloves, and coat on the beach which said: "I know this nervous illness of mine will never get better. I can't go on like this. Please forgive me." She had been missing from her home for several hours. Mrs. Shilling was the widow of J. Lenhart Shilling, head of an engraving firm, and is survived by a son, Howard C. Shilling, 7401 Ridge avenue, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Binner, with whom she lived.

NEW ATTENDANCE MARK BEING SET BY FLOWER SHOW

Wide Variety of Exhibits Pleasing Thousands.

BY PAUL POTTER.

All attendance records for flower shows in the middle west have been broken by the crowds which have gone out to Chicago's Navy pier to view the eighth annual Garden and Flower show, being presented by the affiliated garden clubs of Illinois.

A final count yesterday showed that more than 33,000 persons attended the show on Sunday and about 15,000 had passed through the entrance gates at an early hour last night. The show closes next Sunday and is open daily this week between 10:00 a. m. and 10:00 p. m.

Wide Variety of Exhibits.

Under a blue canopy and covering more than three acres of the pier's north wing are being exhibited almost every variety of flower, plant and fruit native to this region, with many from far away points that were grown especially for this exposition. Yesterday delegations from distant points, some coming in specially chartered trains of coaches, indicated that the show would attract visitors from at least 30 states. Total attendance for the 8 days of the show will reach 135,000, it is expected.

Experienced gardeners and florists, interviewed yesterday, expressed the opinion that the show was the largest, and in many ways the most unusual indoor flower show ever held in the United States. They made especial point of the finished appearance of the landscaping and architecture in the individual exhibits of the garden clubs, the openness of the alles permitting better vision of exhibits, and the coördination of the individual classes of competition to give the combined exhibition a "professional aspect."

There is scarcely a flower familiar to Chicagoans that is not to be seen growing or freshly cut in some nook or greensward of the show, it was pointed out.

The garden of the Warren Wright estate of Golf, designed by D. Findley, was cited by judges as illustrative of the new and unusual effects being secured in formal gardens. The daisies, stocks, geraniums, lavender statice and hyacinth are grouped with lesser known plantings to produce a "soothing" appearance, yet a setting possible for even amateur gardeners to carry out with success in a measure.

The roses displayed in the commercial exhibits were popular yesterday. Among those carrying blue ribbons for growers within a short distance of Chicago—still the largest rose growing area of the central west—were seen: golden Pernet and Souvenir; light red Betty Uprichard, the rose red Ellen, Hollywood and Supreme; the tinged yellow Talisman, the white Killarney and the deep wine colored Pierson, Templar and Senior.

Carnation Exhibits.

In the carnation exhibits of the Chicago Carnation Growers association were displayed vases for carnations in every eventful period of milady's life, starting with the cradle bouquet. This exhibit is overhung with an American flag made of carnations.

Prizes were announced yesterday for several new competitions of the Garden Club of Illinois, whose gold medals were issued to the following for special gardens: Mrs. Ogden Armour, Warren Wright, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Morton Arboretum, Forest Preserve district, National Association of Gardeners [North Shore branch], North Shore Horticultural society, Lincoln park board, West park board, Illinois Nurserymen, Kenwood church [on its pulpit garden] and Vaughan's nursery.

Silver Medal Awards.

Silver medals of the garden club were issued to the Freeport Garden club for its iris garden; Rockford Garden club for the terrarium gardens; Garden club of Oak Park and River Forest for a bulb garden; Illinois department of agriculture for weed exhibit; and to Mrs. W. L. Karher, Freeport, for best "thought out feature," an inside and outside window treatment.

Purple ribbons were awarded to the Hawthorne Garden club for a green and white garden [only man's club in the state garden club], and Mrs. Minnie Robinson for a replica of Marie Antionette's garden.

The silver medal of the Garden Club of America was awarded the Joliet Floral and Garden club for its bog garden. A gold cup was awarded to A. C. Koengard for building the "Pit of Forest Preserves" characterized by the judges as the "most impressive exhibit in the show."

"YOUNG MAN!

LET ME TELL YOU HOW I'D BUILD A REFRIGERATOR"

I would begin with the inside of my refrigerator. I'd make it as big as I possibly could—and save every inch I could on outside measurements.

But room is no good unless it can be used. I'd plan my shelves to fit the things I put on them. Space for tall bottles—a container for green vegetables—a safe, handy place for butter and eggs. I'd make it easy to take dishes out, and put them back, and re-arrange them.

On my refrigerator, I want a door I can open with both hands full of dishes. Another great convenience that old-fashioned refrigerators do not have. Think what miles of walking it would save!

I use lots of ice, and I want to be able to freeze cubes or desserts in a hurry, without freezing other things on my shelves. Some foods need more cold than others. I'd provide a way of regulating temperatures to suit my needs.

Of course, I'd make my refrigerator beautiful. What woman wouldn't? Smart, modern cabinet design, but not extreme. I'd insist on white finishes—and I mean white that stays white. Finishes that are easy to keep clean, inside and out.

I don't know much about refrigerating mechanism. I'd leave that to the engineers. But I would insist that it be quiet and dependable—that it do its work. I'd leave construction to them, too—but it must be strong. I want my refrigerator to last a lifetime.

"MADAM you've just described the new Leonard"

Illustration by The New York Times Studios

To SALES and ADVERTISING Executives the Advertising Department of THE NEW YORK TIMES presents a complete New York Consumer Census, by R. L. Polk & Co. — a new and exact guide to this $5,500,000,000 market.

How near are you getting to your logical share of New York's business? How profitable is it?

Is your advertising and sales strategy right — for this market — most effective . . . most economical?

How and where can you maintain and increase volume of sales profitably?

The Consumer Census answers all questions as you have never had them answered before. It provides new and exact ideas on How to Sell New York — rapidly and profitably. It gives a new and clearer basis for understanding the immense sales-power of the advertising columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES — and how to make use of them. It, also, explains many of the outstanding successes in this market. R. L. Polk & Co. made this census independently of any newspaper. The accuracy and thoroughness with which it was made is in itself a fascinating story for anyone interested in marketing.

A New Look at the Top 4/10ths

BIG FACT NO. 1, disclosed by this new evidence, is that you have a tremendous and extra-profitable market in New York's Top 4/10ths — a bigger and infinitely more responsive market than the other 6/10ths.

BIG FACT NO. 2 is concrete proof that any advertiser will be wise to concentrate on the top 4/10ths first, and sell it thoroughly before attempting the other 6/10ths. All New York follows the lead of the Top 4/10ths anyhow.

It Measures THE TIMES unique power in the homes of the Top 4/10ths

This census proves things about THE NEW YORK TIMES which have long been recognized, but were never before reduced to concrete, complete figures and facts.

For one thing, it shows that you can reach the rich market of the Top 4/10ths using THE TIMES, at below average costs for sales and advertising.

It discloses a new measure of advertising power: "Home effectiveness" — which means the regular home reading of any newspaper as reported by the woman head of the family. And on this basis it shows that THE NEW YORK TIMES huge week-day home-effective circulation among Top 4/10ths families costs less, per home, than any other New York newspaper . . . 15% below the next nearest, 80% below the average of all. (And figures for the Sunday TIMES are parallel!)

There is immense value in this New York Consumer Census for anyone advertising or selling in New York City, or planning to do so, a sounder basis for plans and expenditures than has ever before existed. See and study it — any part, or all. The Advertising Department will arrange it for your convenience.

BELIEVED BY US — NOW PROVED TO YOU!

In New York homes in which newspapers are read:

THE NEW YORK TIMES leads all other newspapers in the number of families having checking accounts — 60 per cent. more than any other newspaper.

THE NEW YORK TIMES leads all others in the number of women purchasing street dresses over $7.50.

The average monthly rent is $50.75, while the average rent of THE TIMES families is $91.39. THE TIMES leads all other newspapers in number of families paying higher than average rent.

POPE PAYS PRESS HIGH TRIBUTE; BLESSES WRITERS

Pius Receives 80 Foreign Correspondents.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

VATCAN CITY, April 9.—Addressing 80 foreign newspapermen in a special audience at Consistory hall today, Pope Pius XI. paid high tribute to the press and its mission and function in modern society. He described the press as "a living force." The pope said that his special thanks is due the press, for "this holy year has been magnificent and successful, and a great part of the resonance it has had throughout the world was due to you and what you wrote about it."

"Therefore, we desired to see you personally and to thank you each separately and personally," said the pontiff.

The occasion was unique for two reasons. The first is that the Vatican had never before invited the press to come to see the pope. The second is that for today's audience the rule was suspended requiring all to kiss the pontiff's ring, for among the newspapermen many faiths and religions were represented.

Looks Hale and Hearty.

The pope looked hale and vigorous for all of his 77 years. He showed no signs of fatigue or strain from the severe labors he has undergone in receiving thousands of pilgrims who have come to Rome.

He first walked around the circle of newspapermen and was introduced to each personally. He asked questions and spoke a few words to each newspaperman.

Then he ascended the throne and spoke 15 minutes. In the audience was represented nearly every section of the world press, except soviet Russia and the Action Francaise of France. Chancellor Hitler's press of Germany, which is now quarreling with the Vatican, was heavily represented.

To visit the pope, all the correspondents went home at noon and donned evening clothes with black vest.

Pope's Words Significant.

The pontiff's words in behalf of the press and his delineation of its place and function in modern society are thrown into high relief at this time, as nearly every government of Europe and the world has put into force or is studying methods of how to gag or use the press.

"Your mission and function is to inform the world of events that take place; you are the mouthpiece, or rather," the pontiff corrected himself, "rather the loud speaker of events.

"You are loud speakers, but thinking loud speakers at the same time, each interpreting and reflecting the truth as he personally sees it, and this is as it should be."

The pontiff spoke in French. He was in complete mastery of the language, but repeated phrases or changed them from time to time in his effort to find the precise word. His words reflected a clear intellect and a firm will and great erudition, for he made repeated allusion to the church and scriptural writers.

"Gentlemen and dear sons," said the pope, "it gives up great joy and satisfaction to see you here, and it is a great pleasure to welcome you here to the house of the common father of all. We desired to see you personally in order to thank you personally. In the beautiful words of Saint Ambrose 'There is no duty more urgent than the duty of expressing thanks.'

Expresses His Thanks.

"So we thank you, and thank you repeatedly. Here in Rome you represent the press of the world. You tell the rest of the world what happens here. You have told the world of the holy year which ended at Easter—the holy year in Rome—but which we have wished now to extend to all the world for another year.

"We have spoken of our satisfaction in seeing you who have such an important mission. Your visit was the result of, and corresponded to, our desire.

"We should like to give you something, but as Saint Peter, our predecessor, said, we can only give you such things as we have. But our benediction we give you, with all our heart."

The holy father then said that he would give the benediction to all, even though some correspondents present would not be able to receive it in a liturgical sense. Nevertheless, he added, they could receive it in the etymological sense of the word, "because benediction means well wishes."

Pope Enjoys Audience.

"We wish you well, we wish well to your work and to those who work with you in the pursuit of truth, and we wish you well in the work of promoting the general union of humanity," he continued. "And that is the mission of the press, to bring the world closer together and spread the idea of union."

The pontiff seemed to greatly enjoy the audience to newspapermen and prolonged it much past the usual time until 2 o'clock.

Would You Pay $2.00 to Lose 50 Pounds of Fat?

Mrs. J. A. May of Pittsboro, N. C., writes: "I took Kruschen for reducing for 3 months and lost 50 lbs. It's the easiest and healthiest way. I weighed 180 and now weigh only 130. I feel better—look better than ever before."

Don't let burdensome fat make you inactive, pepless and unattractive—you, too, could be a lovely, slender, animated creature if you'd only take off that excess fat with a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts first thing every morning in a glass of hot water.

Kruschen is SAFE—that's why so many physicians prescribe it—it's actually a health treatment which establishes proper and normal body functioning, thus getting rid of ugly fat without leaving skin sagging or wrinkled—it brings new energy, clearer skin and freedom from fatigue. A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but little at any drug store the world over. You must be satisfied with results or money back.

BRITISH REQUEST NAZIS TO EXPLAIN ARMS COST RISE

Budget Is Discussed in Commons.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 9.—Germany's heavy budget estimates for armament expenditure were subject to a series of questions in the house of commons today when it reassembled after the Easter recess.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, in reply said that the British government is giving attention to the matter. He added that he had asked the British ambassador in Berlin to put a series of questions to Chancellor Hitler's government.

Under pressure of questions from R. J. G. Boothby, Conservative, and Brig.-Gen. E. L. Spears, husband of Mary Borden, Chicago novelist, Simon said that the German naval expenditures in 1933 were 183,000,000 marks [currently about $72,705,900], while the estimates for 1934 were 233,000,000 marks [currently about $92,570,900].

For the army and navy the comparative figures were $268,000,000 and $357,600,000, and for the air force $28,000,000 and $83,600,000.

Russia and Japan Wary.

GENEVA, April 9.—(AP)—Russia and Japan assumed vital positions in the disarmament question tonight, on the eve of a session of the steering committee of the Moribund world disarmament conference. Their relations strained in the orient, the two countries apparently are watching each other's armament moves closely.

Japan has resigned from the league, sponsor of the conference, while Russia is not a member.

Upon the steering committee will rest the decision of whether the conference, which went on the rocks when Germany withdrew last year, shall be called again into session.

With the road to disarmament strewn with big boulders, delegates appeared not too optimistic. There appeared the probability that Great Britain will try to push France toward reduction of arms as the price of effective guarantees of French security, asked of London by Paris.

May Restrict Pact to Europe.

Some leaders, in view of Russo-Japanese relations, believe disarmament must be handled primarily as a European problem. A plan has been envisaged by some to restrict a disarmament convention to European powers, plus European Russia. This project, which would legalize German rearmament and constitute a remodeling of the treaty of Versailles, presupposes liberty for Russia to arm without restraint in Asiatic Russia, because of the possibility of Japan's refusal to participate in treaty.

Montreal Elects Houde as Mayor; Rivals Swamped

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTREAL, Que., April 9.—Camillien Houde was elected mayor of Montreal today in one of the most sweeping victories ever recorded in Canada's largest city. He received 90,598 votes. Dr. Anatole Plante, Liberal party candidate, obtained 36,907 votes. Saluste Lavery, an anti-Semitic candidate, received 12,967 votes.

Woman Is Sought

Solution of the murder of Joseph Tierno, 31 years old, 704 South Racine avenue, a 20th ward political worker, who was found shot to death early Sunday morning in the 4600 block of Fifth avenue, centered yesterday in the police search for a woman companion who was seen drinking with him shortly before his body was found. Lieut. Louis Klatzco of the Fillmore police station discarded the theory that Tierno may have been slain because of his activities in behalf of the campaign of Daniel Pintozzi, Democratic candidate for nomination for state representative from the 17th district.

Sergts. Peter Sienkiewicz and Walter Kelly questioned Anthony Mingarelli, owner of a café at 612 South Western avenue. Mingarelli said that he did not knew the woman who was with Tierno in his place, but they had been there together several times.

An inquest into his death yesterday was continued until April 24 by Deputy Coroner Jacob A. Schewel to allow the police more time for investigation. His widow, Mrs. Angeline Tierno, testified she did not know of any motive for the slaying.

DOG CUSSES DOG AND COURT HAS TO SETTLE ROW

Los Angeles, Cal., April 9.—(AP)—"Abusive language" as used by one dog to another became a matter of court record today in an answer filed by Lewis A. Barnard to the $2,000 damage suit of Mrs. Lillian C. Fischer.

In the words of the answer, the breach of canine etiquette took place as follows:

"The plaintiff asked to see our dog, that she wanted our dog to make friends with hers. She walked right up to our dog and held her dog's head to our dog's head, her dog still barking and growling.

"Evidently he used insulting and abusive language as it was very apparent our dog was grieved, irked, humiliated, and driven to desperation by the audacity of such a little upstart coming into our front yard and addressing him, an aristocrat, in such a manner.

"Our dog made a spring at plaintiff's dog as any self-respecting dog would have done under similar circumstances. Plaintiff moved suddenly and was bitten in the side when our dog missed his objective."

Mrs. Fischer asks $1,926 general damages and $74 for doctor bills and ruined clothing.

German Planes Set New Ocean Air Mail Record

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

STUTTGART, April 9.—When a Lufthansa plane landed here today with mail dispatched Friday from Pernambuco, Brazil, the record for air transport over this route of 5,500 miles was reduced by half a day. Four Lufthansa planes in relay, with the steamship Westfalen in midocean as a refueling base, made the journey in 2 days 23 hours 45 minutes. The best previous time was 3 days 12 hours.

RUMANIA SEIZES ARMY LEADERS IN PLOT TO KILL KING

Carol's Aid in His Return from Exile Held.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 9.—(AP)—A plot to bomb the Domniska Balascha cathedral at an orthodox midnight Easter service and kill King Carol, the crown prince, and members of the government was believed by authorities tonight to have been planned by Col. Prekup, of the Rumanian general staf. The colonel is under arrest.

Officials thought also it had been planned to slay Mme. Magda Lupescu, friend of King Carol.

The affair was kept a secret from the public throughout the Easter holidays and even political circles were ignorant of it.

Ten Army Officials Seized.

It was learned that the alleged plot may have been motivated by a desire for revenge for the unsatisfactory reward Col. Prekup believed he received for the leading part he played in the return of Carol from exile in 1930.

Among the ten high army officers who were arrested in connection with the reported conspiracy were Gen. Schmidt, head of the poison gas department of the war ministry; Capt. Mocyulscy, inspector of the gendarmerie; Maj. Nicoara of the engineering staf, and Col. Patraulea.

Plans to capture the alleged plotters by delivering fake bombs and grenades to Bucharest agents were made after Marc. 23, when a former student of Alexander Lapedatu, minister for Transylvania, revealed the plot to him.

Premier Orders Arrests.

The minister communicated immediately with Premier Tatarescu, who arranged for concerted action by local elements in the army, and thus made possible the arrests Saturday night.

Many students also were held for arranging street demonstrations.

On March 23 police disclosed plans to assassinate the premier and other government leaders. Prof. Gomoju, prominent Rumanian surgeon, and a member of the national organization, Koitur Expatria, was arrested then and charged with sending threatening letters to government leaders. He is a close friend of Helen, the divorced wife of King Carol.

Later the secretary of the interior ministry said "documentary evidence" insulting the monarch was found in the professor's residence.

U. S. BATTLE FLEET QUITS CALIFORNIA ON WAY TO ATLANTIC

San Pedro, Cal., April 9. — (AP) — The bulk of the United States naval power — 100 fighting ships carrying some 35,000 men—today headed for the Atlantic coast to carry out extended maneuvers.

Far in the van of this armada three squadrons of the navy's largest patrol planes also began winging their way south. These squadrons, comprising 15 planes, were hopping from San Diego to the Canal Zone.

There were nine dreadnaughts, nine heavy cruisers, one cruiser tender and eight train force ships that steamed out of San Pedro.

From San Diego departed eight light cruisers, three aircraft carriers, one mobile target ship, 50 destroyers, of which 28 are assigned to the battle force and 22 to the scouting force; two destroyer tenders, four submarines, a submarine tender, a submarine rescue ship, and al aircraft base ship.

The warships took southerly courses, immediately going into cruising exercises. These exercises led to the formation of two great fleets. One was under command of Admiral Joseph Mason Reeves and the other under Vice Admiral Frank Hardeman Brumby.

Quicker Relief Now From Pain

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. Millions are now employing it—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence, to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glasses, above, tell the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Power lost hours from headache, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

Yellow Cab

So that the Public May Know—

YELLOW CAB hasn't faltered in its service to Chicago at any time during its 20 years of existence.

Its ready comprehension of what is needed and desired in a taxicab system, and its ability to supply it on all occasions, has established a standard that has never been paralleled in America.

Its equipment has constantly been up to the hour—its drivers the most experienced men available, and its FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY has ever been present to protect the riding public.

Now, we have reached the point where our present low rate of fare is not sufficient to maintain the system as it has been, and as you want it, or to pay our drivers and other employees a living wage.

At your request, we readily agreed to give this low rate a fair and exhaustive test. The result has been disastrous. Patronage was satisfactory during the World's Fair, because of the excessive volume. But since then, our volume has fallen off to an alarming extent, and cost of everything has materially advanced.

Our earnest request to the public is to give us a better rate—not the one which prevailed previous to the test—but a rate which will give our drivers a living wage, and enable this matchless taxicab system to go on, as it has for 20 years.

Our books have been opened to the authorities who have verified our position and know that our every contention has been backed by figures and facts.

MOB MISCHIEF.

Rioting by employés of the CWA in Minneapolis is an inevitable result of the theory that government is in duty bound to support every citizen. When men have become accustomed to receive public money, and especially when they have been told, as they have been in recent months, that it is their right to receive it, that they are innocent victims of social and economic justice, they are ready for violence the moment there is any reduction or cessation of the government's donation. The professional agitator and demagog finds his opportunity and the folly and mischief of futile and destructive rioting break forth.

There is no shadow of moral excuse for the action of the Minneapolis mob or of any other mob in this country. Huge sums have been pouring out of the public treasury for the relief of the unemployed. The public and all private enterprise is being taxed to the limit to sustain this expenditure. An elaborate and even revolutionary program has been inaugurated to bring about employment and relief of hardship. Whether the program is wise or effective or not, it demonstrates a will to help the less fortunate, and violent resistance or protest has no excuse. It is the result of the inflammatory and unsound propaganda for which members of the administration itself share responsibility, but it should not, and in any self-respecting American community will not, be tolerated.

In Minnesota demoralizing conditions in politics, weak administration of law and lack of civic spirit have prepared the way for this breach of order, but the outbreak should remind the responsible and law abiding people of the whole nation that they have been too complacent toward subversive influences and that they must exercise their strength to suppress them. Mobs do not represent the spirit, intelligence, or any vital interest of the American people. They do not represent any respectable cause. They represent irrational emotion inflamed by vicious or foolish propaganda, a good deal of it in high places.

Order is the first essential of civilized life, and in our country there is no excuse for any attack upon it. So-called leaders who have unconsciously prepared the way for it, while imagining they were avoiding it, should realize their mistake or be repudiated by the intelligence and character of the nation. Rioters should be put down, not conciliated and bribed to keep the peace and obey the law. The overwhelming majority of the American people insist upon orderly processes and have no intention to submit to the dictation of perverted and misled minorities.

The agencies of intelligent public sentiment and of effective public defense are quite able to deal with the agitators and their following, but it is time for good citizenship to assert itself. Officials should be made to understand that they have the support of all substantial citizens and that the support is fully adequate. They should be made to understand especially that they are expected to maintain order. The weakness shown in Minneapolis is the result of a lack of vigorous public spirit which has allowed extremists and political corruptionists to collaborate in mischief making. Other communities should examine their own conditions and see to it that their resources of orderly government have not been undermined. The morale of the nation has been weakened, not only by economic misfortunes but also by irresponsible or deliberately hostile propaganda and by mistaken policies. It is significant that, in spite of bettered conditions and the continuance of effort to improve them, violence of sentiment and action has increased among those who have been and are the chief object of government aid and private philanthropy. Under such conditions substantial citizenship must assert itself against the subversive forces at work in the nation.

STRANGE VOTING.

An analysis of the vote on the Canadian seaway treaty will produce a number of surprises, as well as a field for conjecture as to what influences may direct senators' actions. Generally speaking, the Atlantic seaboard states voted against the measure, while the west supported it. The Pacific seaboard states were divided, Washington voting solidly in favor of the treaty, Oregon just as firmly against it, and California adding its two votes to the list of proponents.

But the greatest number of surprises can be found in the vote of the states dependent largely on the coal industry. Despite a resolution condemning the treaty by the legislature of the state of Kentucky both its senators cast votes for ratification. Indiana, Ohio, and Tennessee also voted solidly for the measure despite the assertions of treaty advocates that development of hydro-electric energy at the St. Lawrence would displace a market for fifty-eight million tons of coal and the patent fact that a further Canadian market for seventeen million tons now enjoyed by American coal producers would be thrown open to the mines of the world.

Another surprise is afforded by the states of Mississippi, which split its vote, and Tennessee, which voted solidly for the treaty. Both states have furnished many warm advocates of the lakes to gulf waterway, which would be rendered impotent by the diversion clause in the treaty. Memphis now has direct service by water to Chicago and other cities located on the great lakes, which would not be possible with the restricted navigation diversion at Chicago, an outstanding concession in the treaty.

THE NEGLECTED CITIES.

While hundreds of millions of dollars have been appropriated by the Public Works administration for construction of useless power plants, reclamation dams, etc., the housing division of the PWA marks time and reads reports. The latest achievement in this line is the report from Cleveland which attempts to prove what every one knew already, that shanty areas are costly to protect against fire, crime, and contagion.

A convincing case can be made against the doctrine that a nation can squander its way back to prosperity and a powerful argument can be made against using public money to build houses for citizens, but there is no defense for a government which, while spending billions of dollars in public works, deliberately neglects the one kind of public work, housing, which is likely to come closest to being self-liquidating. Billions for the desert, says PWA, but only windy reports for the cities. Most of the idle are found in the cities and the cities will have to pay the lion's share of the costs of all public works construction, wherever it may take place. But those facts are forgotten. Nothing as practical as three airy rooms and a bath and nothing as sightly as a garden can get to first base in competition with the megalomaniac reclamation schemes.

A DEMOCRATIC BOSS IN REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

Mr. Harold Ickes is the secretary of the interior in a Democratic administration, but that has not prevented him from issuing instructions to Republican voters in the Tenth Illinois district on how they should vote in the Republican primary. He has told them he disapproves of Mr. Simpson, the present congressman, and greatly prefers Mr. Church.

Mr. Ickes a year ago deserted his party, which is any man's privilege whether he gets a job in Washington for his desertion or not. But having joined the Democrats, Mr. Ickes could hardly continue to claim rights of leadership in the party of his former allegiance. Mr. Ickes ate his cake but he wants it still. That might indicate a great naïveté about the decencies of party organization and government, but with his long experience in politics Mr. Ickes' conduct can hardly be explained as naïve.

Mr. Ickes is deliberately striving to become a Democratic boss in Republican politics. What else can this man, getting his bread and butter as a Democrat, mean by taking part in a Republican primary? As a Democrat he will not be allowed to support the winner. As a Democratic leader he can participate in the Republican primary only to favor the weaker candidate or to favor a candidate who, if elected, will follow Democratic leadership.

Mr. Ickes seems to have learned something from his communist associates. He is pursuing the characteristic communist strategy of boring from within.

A VICTORY FOR PUBLIC SAFETY.

An effort of the Chicago Teamsters' union to hamper State's Attorney Courtney's courageous campaign against racketeering by way of injunction has failed in the refusal of a writ by Chancellor Denis Sullivan, who has accepted the findings of Master in Chancery Sidney Pollack. Judge Sullivan, while recognizing the right of collective bargaining and the right to strike, pointed out that the latter must not be arbitrarily used by employés of the city protected by the civil service law and charged with the performance of service upon which depend the health, welfare and safety of a great metropolitcan city. The strike in question, evidence showed, was called without notice to the city and even without the knowledge of many members of the union, and Judge Sullivan held that State's Attorney Courtney and the police had carried out their duties in the measure taken when several hundred employés of the health department were called out.

Mr. Courtney and Commissioner Allman have charged that hoodlums, racketeers and kidnapers dominated this union, which is not recognized by the federation, and that its effort to enjoin the state's attorney, Mayor Kelly and his commissioner was without equity.

The public and reputable union labor will welcome this decision which supports the mayor and state's attorney in their commendable effort to rid the community of one of its worst afflictions.

WORK RELIEF CHANGES FORM.

[Bloomington Pantagraph.]

This community in common with every other in the country feels the effect of the termination of the government program of help for the unemployed which has been in progress since last November under the heading of Civil Works administration, or CWA for short.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 workers in McLean county have felt the effect of the change, more than 100,000 in Illinois and perhaps two or three million in the country at large.

A large proportion of those suddenly separated from federal pay rolls under the CWA program will be compelled to return at once to local relief lists. Just what proportion will depend on local situations as to unemployment.

But the situation as to help for the unemployed is not as bad as it might first seem.

National Relief Director Harry L. Hopkins announced from Washington Saturday that no man or head of a family shall suffer want in this country as long as the federal government can command a dollar to help. Therefore plans are made for almost immediate switch of the employed persons under CWA to some other form of temporary employment, the funds for which will be furnished by the government, in a sort of modified public works project. The transfer will be made as quickly and as painlessly as possible. Mr. Hopkins says he still has six hundred million dollars left of the sum originally appropriated by congress for direct relief, and this will be used under the new program.

Locally, much work will be entailed in the change of federal plans. But other distressing situations which have developed here in the last three years have been effectually met, and in this instance the organization already set up will take care of the relief, with coöperation of the community in furnishing as many jobs as possible.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How he did like it is his quips tell where they may. W. S.

BEES

Out in the orchard under the trees
He keeps a hundred hives of bees.
He gives them shelter, he gives them care,
And takes each season a goodly share
Of their honey hoard. Their God is he,
Whom they all obey unwittingly
And complainingly, when he contrives
To alter the routine of their hives
And interfere with their tiny lives.
Not knowing the goodness of his scheme,
Sometimes they bitterly blaspheme,
And sting the hand that in gentleness
He stretches to aid them in distress.
Yet ever with patient omnipotence
He comes to their succor and defense.
Their little lives are as frail as brief
As the budding and withering of a leaf;
His is to them an eternity,
And every expanding apple tree
That spreads its branches above is far
As a universe of sun and star.
He keeps the bees and he shapes their lives
To a definite pattern in their hives—
To a destined end; and still the bees
In their self-sufficient colonies
Lust and labor and carry on Through epochs that open with each dawn.
Breeding, distilling, within their homes
Of cozy, cellular amber combs,
In harmony for the common good,
Nectar to nourish each new-born brood.
"If men would follow their destinies,"
Said I to the Keeper of the Bees,
"In communal fellowship, nor strive
As individuals in the hive,—
If all the honey they fetch were stored
By them in a common golden hoard,
How happy the lot of all, and free
From hate and envy and penury!"
"Not so," replied the Keeper to me;
"I know the Marxian philosophy
Of one for all and none for one,
And I know bees. What has it done
For them? The working bees and the drones
For a million years in sunny zones
Have lived their smug and contented lives,
Concordantly in their common hives,
And never an individual
Has broken away from the gripping thrall
Of groveling slavery to all.
The best of bees and the worst of bees
Remain through ages as like as peas,
Maintaining their mediocrity
And getting nowhere at all," said he.
"Men have struggled and fought each other,
Brother pitted against a brother,
Greedily, cruelly, age on age
('Tis the Cain and Abel heritage);
Yet ever the strong when they reached the peak
Have lifted, a little way, the weak,
And ever the rich have helped the poor
To things they could not themselves secure.
"The bee goes seeking along the sod
For largess honey, while I, his God,
Raised to heights which he does not dare,
By strife of many a brave forebear,

EOLUS.

AND THIS IS THE TIME of year I always take a solemn oath never to drive faster on the country roads than the speed laws permit. And this time I'm going to keep it, too, but in the states that haven't got a speed limit then I'll hold down to fifty miles an hour. I swear it! Yessir, even if somebody in a rattling, dirty old flivver comes up from behind and passes me with the merry quip, "What's the matter, Clarence? Are you anchored or something?" But I may throw the monkey wrench at 'em. And I'd like to throw the whole tool box.

But There Science Fails!

Sir: The inventor of that new leapfrog automobile has done a pretty good job. BUT—we're not worrying about skipping the pedestrians; what we want to skip are monthly installments.

MORT FRIEDMAN.

I'VE FOUND A WAY to stop 'em. When some enthusiast begins to tell me how wonderful is Charles Dickens' "Life of Christ." I always say, "Yes, but I like the simpler story of Luke's much better." Then they always say, "Luke who?" And when I tell them they look somewhat chastened and ask me if I think it is going to rain.

SONNET FOR MY LITTLE SON.

Once, cruelly racked, I visioned hov'ring Death
And saw him, not in churl, but strangely kind;
I almost touched his hand, I felt his breath,
I reached for Death with craven, pain fogged mind.
Then came the mem'ry of a happier day,
When we had walked together through the wood
And lifting gently broad, slick leaves away,
Disclosed shy copper cups, wild ginger's brood;
And dug the rare white trillium with delight
For your dear hands to carry home at length;
And watched the scarlet tanager in flight.
Unknowingly we gathered flowers of strength—
Their pungent tang the stimulant to live

EATING FATS.

THE ketogenic diet is one that is so very rich in fats as to maintain the body in the condition known as acidosis. The acids in the body resulting from this type of dieting are those of the aromatic type, resulting from burning of fats. The practical point in using this diet is to make use of as much fat as possible and camouflaged as much as is possible. The route to be steered clear of are loss of appetite and fat-caused nausea and indigestion.

The fats to be used are those that have the least greasy taste. The recipes used and the dishes made are those in which the greasy taste is hidden as much as possible. The latter problem is similar to that which confronted the pharmacists who were called on to devise mixtures of castor oil which would appeal to the palate. Well chilled fat tastes less greasy than warm fat. Pork cooked in certain ways is greasier than when otherwise prepared. Salad dressings are less objectionable to the taste than is the oil that enters into them. The cooks who prepare ketogenic diets could learn some lessons from the pharmacists who have wrestled with the problem of making castor oil a soda fountain drink.

In the first of the two fields most people do not regard butter, cream cheeses, and creams as tasting particularly greasy. A ketogenic diet for a day, made use of by some physicians and dietitians, is as follows:

Breakfast: 2 eggs, 1 ounce butter, 2 ounces bacon fried in butter, 1 roll with 1 ounce butter, 1 cup coffee.

Luncheon: 3 ounces meat cooked with 1 ounce butter, vegetables to suit the appetite, vegetable salads with oil dressings, 4 ounces stewed fruits served with 2 ounces cream, 1 roll served with ½ ounce butter, 1 cup coffee served with cream.

Dinner: 3 ounces fish, 1 ounce butter, 1 or more vegetables cooked with butter or served with cheese, stewed fruit served with 2 ounces cream, 1 roll served with 1 ounce butter.

In this combination there are 7½ ounces of butter and about 7 ounces of 20 per cent cream.

The diet makes use of butter fats almost to the exclusion of fat from other sources. There is a little pork or other meat fat and one dish containing olive oil. No use is made of nuts and other vegetables as sources of fats.

The present field for the use of the ketogenic diet is in the treatment of certain forms of epilepsy, certain forms of headaches, and in colon infections of the urinary tract.

COMMON COLDS.

W. E. S. writes: A common cold is apparently a self-limited infection, resistant to all medical intervention, as has been demonstrated by countless observers, and recently by Dr. Diehl of the University of Minnesota. But prophylaxis is a horse of another color, as witness the experience of this writer:

An obscure but profound metabolic idiosyncrasy has been for decades evidenced in him by frequent migraines and by a chronic, subacute nasopharyngitis. The latter often had flared up into a severe coryza, on very slight provocation, such as fatigue, loss of sleep, digestive disturbance. Faithful ingestion of fruit juices, especially citrus, has totally inhibited these recurring colds.

It is a biological commonplace that cell activity is most efficient in a nearly neutral plasm, and there is some weighty clinical evidence going to show that that neutrality of the blood stream or some factors closely related to its maintenance are concerned, causally, with immunity or with lack of it, to infections of the respiratory tract. Precisely how this balance is maintained is not clearly understood; it is partly humoral, partly electrical, and is in any case by no means a simple matter, and still less is immunity.

MUSCLES AND DIET.

M. B. F. writes: What foods promote the strength and elasticity of the muscles in the human body? Would the use of these foods prevent or cure the sagging of tissues and internal organs from which aged people so often suffer?

REPLY.

Most of the notions about eating specific foods for specific tissues, such as fish as a brain food, are entirely without foundation. To develop muscles one should work and exercise. Diet plays a minor part. And yet there is some reason for thinking eating meat and eggs is of some service. Research work on certain diseases of muscles shows that some amino acids are capable of feeding diseased muscles unusually well. These amino acids exist in good combinations in meat foods.

RESULT OF FIREMEN'S EXAMINATION.

Chicago, April 6.—[Friend of the People.]—When will the results of the last examination [December, 1933] for firemen [fire department] be made known? Will an applicant who has been found eligible be notified by mail or by public announcement and bulletin of his status, rank, or eligibility? Approximately how long will it take before appointments of the new list of eligibles is begun?

T. N. D.

I wish to advise that owing to the large number of candidates and the volume of work necessary to rate the papers it will be some months before the results of the examination recently completed for firemen can be posted.

Candidates are not notified by mail or otherwise of the results of the examination. The list of eligibles will be posted on the bulletin board in the rooms of the commission.

JAMES S. OSBORNE,
Secretary Civil Service Commission.

CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CORPS.

Chicago, April 6.—[Friend of the People.]—I want to join the Civilian Conservation Corps. Will a boy whose family is not on relief be permitted to join? Where and when will the next enrollment take place?

H. S.

Enrollments for Civilian Conservation Corps [CCC] will begin the first week in April and continue until quotas are completed. No waiting list of applicants is being kept. An interested applicant should obtain referral from his relief office if his family is receiving or has received relief. If he is not known to the relief services he may be enrolled by direct application to the Public Relations Office, 310 West Madison street, after April 9.

S. H. OLMSTED,
Supervisor Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare.

DISPOSITION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, April 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife's father died leaving a small estate. He left no will. There are four heirs. The day of the funeral my wife's brother persuaded her to go to the courthouse and sign her name so he could be administrator. Her father told her he had $500 in a lock box. 1. Her brother says there was nothing in the box but two certificates. 2. Can he be administrator in spite of the fact that only one of the heirs signed? 3. Is it necessary to employ a lawyer? 4. Can he go to the lock box without the others being present? 5. Can he settle the estate without notifying the rest of the heirs?

J. C. C.

1. It would be legally improper for him to have opened the box without first having an inheritance tax examination.

2. Yes.

3. Ordinarily it is advisable to employ an attorney for probate proceedings. If that is what you mean to ask.

4. Yes, but see 1.

5. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MARRIAGE.

Chicago, April 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was married nine and one-half years ago and have been separated from my husband for nine years. I have not seen him in that time and do not know where he is. I have been told that after eight years a person is legally considered dead. If this is so, could I be legally married without going through a divorce, or what would legally have to be done? I was married in Chicago. M. M.

Since the presumption of death would not stand against possible proof that your husband actually is alive, we strongly advise against contracting another marriage in reliance on the mere presumption of death. You should secure a divorce.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

From Across the Sea

BY R. M. SAYERS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BELFAST.—The Northern Ireland government's plans to counter President De Valera's bid for an All-Ireland republic are disclosed in a new bill introduced in the Ulster house of commons.

Ulster loyalists have been losing ground, particularly along the border. When farms become vacant they are invariably bought up by newcomers from the south with republican sympathies. This has been so marked that the loyalist population in these constituencies has been dwindling, and the encroachment from the Free State, representing a policy of peaceful penetration, has created fears in the breasts of the official loyalist party.

The Orange order has been clamoring for government action to put a stay on what they interpret as Roman Catholic aggression.

The government has responded with a measure which imposes a seven years' residence qualification before a newcomer can vote. Thus a person shifting his domicile in 1935 from south of the border into any of the six northern counties could not have a say in an Ulster parliamentary election or local governmental election until after 1942.

The measure is denounced by Nationalists and Republicans as the imposition of a penal code and a surrender to "the howl of mob orators."

The bill also strikes a blow at abstentionist policy. It provides that before nomination for Northern Ireland parliamentary elections prospective candidates must sign a declaration before a witness of their intention to take their seats and comply with the law and standing orders of the house.

At the last parliamentary election in November four Republican candidates nominated for Northern Ireland constituencies declared that, if elected, they would not take the oath to the king or their seats. One of these, P. M'Logan, was elected for South Armagh. Neither he nor President De Valera, who was elected as Fianna Fail candidate for South Down, has taken his seat.

THE CWA IN THE FOREST PRESERVES.

Chicago, April 5.—This is in answer to a letter about the forest preserves signed by "Puzzled," appearing April 4.

The area from Wolf road west to the Du Page county line has been subject for a number of years to extremely heavy use and because of lack of automobile control, a very considerable damage. An air map of the area showed 39,000 feet of roadway which had been cut through the area by automobiles. To prevent this serious condition we have developed adequate parking spaces north and south of the creek with the shortest possible driveway leading thereto. We have substituted for the 39,000 feet of auto trails previously existing 4,200 feet in the present development.

In addition, carefully located bridle and hiking trails have been constructed which provide for necessary and proper recreation and at the same time serve as fire breaks. Fire breaks are an acknowledged method of control throughout the United States.

The design of an area never follows an arbitrary standard but tries to produce the finest possible compromise between the preservation of the native forest for which the district was primarily created and the demand of practical and human necessity which arise in any particular case. The parking spaces and driveways are located in areas which were already open and no cutting of consequence has been necessary to accomplish them.

"Puzzled" speaks of the large prairie which has been plowed and harrowed. These large open fields were turned over to the relief commission and have been used as gardens for the poor. Your issue of the same date [April 4] carries a story to the effect that 750 acres of forest preserve open lands had been delegated to that proper purpose. It is true that probably one hundred birds have been robbed of their nesting places, but meanwhile many people have been permitted to grow foodstuff which they certainly need.

The development is entirely one of protection to natural woodlands and the forest will improve every year from now on both in its nativity and in its health.

The development of automobile control by use of parking spaces in the forest preserve district has received national approval by authorities in control of native landscapes for the use of people. The nature lover who proposes that the four million people of this county shall be excluded from the forest preserves so that trees and birds may thrive is certainly out of order. The purpose of these great woodlands is for the education and recreation of the people, and they must be prepared for the reception of large crowds, and this is what we are accomplishing.

CHARLES G. SAUBER,
General Superintendent, Forest Preserve District.

CHEAPER TRANSPORTATION.

Chicago, April 4.—I notice in the editorial appearing in the April 4 issue, under the heading "Transport Doing Its Part," is mentioned bus transportation. I hope that we will never have universal bus transportation, as it is anything but comfortable riding. The standing room in the buses is very uncomfortable and the smell from the gasoline is nauseating. If Mayor Kelly wants a 5 cent fare, I suggest that he use the $60,000,000 that the surface lines paid into the treasury to reduce the valuation of the surface lines by buying up the indebtedness amounting to $60,000,000, therefore reducing the capitalization. I suppose he would resent this for the reason that the city has not the money to pay over the $60,000,000 which they used for other purposes, but if cheaper transportation is wanted, that would be one way to solve the overhead cost. EDWARD LAPOUCH.

PRIORITY TO MARRIED MEN.

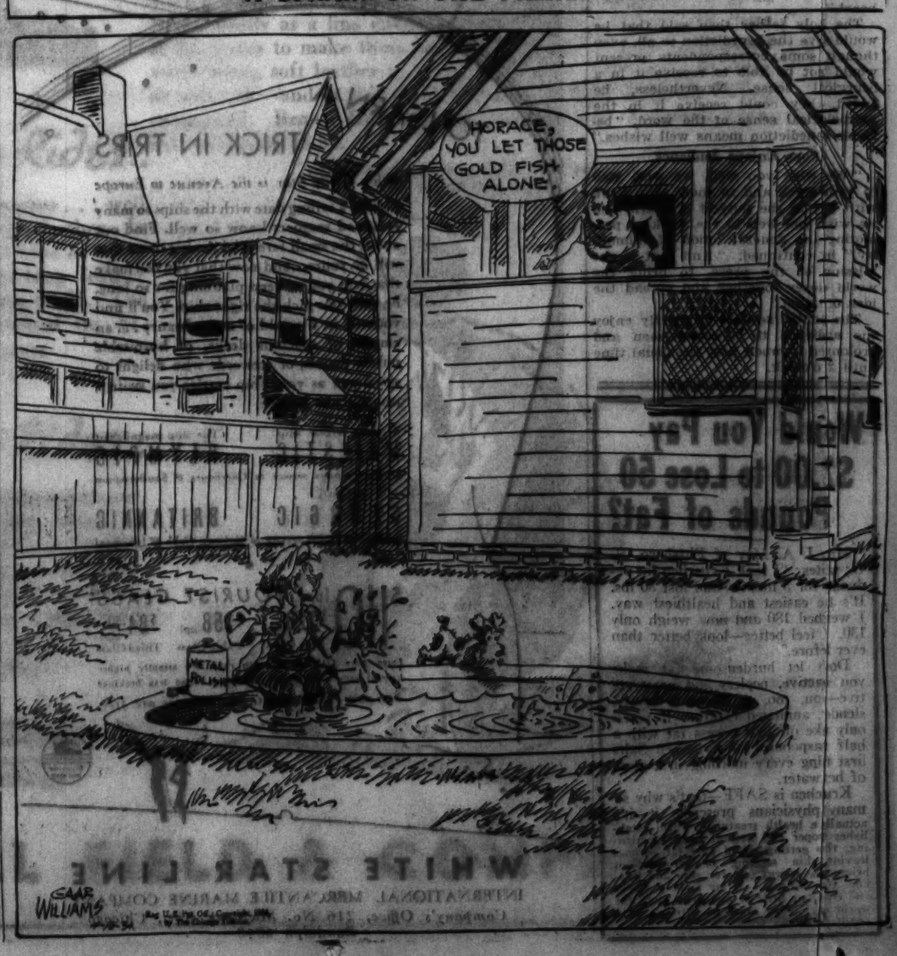
Chicago, April 2.—In a recent newspaper article it is stated that in the automobile industry preference is to be given to married men with families. It appears that ability and ambition, the very bulwark of our nation, are to be disregarded in their entirety.

In preparing this code it seems that the administration overlooked the fact that such a condition as this will have a tendency to cause many men who are financially unable to marry and create large families. If they are unable to provide for these large families the government or the local communities will have a larger burden in an increased number to support. INTERESTED.

THE FEDERAL PAY ROLL.

Lake Bluff, Ill., March 30.—Regarding the statement published in today's Tribune to the effect that congress had restored the bulk of the federal employes' pay cut, I wish to say that this statement is incorrect. Congress has restored 5 per cent of the cut, which is only about a fourth of the total cut. At the time of the passage of the bill federal employes were receiving a cut of 15 per cent, plus two days a month payless furlough. This payless furlough made the percentage of reduction in the wage 23 per cent. HARRY M. BURBACK.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE



BELGIUM TO BAN POLITICAL ARMIES TO CURB RIOTING

Seeks to Forbid Wearing of Uniforms.

BRUSSELS, April 9.—(AP)—Weekend political clashes in which a communist was slain and more than a score of persons were injured focused attention for the first time on the rise of the Nationalist organization called the Blue Shirts.

The Blue Shirts are pledged to rid Belgium of all political parties and the "present rotten régime," and so dangerous did they seem tonight that the government ordered quick parliamentary consideration of a measure banning the wearing of political uniforms by any group.

Rioting started when the Nationalists opened their Brussels headquarters and the clashes spread throughout the capital and the neighboring localities.

Blue Shirt Kills Red.

A Blue Shirted Nationalist named Geevaerts was thrown from his bicycle by a communist. Geevaerts pulled out a knife and inflicted deep wounds on his assailant, named Debacker. The communist died later.

At least ten communists and fifteen Blue Shirts were injured in hand to hand fighting.

The authorities feared that the rioting might break out again and special precautions were taken. The police watched for threatened reprisals of the communists for the death of their comrade.

Headquarters of the Nationalists at Eckeren were sacked when Blue Shirts and Socialists clashed there. One Socialist was wounded seriously.

Jobless Are Recruited.

The Blue Shirts have emerged as a political power in just the last few weeks. In three months Nationalist groups have been organized in 25 districts and unconfirmed reports say that the Blue Shirts engage in semi-military training.

Students and unemployed are being recruited, it was stated, the latter being offered free or cheap lodgings.

The bill which the government wants approved would ban all uniforms of such organized elements as the Nationalists and would tighten the restrictions for the manufacture and sale of firearms.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

A Perverse Turkey.

April 9, 1934.

ANOTHER hen turkey upset the farm schedule this morning. Last week Rawlings had his troubles with one turkey hen which insisted on a "State and Madison street" atmosphere for her nest and built her home in the sheepfold among the ba-a-ing lambs and ewes. This morning Rawlings noticed a hen kicking up a rumpus back of his house. He walked over to see what all the excitement was about and there was the bird fussing around and trying to build a nest within a couple of feet of the back door of the house. In spite of all the excellent locations around the place for a turkey to build a nest and sit on a clutch of eggs, this hen picks out a spot next to the house where she wouldn't have a minute's peace or quiet. Rawlings is just about ready to give up on the game of outguessing these queer birds. He ousted this bird from her would-be nest, but from now on anything goes. If a turkey hen wants to roost in a chimney, the haymow or the smokehouse it's all right with Rawlings.

Those two mice which were seen in the smokehouse are no more. They have been caught. So now the meat should be safe from rodent attacks. Rawlings caught these mice just as we were finishing our clean-up of the rats in the horse barn. I have made another check on that barn and from all indications the red squill poison did a good job. Inasmuch as every rat eats on an average of $2 worth of food per year, the statistics on the granary in the horse barn ought to show a "net gain" in the future. [Seven big fellows were caught in the granary.]

The interesting thing about the attack on the rats was this: Everything that was used worked. They were caught in live traps. They nibbled at baits in spring traps and went for the red squill baits in a big way. Next week I am going to put out a few more red squill baits just to pick up any stragglers or new arrivals. Then the program is to go after the rat population of another barn.

Clarence is pleased about the condition of two 40 acre fields that are to grow new seeding for clover hay. On a walk through the fields he found the condition of the new seeding to be very good.

Fuel for the tractors has been delivered, so everything is ready to start work in the fields. The oil men left two grades of oil and both kerosene and gasoline when he called to fill up the underground tanks. It looks as if it won't be long until the tractors go roaring across the fields. Clarence has the discs and seeders all tuned up for work, too. Another job finished today was putting 320 bushels of medium early oats over the sieves of the fanning mill and then shoveling it in the bins. These oats are now ready to be put in the ground. Clarence is just waiting for the right weather to do this.

There will be about 200 acres to sow with these medium early oats. Clarence will use a drill on about half of this acreage and broadcast seeds on the other half.

The April showers have brought a new flush of green to the meadows and new life to the noisy grackles and sparrows which are fighting over nesting sites near the house. What a racket these birds are making over territorial building rights!

Moscow Consulate Issues First Passports to Yanks

MOSCOW, April 9.—(AP)—Henry H. Ware of Claremont, Cal., a student of political science here, today received the first passport issued by the new American consulate. Running him a close second was John M. Nielson, Detroit factory designer. Their passports had expired. More than 20 claimants of American citizenship line up daily outside the door of Consul General George Hanson, in the Savoy hotel, seeking passports so that they may return to the United States.

LIVE WIRES FALL IN LOOP.

Firemen were summoned yesterday to dispose of live wires which created a menace to passersby after a truck knocked down an electric light pole in Clark street opposite the Hotel Sherman.

She Can Stand His Drinking but Not His Bottle Tossing

Mrs. Margaret M. Olis, 3746 Wrightwood avenue, told Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday that she wanted a divorce because her husband made a practice of throwing empty gin bottles at her. Her attorney, Harry X. Cole, told the judge that Mrs. Olis objected to having her husband drink so much, but she could have stood that if he hadn't thrown bottles. Judge Desort granted her the divorce, and instructed the husband, a machinist, to pay the doctor bills incurred by Mrs. Olis due to gin bottle injuries.

CHINESE LEADERS TO ACT TODAY ON ROW WITH JAPAN

Chiang Calls Conference in New Crisis.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SHANGHAI, April 10.—[Tuesday.]—As a result of the critical situation in North China, Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has summoned Premier Wang Ching-wei, Finance Minister H. H. Kung, and other high officials of the Nanking government to Nanchang for a conference in the generalissimo's headquarters tomorrow. The conference also will include Gen. Huang Fu, head of the Peiping political committee, who has been in Nanchang for the past two days. He is trying to induce Marshal Chiang to agree to Japanese demands for resumption of relations with Manchukuo.

Japan "Losing Patience."

The situation in North China is rapidly approaching another crisis. It became more serious yesterday when Col. Shibayama, Japanese military attaché, issued a statement in which he said:

"Japan has been patiently lenient regarding China's nonobservance of various promises, but there is a limit to Japanese patience. The Japanese are aware of the delicate nature of the relations of China and Manchukuo, but, pending China's recognition of Manchukuo, we are desirous of China's disposal of various outstanding questions, including the resumption of railway and postal communications and other matters which are responsible for the unpleasant feeling in North China."

Resent Japan's Pressure.

Chinese newspapers claim that Japan is pressing China to recognize Manchukuo in order to eliminate the Manchurian issue as a source of friction in connection with the forthcoming Japanese-American conversations pertaining to the naval conference.

Mr. Yamamoto, representative of the Japanese Athletic federation, today threatened Japan's withdrawal from the approaching far eastern Olympic meet scheduled to be held in Manila in the event of China's continued refusal to compete with Manchukuo athletes.

INSTALL DEVICE TO SHOW POLICE HIDDEN PISTOLS

Instruments were being installed in the bureau of identification in the police building at 11th and State streets yesterday which will flash a warning if any prisoner has concealed on his person a revolver, knife, saw, or file. Tests are to be made tomorrow to determine the efficiency of the device.

The system is made up of a number of electrically sensitive plates that will register the approach of any ferrous metal, according to H. B. Harrington of Paul W. Koch & Co., who are installing it. Prisoners are marched in single file towards a door in which a plate is located. If a warning is given another electrical apparatus shows in which part of the clothing the metal object is concealed.

The system is in use in some penitentiaries and a few banks, according to Mr. Harrington. In prisons it is useful in detecting tools stolen and hidden by convicts as well as in the inspection of packages. In banks it serves to give notice of the entrance of a person carrying a revolver.

SECOND BLAZE HITS DAIRY.

Duquoin, Ill., April 9.—(AP)—A $5,000 fire of undetermined origin last night destroyed a barn at the Duquoin state fairgrounds used by the Midwest Dairy products company as a temporary garage and repair shop. The local garage of the company was burned last week with $30,000 damage to trucks and equipment.

Do You Ride?

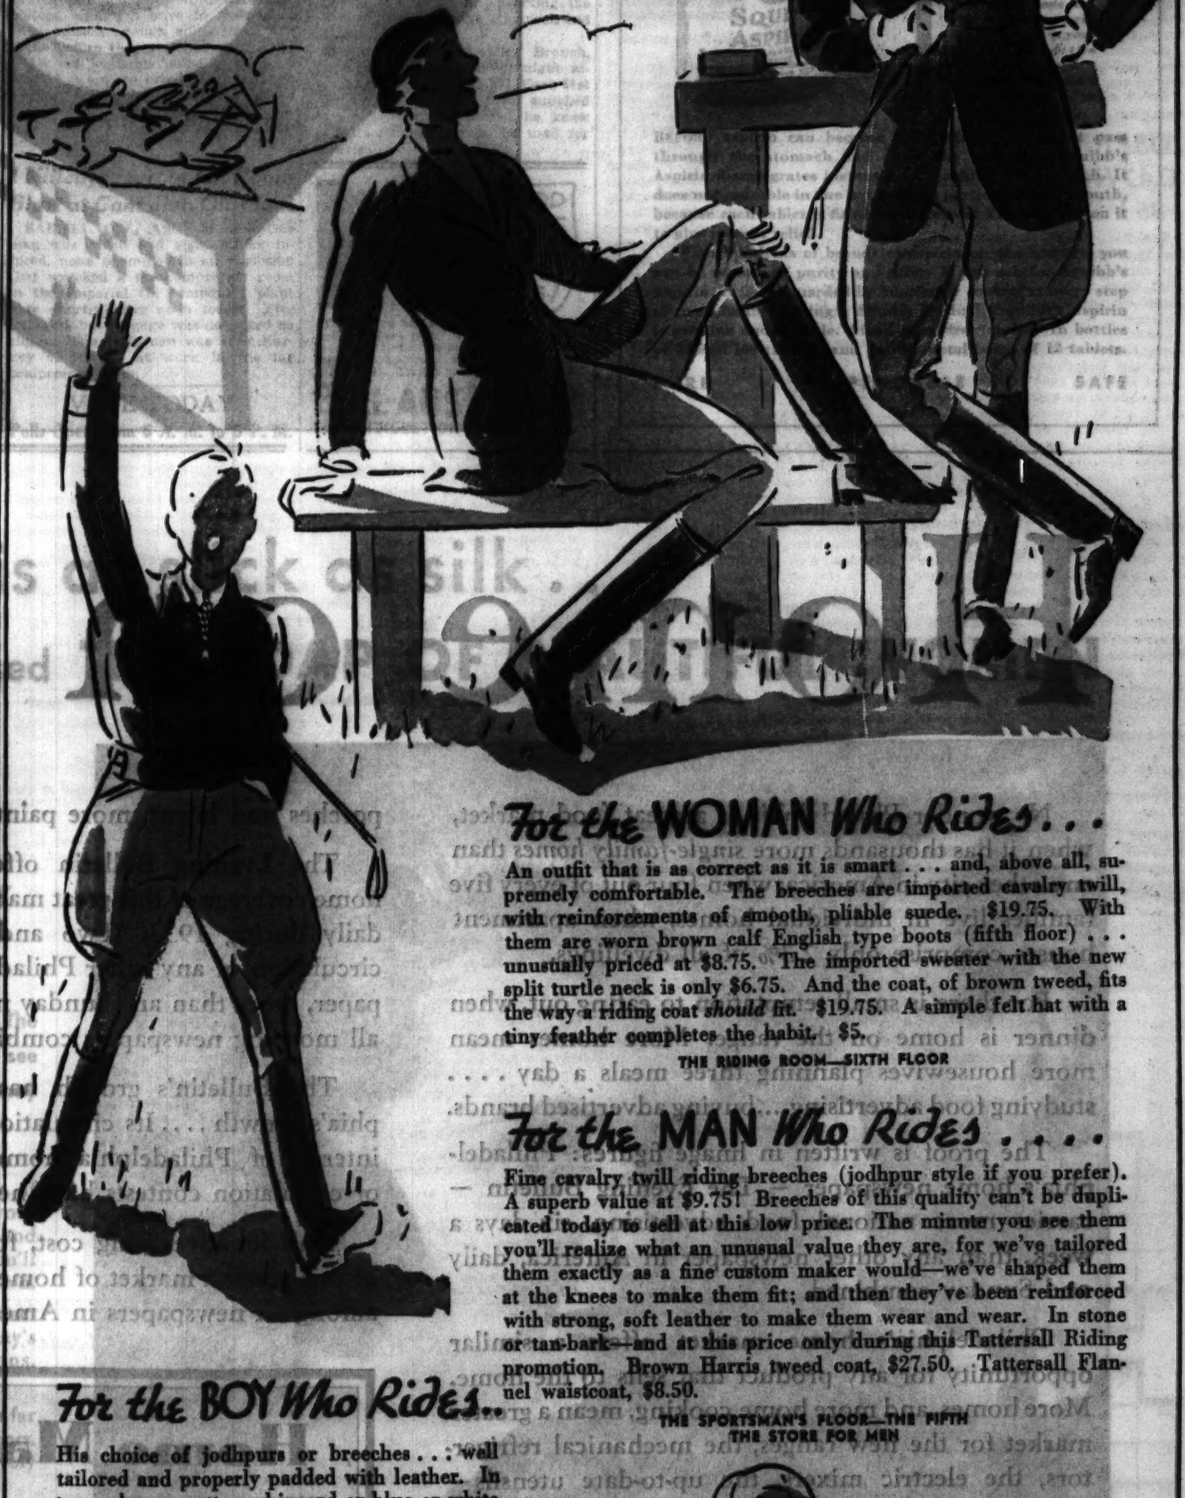
TATTERSALL CLUB

We've thought for a long time that something ought to be done about riding in Chicago. So we're doing it! We've organized a club whose chief purpose is to cut down the High Cost of Renting Horses. Two riding academies have agreed to co-operate with us. The Midway, 6037 Drexel, and the Acme, 2527 North Halsted (accessible to Jackson and Lincoln Parks respectively), have agreed to let members buy 10 hours' worth of tickets for ten dollars, instead of the usual fifteen. You get them at Field's, in any section where habits are sold. How do you join? Simply by registering in the section when you buy your first ticket. Remember, if you ride, no matter what your age or sex . . . you are eligible for the Tattersall Club!



For the WOMAN Who Rides . . .

An outfit that is as correct as it is smart . . . and, above all, supremely comfortable. The breeches are imported cavalry twill, with reinforcements of smooth, pliable suede. $19.75. With them are worn brown calf English type boots (fifth floor) . . . unusually priced at $8.75. The imported sweater with the new split turtle neck is only $6.75. And the coat, of brown tweed, fits the way a riding coat should fit. $19.75. A simple felt hat with a tiny feather completes the habit. $5.

THE RIDING ROOM—SIXTH FLOOR

For the MAN Who Rides . . .

Fine cavalry twill riding breeches (jodhpur style if you prefer). A superb value at $9.75! Breeches of this quality can't be duplicated today to sell at this low price. The minute you see them you'll realize what an unusual value they are, for we've tailored them exactly as a fine custom maker would—we've shaped them at the knees to make them fit; and then they've been reinforced with strong, soft leather to make them wear and wear. In stone or tan bark—and at this price only during this Tattersall Riding promotion. Brown Harris tweed coat, $27.50. Tattersall Flannel waistcoat, $8.50.

THE SPORTSMAN'S FLOOR—THE FIFTH
THE STORE FOR MEN

For the BOY Who Rides . .

His choice of jodhpurs or breeches . . . well tailored and properly padded with leather. In tan or brown cotton whipcord or blue or white oxford cloth, $4.95. The matching leather jacket in chocolate or cocoa brown, $8.95. The shirt is only $1.50 and the striped tie, $1.

FOURTH FLOOR, SOUTH, STATE

Home on the range

No wonder Philadelphia is a great food market, when it has thousands more single-family homes than any other city in America; when four out of every five families live in individual homes; when apartment houses comprise only 2.3% of all dwellings.

For there is small temptation to eating out, when dinner is home on the range. More homes mean more housewives planning three meals a day .... studying food advertising....buying advertised brands.

The proof is written in linage figures: Philadelphia's home newspaper — The Evening Bulletin — carries more national food advertising, six days a week, than any other newspaper in America, daily and Sunday combined.

Philadelphia's home market offers a similar opportunity for any product that sells to the home. More homes, and more home cooking, mean a greater market for the new ranges, the mechanical refrigerators, the electric mixers, the up-to-date utensils—

More private homes mean more furniture and rugs, more curtains and draperies, more bathroom accessories, more laundries and heating plants, more porches and lawns, more painting and repairs.

The Evening Bulletin offers almost complete home coverage of this great market: 504,822 net paid daily during 1933. Two and one-half times the circulation of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than any Sunday newspaper, more than all morning newspapers combined.

The Bulletin's growth has paralleled Philadelphia's growth .... Its circulation reflects the reading interest of Philadelphia homes. Premiums, prizes or circulation contests have never been used.

CHART DEPARTMENT

The Philadelphia Bulletin (daily only) carries more national linage on grocery and food products than any other newspaper in America, daily and Sunday combined. The leading newspapers in national food linage in the six largest cities are:

Philadelphia Bulletin—daily only—	837,819 lines
Chicago News—daily only—	761,218 lines
New York World-Telegram—daily only—	743,527 lines
Detroit News—daily and Sunday—	730,719 lines
Los Angeles Examiner—daily and Sunday—	640,439 lines
Cleveland Press—daily only—	609,182 lines

Figures for year of 1933

Home Markets are Food Markets

The Philadelphia Bulletin leads all newspapers in national food linage because it is the home newspaper of the greatest home market in America. Here are the figures on single-family homes in the six largest cities. (From U. S. Census, 1930)

PHILADELPHIA	364,457	DETROIT	209,981
NEW YORK	294,037	CHICAGO	200,685
LOS ANGELES	282,382	CLEVELAND	100,684

PHILADELPHIA is different

In the 12 largest cities in the United States, Sunday newspapers have the largest circulations ... With one outstanding exception! The Philadelphia Bulletin has 137,870 more circulation than the largest Sunday newspaper in Philadelphia.

KAPLAN RELATES MURDER ESCAPE AT RACKET TRIAL

Tells Fight to Keep Gang Out of Industry Rule.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Attorney Morris L. Kaplan, one of the principal defendants of the 18 on trial in the racket conspiracy case before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in the Criminal court, spent the entire day on the witness stand yesterday in an effort to convince the jury that he was a foe of the gangsters and racketeers instead of a conspirator with them, as the state pictured him.

The youthful attorney—he is 30 years old—told the jury that he was hampered at every turn by the gangsters, who tried to chisel their way into the various industries with which he was connected through his official position in cleaning and dyeing, linen supply and carbonated beverage trade associations.

Tells of Murder Attempt.

So insistent were the gangsters in their efforts to control the industries in the face of his vigorous protests, Kaplan told the jury, that they even tried to kill him. Frank [Porky] Dillon, now a fugitive member of the Touhy gang, who is being sought as one of the kidnapers of John Factor, and Abe Schaffner, an ex-convict, were the killers who failed in their mission only because a revolver in the hand of one for some reason failed to explode, Kaplan testified.

Kaplan told his story at a session marked by bitter legal bickering between Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber and Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short, who questioned Kaplan. The jury spent much of the day marching back and forth from an ante room to the jury box, while the judge settled the arguments.

The bickering between the lawyers became particularly bitter when Kaplan, during one of his frequent speeches, said that he had told government officials that he did not believe the state investigation was "on the square" because it was sponsored by the Employers' association, which was paying Prosecutor Raber $150 per day.

"If it was a fact [referring to the Employers association matter] it has nothing to do with this case," retorted Prosecutor Raber, in objecting to the testimony. "The only question here is whether this man is guilty or innocent. This defendant cannot make self-serving declarations."

Jury Hears Testimony.

Judge Finnegan struck out some of the testimony, but allowed other parts to stand. However, the jury heard the testimony.

Kaplan told, in his early testimony, how he became interested in the cleaning and dyeing industry through Walter Crowley, a legal client, who was in the business. In an effort to drive such gangsters as Hirsche Miller, George [Bugs] Moran, Al Capone and others from the industry he agreed, he said, to help out Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, University of Chicago economist, a defendant in the case. Squires took the job of virtual dictator of the industry, he said, only when urged that it was his moral obligation to do so.

The witness said he thought the so-called Squires contract, which the prosecution contends to be in violation of the statute on restraint of trade, to be within the law.

The contract was submitted to Attorney Floyd Thompson, former chief justice of the state Supreme court and one of the lawyers in the present trial, he said. Edward R. Johnston of Mr. Thompson's firm so testified earlier in the day. The contract also was submitted to Charles Lounsbury, then assistant state's attorney, Kaplan said.

Relates Murder Attempt.

Kaplan also told of Capone's efforts to muscle into the industry, which move, he said, both he and Dr. Squires thwarted. He said that while he was on his way to a meeting to tell the cleaners of the Capone overtures, the attempt on his life was made by Dillon and Schaffner.

"This happened in a blind alley between the Bismarck hotel and the Metropolitan building," Kaplan testified. "They [Dillon and Schaffner] put a revolver up to me and snapped the trigger. One of them said, 'This is the end of you.' I told them they did not have 'guts' enough to shoot and then I ran into the Metropolitan building."

The attorney said that the only one who spoke in favor of Capone at the meeting later in the day was Sam [Doc] Ginsberg, a fugitive defendant.

Ties Up Linen Supply Group.

Later in his testimony Kaplan gave the impression that Dillon and Schaffner attempted to kill him, not because of the cleaning and dyeing business but because he refused to sanction the Linen Supply association's buying out a linen supply concern in which Dillon and Schaffner were interested with Paddy Berrell, slain labor leader.

Kaplan had a ready explanation for the testimony by the state that Murray Humphreys was a frequent visiter at his office. Kaplan said he was suing the Drexel Cleaners and Dyers, with which he said Humphreys was connected, in connection with a lease. Humphreys was trying to settle the claim, and ultimately did do so, he testified.

Kaplan will take part of the Wednesday session to finish his direct testimony. He is expected to be under cross-examination at least for a full day, Prosecutor Raber said.

No session of court will be held today because the jurors have demanded the right to exercise their voting privilege.

RUSH TO LEASE AIRPLANES FOR MAIL CONTRACTS

Even Obsolete Types Are in Demand.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

When the air mail finally is flown again by private lines some of it may be flown in old "crates" held together by hay wire. This was indicated by reports from flying fields throughout the country yesterday when it was reported that promoters, pilots, flying field managers, and operators of small air lines have joined in a stampede for the new air mail contracts.

According to reports, practically every airplane in the United States which can carry a load of 500 pounds in addition to fuel and its pilot has been placed under option, generally for thirty or sixty days. The option holders plan to rent or buy the planes if they get mail contracts. If unsuccesstul they will allow the options to lapse.

"Little Fellows" Happy.

Although the large transport lines' officials have protested that the specifications as fixed by the postmice department will allow obsolete equipment to be used if low bidders are given the mail contracts, the little fellows are happy. "It's a break for us," one of them said yesterday. "The bids have thrown the thing wide open."

The stipulation in the specifications which has caused the rush for ships is the requirement that the air mail be flown at a minimum speed of only 110 miles an hour. Speed as low as this was flown on only a few branch routes prior to last Feb. 20, when the old contracts were abruptly canceled. The transcontinental mail lines and most of the other routes used planes which cruised at speeds ranging from 150 to 180 miles an hour.

Lease Obsolete Planes.

Since the specifications as advertised do not require planes of more than one motor except for night or mountain flying, the promoters are said to be taking options even on single engined ships. Pitcairns, the old Boeing 40s, Travelairs, and Stearmans which have not been used on mail runs since 1928 and 1929 have been reconditioned. All these ships will cruise at 110 miles an hour and carry loads ranging from 500 to 900 pounds on their one motor.

"Most of these old planes are being pulled together with the hay wire which the old barnstormers used to make all repairs," said a mechanic at Chicago airport. "They've been grabbed off under option by these promoters, who will have to show that they possess enough ships to fly the mails before they can get contracts."

All the available ships at Chicago airport were reported under option yesterday. Similar reports were given at Newark, N. J., at Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles, and Cheyenne.

1 Killed, 8 Hurt in Tar Room Blast at Canadian Oil Plant

SARNIA, Ont., April 9.—(AP)—One man was killed and eight others injured, none seriously, in an explosion that wrecked a tar compressor room in the Imperial Oil company's plant here shortly after noon today. Fire followed, but damage was described as slight. The dead man was Jock Harvey of Sarnia, at work in the tar compressor room.

2 KIDNAP BANDITS CAPTURED AFTER AUTO HITS POST

Two Negro bandit-kidnapers, charged by police with nearly 50 robberies during one week, were captured early yesterday when, with two victims in their car, they crashed into a lamp post at 60th street and Woodlawn avenue. They are Robert Graham, 364 East 60th street, captured at the scene of the crash, and Prince Kirkpatrick, 6130 Prairie avenue, seized later at his home. Both are 17 years old. Graham had two revolvers.

In the bandits' car at the time were Lawrence Rubin, 935 East 54th street, and Herman Multack, 5437 University avenue, who were forced into the car at East 63d street and Woodlawn avenue. Rubin had just surrendered $4 when the car crashed, attracting the attention of Sergt. John Kustusch and his squad.

The bandits named Allen Branch, 18 years old, also colored, night attendant in a garage at 351 East 51st street, as having kept them supplied with cars. Branch denied he knew the automobiles were to be used for robberies.

TAKES WILD RIDE ON BUMPER OF ROBBERS' AUTO

Determined to cause the arrest of three bandits who had robbed him of $20, Eugene Snyder, 24 years old, 1239 Jackson boulevard, jumped on the bumper of the gunmen's car and went on a wild ride yesterday.

As the bandits drove away from the scene of the holdup, at Adams and Throop streets, they pursued a zig-zag course at a high rate of speed in an effort to throw Snyder off. He came near falling many times, but he held his grip and yelled for help. At Ashland avenue and Jackson boulevard his cries attracted a trafic policeman, who fired a number of shots.

When out of range of the policeman's bullets the robbers stopped and knocked Snyder off the bumper, but when the car started again he resumed his place. The gunmen stopped a second time and thumped their victim on the head with a brick. Snyder decided not to molest them any more.

"If it was a fact [referring to the Employers association matter] it has nothing to do with this case," retorted Prosecutor Raber, in objecting to the testimony. "The only question here is whether this man is guilty or innocent. This defendant cannot make self-serving declarations."

Jury Hears Testimony.

Judge Finnegan struck out some of the testimony, but allowed other parts to stand. However, the jury heard the testimony.

Kaplan told, in his early testimony, how he became interested in the cleaning and dyeing industry through Walter Crowley, a legal client, who was in the business. In an effort to drive such gangsters as Hirsche Miller, George [Bugs] Moran, Al Capone and others from the industry he agreed, he said, to help out Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, University of Chicago economist, a defendant in the case. Squires took the job of virtual dictator of the industry, he said, only when urged that it was his moral obligation to do so.

The witness said he thought the so-called Squires contract, which the prosecution contends to be in violation of the statute on restraint of trade, to be within the law.

The contract was submitted to Attorney Floyd Thompson, former chief justice of the state Supreme court and one of the lawyers in the present trial, he said. Edward R. Johnston of Mr. Thompson's firm so testified earlier in the day. The contract also was submitted to Charles Lounsbury, then assistant state's attorney, Kaplan said.

Relates Murder Attempt.

Kaplan also told of Capone's efforts to muscle into the industry, which move, he said, both he and Dr. Squires thwarted. He said that while he was on his way to a meeting to tell the cleaners of the Capone overtures, the attempt on his life was made by Dillon and Schaffner.

"This happened in a blind alley between the Bismarck hotel and the Metropolitan building," Kaplan testified. "They [Dillon and Schaffner] put a revolver up to me and snapped the trigger. One of them said, 'This is the end of you.' I told them they did not have 'guts' enough to shoot and then I ran into the Metropolitan building."

The attorney said that the only one who spoke in favor of Capone at the meeting later in the day was Sam [Doc] Ginsberg, a fugitive defendant.

Ties Up Linen Supply Group.

Later in his testimony Kaplan gave the impression that Dillon and Schaffner attempted to kill him, not because of the cleaning and dyeing business but because he refused to sanction the Linen Supply association's buying out a linen supply concern in which Dillon and Schaffner were interested with Paddy Berrell, slain labor leader.

Kaplan had a ready explanation for the testimony by the state that Murray Humphreys was a frequent visitor at his office. Kaplan said he was suing the Drexel Cleaners and Dyers, with which he said Humphreys was connected, in connection with a lease. Humphreys was trying to settle the claim, and ultimately did do so, he testified.

Kaplan will take part of the Wednesday session to finish his direct testimony. He is expected to be under cross-examination at least for a full day, Prosecutor Raber said.

No session of court will be held today because the jurors have demanded the right to exercise their voting privilege.

RUSH TO LEASE AIRPLANES FOR MAIL CONTRACTS

Even Obsolete Types Are in Demand.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

When the air mail finally is flown again by private lines some of it may be flown in old "crates" held together by hay wire. This was indicated by reports from flying fields throughout the country yesterday when it was reported that promoters, pilots, flying field managers, and operators of small air lines have joined in a stampede for the new air mail contracts.

According to reports, practically every airplane in the United States which can carry a load of 500 pounds in addition to fuel and its pilot has been placed under option, generally for thirty or sixty days. The option holders plan to rent or buy the planes if they get mail contracts. If unsuccessful they will allow the options to lapse.

"Little Fellows" Happy.

Although the large transport lines' officials have protested that the specifications as fixed by the postmoice department will allow obsolete equipment to be used if low bidders are given the mail contracts, the little fellows are happy. "It's a break for us," one of them said yesterday. "The bids have thrown the thing wide open."

The stipulation in the specifications which has caused the rush for ships is the requirement that the air mail be flown at a minimum speed of only 110 miles an hour. Speed as low as this was flown on only a few branch routes prior to last Feb. 20, when the old contracts were abruptly canceled. The transcontinental mail lines and most of the other routes used planes which cruised at speeds ranging from 150 to 180 miles an hour.

Lease Obsolete Planes.

Since the specifications as advertised do not require planes of more than one motor except for night or mountain flying, the promoters are said to be taking options even on single engined ships. Pitcairns, the old Boeing 40s, Travelairs, and Stearmans which have not been used on mail runs since 1928 and 1929 have been reconditioned. All these ships will cruise at 110 miles an hour and carry loads ranging from 500 to 900 pounds on their one motor.

"Most of these old planes are being pulled together with the hay wire which the old barnstormers used to make all repairs," said a mechanic at Chicago airport. "They've been grabbed off under option by these promoters, who will have to show that they possess enough ships to fly the mails before they can get contracts."

All the available ships at Chicago airport were reported under option yesterday. Similar reports were given at Newark, N. J., at Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles, and Cheyenne.

1 Killed, 8 Hurt in Tar Room Blast at Canadian Oil Plant

SARNIA, Ont., April 9.—(AP)—One man was killed and eight others injured, none seriously, in an explosion that wrecked a tar compressor room in the Imperial Oil company's plant here shortly after noon today. Fire followed, but damage was described as slight. The dead man was Jock Harvey of Sarnia, at work in the tar compressor room.

2 KIDNAP BANDITS CAPTURED AFTER AUTO HITS POST

Two Negro bandit-kidnapers, charged by police with nearly 50 robberies during one week, were captured early yesterday when, with two victims in their car, they crashed into a lamp post at 60th street and Woodlawn avenue. They are Robert Graham, 364 East 60th street, captured at the scene of the crash, and Prince Kirkpatrick, 6130 Prairie avenue, seized later at his home. Both are 17 years old. Graham had two revolvers.

In the bandits' car at the time were Lawrence Rubin, 935 East 54th street, and Herman Multack, 5437 University avenue, who were forced into the car at East 63d street and Woodlawn avenue. Rubin had just surrendered $4 when the car crashed, attracting the attention of Sergt. John Kustusch and his squad.

The bandits named Allen Branch, 18 years old, also colored, night attendant in a garage at 351 East 51st street, as having kept them supplied with cars. Branch denied he knew the automobiles were to be used for robberies.

TAKES WILD RIDE ON BUMPER OF ROBBERS' AUTO

Determined to cause the arrest of three bandits who had robbed him of $20, Eugene Snyder, 24 years old, 1233 Jackson boulevard, jumped on the bumper of the gunmen's car and went on a wild ride yesterday.

As the bandits drove away from the scene of the holdup, at Adams and Throop streets, they pursued a zig-zag course at a high rate of speed in an effort to throw Snyder off. He came near falling many times, but he held his grip and yelled for help. At Ashland avenue and Jackson boulevard his cries attracted a traffic policeman, who fired a number of shots.

When out of range of the policeman's bullets the robbers stopped and knocked Snyder off the bumper, but when the car started again he resumed his place. The gunmen stopped a second time and thumped their victim on the head with a brick. Snyder decided not to molest them any more.

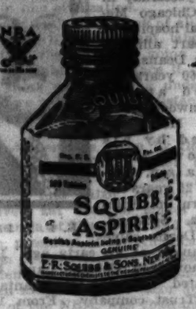
In aspirin, you want quick effect... PLUS assured purity and safety

SQUIBB'S ASPIRIN



LOOK FOR SQUIBB CONTROL NUMBER

Each new lot bears its own serial number—actual evidence of 45 safety tests, made during manufacture. Squibb control is your guarantee of the reliability, purity and safety of Squibb's Aspirin.

BEFORE aspirin can become fully effective, it must pass through the stomach and enter the intestine. Squibb's Aspirin disintegrates instantly on reaching the stomach. It does not crumble in the box or leave particles in the mouth, because each tablet is firmly compressed. You can rely on it to give prompt relief.

With hundreds of brands of aspirin on the market, you can be certain of purity and safety if you ask for Squibb's Aspirin. It is safeguarded by laboratory control at every step of manufacture. Being a Squibb Product, Squibb's Aspirin is genuine and reliable. At all good drug stores. In bottles of 50 and 100 tablets, and handy metal boxes of 12 tablets.

PURE DEPENDABLE SAFE

There is one best way to prove the prompt relief Bell-ans gives. That is to try it for yourself. Bell-ans is perfectly harmless yet brings prompt relief even in severe cases. Since 1897. Trial is proof—25c. NRA

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

Nature's Way A GENTLE FLUSH

Avoid Laxatives That Constipate!

Ever hear of "cathartic constipation?" Medicine laxatives cause it. Most of them work by irritating the membranes of the digestive tract—and when taken regularly lose their effect. Soon the laxative-constipation habit has you in its grip!

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle — but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve — permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water — is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish — get results within an hour — and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces), 25c —large bottles (3 times the quantity), 50c. At all druggists.

Well, if they haven't, it's about time to change your beauty soap—and to see how Camay can improve the texture of your skin and the beauty of your face.

For Camay is unlike any soap you have ever used. It never gives you a "raw soap" feeling. Its rich lather is gentle and abundant. Camay bubbles are Beauty Bubbles.

GET YOURSELF A CAMAY COMPLEXION
WIN YOUR DAILY BEAUTY CONTEST

All life's a Beauty Contest and the girl with a soft clear skin has one important feminine charm in her favor. For a good complexion instantly attracts men's admiration and thoughtful attentions. If Camay can make a difference in your skin as it did in the story of Sally, and in the lives of other girls, surely you'll want to know and use it for your own.

"That velvety feeling my skin has acquired, I can trace directly to Camay's lather," said a designer of fashions. "It's so rich—so soothing!"

"To me, a cake of Camay is worth far more than it costs," said a travel expert. "There's no other soap quite so lovely and mild."

A few cakes of Camay can be the passport to beauty for your skin. They will clear away the dullness that hides the natural quality and texture of a good complexion. Turn to Camay—as hundreds of thousands of women have done—and Camay will not fail you!

"Every smart girl knows that life is a Beauty Contest. That's why we all try to be charming and pretty. I've found that a Camay Complexion wins men's favor and praise."

MRS. GARY WILLS MOST OF WEALTH TO ART MUSEUM

Will Gives Servants $100 to $30,000 Each.

New York, April 9.—(AP)—The Metropolitan Museum of Art is the principal legatee in the will of Mrs. Emma T. Gary, widow of Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel company.

The will of Mrs. Gary, who died last Thursday, was filed today in the Surrogate's court.

She inherited about one-third of her husband's estate, appraised in 1931 at more than $22,000,000.

The Metropolitan is to receive the residue of her wealth on condition that it accepted a bequest of art works and adhere to certain conditions.

The bequest includes "my rare Sevres apple green china dinner service, jewels, jewelry, laces and embroideries, portrait of my late husband by Hubert Vos, painting of a ballroom scene by Madrazo, painting of a woman by Henner, and painting of a baby by Chase."

The condition is that the museum display the exhibit perpetually in a room, with suitable notice describing them as gifts from Emma T. Gary.

In the event the bequest is not accepted by the Metropolitan within three months the executors are authorized to offer the bequest, with the residue, to the commissioners of Fairmount park, Philadelphia, for exhibition in the Philadelphia museum, and, if not accepted by them, to the trustees of the M. H. De Young Memorial museum, San Francisco.

Every servant is to receive $100 for each year of his employ.

JOSEPH MURPHY, CATHOLIC PRIEST 25 YEARS, IS DEAD

The Rev. Joseph B. Murphy, S. J., for 25 years a Catholic priest, died last night in the Illinois Central hospital after a long illness. He was about 60 years old, and a native of Chicago.

Father Murphy was attached to the Holy Family church, 1076 Roosevelt road, and had charge of Catholic Boy Scout activities there. Previously, for many years, he had been disciplinarian at old St. Ignatius' college.

The death of Father Murphy removes the last member of his family whose life was devoted to church service. Two brothers were priests and a sister was a mother superior.

Mrs. Grace G. Brackebush Dies in Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Grace Greenlee Brackebush, a former Chicagoan, died yesterday in Asheville, N. C., where she and her husband, Charles H. Brackebush, retired stove manufacturer, had made their home since moving from Chicago. She was a daughter of the late Lemuel Greenlee, founder of Greenlee Brothers, the Northwestern Stove Repair company, and the Greenlee Foundry company.

HERBERT DEANS, BANKER, DIES AT 60 IN HOSPITAL

Herbert G. P. Deans, director and vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, and widely known in the field of foreign banking, died yesterday in the Chicago Memorial hospital of a heart ailment.

H. G. P. DEANS.

Mr. Deans, who was 60 years old, lived at 4556 Greenwood avenue. He is survived by his widow, Marie, and a son, Herbert, 25 years old.

Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, Mr. Deans came to Canada at an early age. In 1902 he moved to Chicago, and became affiliated with the Merchants Loan and Trust company. From 1906 to 1916 he served as manager of the foreign department of that bank.

In 1916 he became vice president, and held that position when the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, the Merchants Loan and the Corn Exchange National merged to form the Illinois Merchants Trust company. He was also vice president, director, and in charge of the foreign department when this bank and the Continental National merged in 1929.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from St. Paul's Episcopal church.

EDWIN J. STUBBS, VETERAN GRAIN BROKER, IS DEAD

Edwin J. Stubbs, veteran grain broker on the Chicago Board of Trade, died yesterday afternoon in the University hospital at Augusta, Ga. Mr. Stubbs, who was 68 years old, was stricken with pneumonia a week ago while motoring home from Florida with his wife.

Born in Chicago, Mr. Stubbs entered the grain business when he was 19 years old. He retired a year ago. In 1925 he and Mrs. Stubbs presented to St. Mary of the Lake seminary at Mundelein the building which houses the school of philosophy. In recognition of the gift valued at $100,000, he was made a Knight of St. Gregory by the pope.

The Stubbs lived at 3240 Lake Shore drive. The body will arrive in Chicago tomorrow.

W. M. WEBSTER LEAVES $250,000 TO HIS FAMILY

The will of William M. Webster, leaving an estate estimated at $250,000 in a trust fund to his widow, Mrs. Lona B. Webster, and three daughters, was admitted to probate yesterday by George B. Weiss, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. Webster, a director of trade associations' conventions, died on March 27 in his home at 5750 Sheridan road. He was 71 years old.

Four other wills were admitted to probate and filed with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The wills are those of:

THERESE STILLIAN, died Jan. 18. Estate, $9,000, to husband and executor, Arthur W. Stillian.

ETHEL L. ALLEN, died March 19. Estate, $9,000, to father and executor, John Allen.

GUSTAV SODERBERG, died Jan. 11. Estate, $10,500, to widow and executrix, Carolina Soderberg.

ARTHUR J. ROSS, died March 23. Estate, $50,000, to widow and two sons. First National Bank and Trust company of Chicago is executor.

Andrew N. Darling, 90, Dies in Oak Park Home

Andrew N. Darling, 90 years old, a resident of Chicago and Oak Park for 55 years, died yesterday at his home at 623 Clarence avenue, Oak Park. He came here from Edinburgh, Scotland, his birthplace, when he was 35 years old. He was a bookkeeper until his retirement three years ago, which was necessitated by injuries incurred in an automobile accident. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Grace Larson, with whom he lived, and a son, William. Funeral services will be held Thursday.

J. M. Joyce, Grain Trader, to Be Buried Tomorrow

Funeral services for J. Martin Joyce, member of the Chicago Board of Trade, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow in St. Anthanasius' Catholic church, Evanston. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Mr. Joyce died of pneumonia Sunday in his home at 2504 Ridge avenue, Evanston. He had been in the grain business for 30 years, first with Nash, Wright & Co., then with Marfield, Terse & Noyes, and finally—during the last 13 years—for himself. Surviving are his widow, Irene, and a son, Lawler.

FUNERAL TODAY OF E. H. SCHLOGL, CAFE OPERATOR

Funeral services will be held today for Edward H. Schlogl, owner of Schlogl's weinstube and restaurant at 37 North Wells street, which for half a century was patronized by the great and near-great. Mr. Schlogl, who was 58 years old, died Saturday night. Although ill for several years, he had been active until recently.

Born in Chicago, Mr. Schlogl early took a part in the operation of the eating place established by his father, Joseph, in 1879. The fame of its cuisine, its wines, and "atmosphere" drew a host of notables, including many noted writers. A book of customers' autographs kept by one of the waiters includes the names of Theodore Roosevelt and Marshall Field, among hundreds of others.

The restaurant will be operated hereafter by his mother, Mrs. Rosa Herbertz Schlogl, and his sister, Mrs. Walter Mullen. Mr. Schlogl was a bachelor. The café will be closed today, when service... are held at the home at 506 Belmont avenue. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery.

MARY MAGWIRE DIES; DAUGHTER OF CITY PIONEER

Mrs. Mary F. Magwire, daughter of a pioneer Chicago attorney and judge, died early yesterday at the age of 94 in her home at 1210 Astor street following three weeks' illness.

Mrs. Magwire was born in Chicago seven years after her father, Judge Grant Goodrich, settled here. The latter, who came to Chicago from Milton, N. Y., was prominent in Chicago's early civic affairs and was associate justice of the then newly constituted Superior court of Chicago from 1859 until 1863. Then he resumed the practice of law and was one of Chicago's most prominent attorneys.

Mrs. Magwire is survived by two nieces, Miss Juliet Goodrich, 1210 Astor street, Mrs. Harriet Bailey of Baltimore, and a nephew, Grant Goodrich of Milwaukee. She was the widow of George Magwire, whom she married in 1870. The couple lived in St. Louis for five years and upon the death of her husband Mrs. Magwire returned to Chicago.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock in the residence.

Mrs. Anna Kransz, 60, Dies; Wife of Mortgage Broker

Mrs. Anna Kransz, wife of Henry P. Kransz, head of a mortgage house bearing his name at 29 South La Salle street, died yesterday in Grant hospital following an operation. She was 60 years old and lived with her family at 6027 Sheridan road. Mrs. Kransz became ill a week ago, following her return from Florida. Surviving are her husband and three children, Harry N. Kransz, Mrs. Raymond Reiss, and Mrs. Cyrus Neuses. Services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in St. Ignatius' Catholic church.

Mrs. Vera Sucherman, 68, Wife of Physician, Dies

Mrs. Vera Sucherman, 68 years old, wife of Dr. Samuel Sucherman, well known physician and surgeon, died of a heart attack last night in her home at 725 Independence boulevard. In addition to her husband she is survived by a son, Julius, and two daughters, Belle and Anne.

Mrs. Mary La Rocca, Head of Woodmen Circle, Dies

Omaha, Neb., April 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary E. La Rocco, 56 years old, of Omaha, since 1919 national president of the Woodman circle, died tonight of pneumonia.

LOUISE WALCOTT, PLAYWRIGHT AND AUTHOR, IS DEAD

Several Chicago friends returned home yesterday from Santa Barbara, Cal., where they had attended the funeral of Mrs. Louise Gilbert Walcott, author and director. Mrs. Walcott, a former Chicagoan, died March 31 in Santa Barbara, where she had lived for 28 years. The funeral services were held April 2.

Mrs. Walcott was known as a playwright and as an author of scores of short stories and articles. She specialized in dramatic technique and was a director of the Lobero theater, Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Walcott was 58 years old and a native Chicagoan. She was the daughter of Albert M. Gilbert, railway executive, and the sister of the late Henry K. Gilbert, typewriter company head. Mrs. Walcott was twice married, first to Day McBirney, socially prominent Chicagoan, and next to Stuart Walcott, Santa Barbara. Surviving are a son, Stuart, and a daughter, Anne.

Warm Weather Brings Crop of Plans for Fair

Century Club Decision to Be Made This Week.

BY JUDITH CASS.

PLEASANT weather such as we have been having recently must be responsible for turning every one's thoughts to A Century of Progress, for we've heard more talk about this year's Fair in the last few days than we had heard in a month preceding.

Much of the talk is only conjecture, of course, for plans still are in the making in many cases, and even those that appear to be definite are apt to be changed at any moment. We hear that the Junior league is considering having a benefit in the new Spanish village on the opening night, Saturday, May 26, and if this materializes it will be THE affair of that night.

There is talk of a ball in colonial dress in the new Colonial village and of a gay party in the Streets of Paris, similar to the one that opened the Fair last year, but none is planned definitely and if the Junior league does decide to take over the Spanish village on that night it is certain to be a memorable night; it will have the "edge" on all others, being for sweet charity's sake.

Century Club Plans Indefinite.

The omcers of the Century club still are in the throes of trying to decide where and if the club will be in existence this summer. The club probably will be continued and it most likely will be in its same attractive location, but nothing will be settled absolutely until later this week, Arthur Meeker, the genial president, told us yesterday.

The enlarged Rendezvous de Paris, an outgrowth of the very little club that had its headquarters in the Streets of Paris last year, will rival the Century club as the favorite meeting place for the haut monde this year, undoubtedly, for Seymour Blair is its secretary and he is planning all sorts of interesting things to lure society there.

Writing of Mr. Meeker reminds us that tomorrow is his birthday and that for the first time in quite a number of years he and Howard F. Gillette are not having a joint party to celebrate their birthdays. Mr. Gillette arrived at home yesterday from a brief stay at French Lick Springs in time to eat his birthday dinner with Mrs. Gillette, but he hasn't been feeling too well this spring and he and Mr. Meeker had decided several weeks ago to forego their annual party.

"Too many candles," said Mr. Meeker as the reason for their not being hosts tonight, but their many friends will not agree with that, for these two popular gentlemen never will grow old.

Genealogical Society to Meet at Fair.

To return to the Fair: The American Genealogical society is planning to hold a meeting in the Colonial village on Aug. 26, 27, and 28. Silas H. Strawn is president of the society and among the members are such well known Chicagoans as Henry A. Rumsey, Carroll H. Sudler, George T. Buckingham, Chancellor L. Jenks, Blen J. Arnold, Fred W. Sargent, Carter Blatchford and others whose forefathers "came over on the Mayflower."

Mrs. James Ward Thorne's miniature rooms are to be in a building of their own on Northerly island this year. And there are to be twelve new ones in addition to the dozen that were displayed in the Streets of Paris last year. Mrs. Thorne is planning to have a preview tea before the Fair opens so that all her friends may see them.

Tell Engagement of Elizabeth Wales.

A rumor that has been heard for months along the north shore is confirmed this morning in the announcement Mrs. Henry Whitwell Wales is making of the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth, to Robert Taylor

'Annina' Meets High Hopes of Theater Fans

"ANNINA."

An operetta with Mme. Maria Jeritza as star, given in the Grand Opera house April 9, 1934, under the management of the Messrs. Shubert. Score by Rudolf Friml; libretto and lyrics by Rowland Leigh, William Thiele, and John Shubert.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A richly costumed and elaborately staged operetta bearing the title of "Annina" brought Mme. Maria Jeritza, for ten years one of the most brilliant divas of the Metropolitan Opera company, to the attention of patrons of the light lyric theater in the Grand Opera house last night. The opening was an occasion—the most interesting of the season in some ways. The piece, composed by the mellifluous and eminent Friml, author of "The Vagabond King" and many other gallant singing shows, is new. The star, although a much publicized and adulated figure of the higher realms of musical entertainment, is a new girl to the plain playgoers.

So the atmosphere of the premiere was tense with expectation. This was an event of importance, breaking the monotony of an extraordinarily dull period in the history of the Chicago stage.

I am happy to report that the town's hopes of "Annina" were completely realized. Here is a show to bring a lively flutter of life to the comatose Rialto. It is gorgeous with song; it is dressed up like an imperial coronation; and it is festooned with all the appropriate ornaments of lyric romance.

The music critics of Chicago and New York have been telling the world for years that Mme. Jeritza can sing; that she ranks in the first flight of this generation's dramatic sopranos. So there is little need for me to become expansive on the subject. I can pin the story of the evening down neatly, however, by stating that she is the most brilliant singer to be recruited by the operetta stage of this country in my career as a pursurer of song and dance merriment. You may hark back to the tradition of Fritzi Scheff if you wish to make comparisons, but you will be compelled to admit that the Jeritza voice has much more power and passion than Mme. Scheff's dulcet warblings.

In the matter of Mme. Jeritza's opposite in the cast, however, the music critics have not yet issued any information to their readers. Here is a tenor who, as yet, belongs to the theater rather than the opera house; and yet he is fully qualified to mate his tenor strains with Jeritza's full throated song in passages of bel canto. He is Allan Jones, well known already as the best lad that ever chanted about the joys of college life at old Heidelberg in "The Student Prince."

Mr. Jones is a hit in this piece, along with Jeritza. He displays advancement in voice and deportment and he carries his part of the romantic story with easy grace. His contributions to the lyricism of the performance are copious, almost equaling those of the star in number. To demonstrate that Jeritza is not saving her voice in this operetta adventure I might add that she figures in thirteen out of the twenty-four song titles on the program.

"Annina" tells a story of Venice, modern and old school. In a prolog Jeritza is a lady of high family and title, ardently wooed by Mr. Jones as an American blade, and wondering if she should mate with a commoner. The narrative then reverts to the Venice of the cocked hat and knee breeches era (1770) to show how Jeritza's fisher maiden ancestor broke into the aristocracy.

The dancing of Paul Haakon and Albertina Vitak is another striking feature of "Annina." The former, a gay, good-looking lad of Russian ballet training, was Pavlowa's last jeune premier. Watch him, for he is probably the best male dancer now at large outside of the Monte Carlo troupe.

Orchestra Has Special Party for Supporters

Members Are 'At Play' for Joyful Evening.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

In a musical comedy frame of mind the city's patrons of music filled Orchestra hall last night to see and hear a performance by Chicago's Symphony orchestra that will be stamped as unique in the 43 years of this cultural institution.

It was a party given by the orchestra members for the loyal and civic minded friends who have already pledged more than $58,000 of a $70,000 deficit fund that Chicago may have symphony concerts again next year. In the invitations issued a fortnight ago Dr. Frederick Stock and his orchestra promised to show themselves at "play" for these deficit fund subscribers. And they did.

Arthur G. Cable, chairman of the deficit fund committee, and Edward L. Ryerson Jr., a committee member, held a conference outside their mezzanine boxes, congratulating each other on a "100 per cent good time." In a box near the Cables sat Mrs. Stock, who declared she never knew her "husband was such a showman."

Next to Mrs. Stock sat the orchestra association's devoted president, Charles H. Hamill, with Mrs. Hamill and the Arthur Bissells and the Augustus A. Carpenters for their guests. Most of the city's families who have supported the symphony orchestra almost since it was founded by Theodore Thomas back in 1891 had their usual places last night, but there were a few—at least a few young members of these families—who had to climb to balcony and gallery seats because they had been late with their acceptances.

Miss Helen Bell, daughter of the Laird Bells, was one of these. Strikingly pretty in a gayly flowered print, she climbed to a balcony place with her tall, blond escort. There were many of the younger set scattered throughout the house. Miss Louise Neff, another exponent of the spring fashion that calls for prints, arrived with the two good looking Dewes sisters, Grace and Dorothy. Both Miss Neff and Miss Grace Dewes are to be spring brides.

The young Solomon B. Smiths, Miss Neff's sister and brother-in-law, came in time to hear the German band that clowned in the foyer before the performance, while Durand Smith arrived just in time to take his place before the opening number. Miss Catherine Noyes came with her parents, the Marshall Paul Noyes.

The latest in spring fashions went on review during the intermission when most of the box guests gathered in the second floor lounge to see the photographs and oil paintings that were examples of the hobbies of at least a half dozen of the orchestra members. Charles Linke and M. Martinson revealed themselves as two of the photographers, while the signature on the oils was that of Leo Ruckle.

MAD BURLESQUE

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"The Orchestra at Play" was the name of the entertainment presented at Orchestra hall last night, and long before the program was over it became evident that the musicians of the organization can be quite as brilliant and efficient in their play as in their serious business of giving symphony concerts.

Never did the spirit of parody and burlesque run a madder course than here. Never did an audience hang upon every note so attentively nor punctuate each manifestation with more laughter and applause. It began with a greeting to Conductor Stock as he entered the stage, "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf," bringing a comment from him to the effect that this was "Hail to the Chief" in a reverse version.

It continued in many directions, some light hearted and gay, some in not altogether respectful gestures toward the great masters of music, all unfailingly amusing and entertaining. For the first time in the history of the orchestra there was a performance of Siegfried Ochs' variations on a German folk song in the manner of many great composers—that Ochs who became nicknamed "Boeuf à la Mode" because of his popularity in social circles. Four monks, impersonated by Messrs. Fox, Rabe, Kessler, and Ulrich, played a solemnly paced quartet for bassoons. Four violinists, Messrs. Polesny, Goodsell, Quick, and Rink, appeared as Paganini, Wilhelmj, Sarasate, and an infant prodigy, playing a concerto by Maurer, while the rest of the string section sat in derisive judgment on their efforts.

And what is one to think when a movement from Beethoven's Seventh Symphony is played, first in all its original, gentle grace by the orchestra under the direction of Eric De Lamarter, then by four white garbed cooks upon plates and skillets and various other kitchenware? It was abysmally absurd, a final touch of parody, and it was also one of the hits of the evening. Most encores were forbidden, but one became necessary here.

Stunning Party Frocks Cheer Jaded Shopper

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some of the most effective party frocks that have ever gladdened a weary eye of a jaded shopper have fluttered into town. You'll find them in a certain shop entirely devoted to the exciting pleasure of keeping everything new and fashionable for the festive hours after 5. You'll find the new printed very fine piques, stunning small plaids of red and blue, trimmed with bias bands of navy blue linen. You'll see the famous bow dress, a black sheath glorified with the longest bow ever tied, the ends descending to touch the floor, the bow planted almost to cover the chest.

Two white dreams, one of tiny checked stuff that looks like checked crisp dimity, only it is of a new sheer, are made with knee high flounces, square cut and swankily tailored decolletage, and a cerise velvet belt. Over it, a fitted jacket made with elbow length sleeves, high neckline and a row of twinkling cerise velvet buttons down the front. The other of white sheer with bunches or pads of net circles, going around the kneeline, and the same net trimming on the short jacket. Watch this knee flounce idea; nearly all of the newest party dresses are made with it.

There are some stunning navy, brown and tea colored nets and chiffons made with long sleeves, tucks and much imagination, that are perfect dinner dresses for the more mature figure. They are smart because they are simple, and the last word in distinction and new design.

A new shade of hydrangea blue can be found in a dance dress of rustling soft taffeta with circular ruffles down the back. The same flattering color is used in a slinky dinner gown of tree bark crêpe made with a tricky scarf cape that winds and winds around the neck and shoulder. The dress clings smoothly and has a classic silhouette hard to equal with any other fabric. Printed silks, especially the taffetas, are a riot of color and charm, and some thinking person has presented a printed taffeta slip under a dress of transparent horse hair that is a knockout.

Sister Mary Ann, 92, Marks 73d Year in Sacred Heart Order

Sister Mary Ann, 92 years old, the oldest living member of the Society of the Sacred Heart, celebrated the 60th anniversary of her religious profession and her 73d year as a member of the order yesterday at the Sacred Heart convent, 6250 Sheridan road.

The nun came to Chicago from Ireland in 1858. She recalled yesterday that the city was then a small town with wooden sidewalks and dirt streets. She entered the society, the second religious order to be established here, in 1861. One of her duties in her early years was to drape the front of the old covent on West Taylor street with mourning for the passage of President Lincoln's body.

Sister Mary Ann's anniversary began with mass, followed by the presentation of tableaux in her honor by school children and a reception attended by 200 friends. She received gifts from every Sacred Heart convent in the United States.

Mrs. Roosevelt Warns That U.S. 'May Go Under'

New York, April 9.—(AP)—A warning that the United States would "go under" unless its citizens back every effort being made by governmental or other agencies to improve social conditions was voiced by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at a dinner for her tonight.

Using her recent trip to Porto Rico as an example, she asserted that the result of low wages and a high rate of tuberculosis among women embroiderers there was carried over to the Porto Rican colony in New York.

"And tuberculosis is very contagious," she added.

"In the last few years we have been shown as clearly as we can be shown that we cannot have injustice and bad living conditions anywhere without their eventually touching all of us.

"The happiness and comfort of all of us depend upon how we wake up and what bad conditions we allow to exist in our civilization.

"If we don't stand back of all efforts being made by government, labor, and education then we are going under, and we might as well face it. But I don't think we are going under, and I hope we will have the satisfaction of work well done."

The dinner was given by the New York Women's Trade Union league, and was attended by both philanthropists and labor officials. Mrs. Roosevelt sat next to Mayor F. H. La Guardia of New York, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Rose Schleiderman, president of the league, and only woman member of the labor advisory board of the NRA, was chairman.

Admitting that all labor leaders are not perfect, Mrs. Roosevelt said that neither are all capitalists. When the time comes they both must be ready to recognize it, she asserted.

"That time is with us. If we don't recognize it, then we are in trouble. We should get together with a spirit of coöperation to work our problems out, because the old order has passed."

First Woman Gets Honorary Degree from Georgetown

Washington, D. C., April 9.—[Special.]—With impressive ceremonies Georgetown university tonight conferred high honors on five men and women in connection with its commemoration of the anniversaries of the founding of the Society of Jesus in 1534 and the founding of the first Jesuit school in America, 100 years later.

For the first time in 145 years Georgetown broke a hard and fast rule by conferring an honorary degree upon a woman. Mrs. Genevieve Garvan Brady, philanthropist, of New York, widow of Nicholas F. Brady, was made a doctor of laws in recognition of her promotion of Jesuit education.

Mrs. Padraic Colum of New York, wife of the poet and a poet and literary critic in her own right, received the award of the James Ryder Randall Academy of Letters, and Dr. Sofia A. Nordhoff-Jung of Washington received the gold medal of the Angelo Secchi Academy of Science.

The two men honored were the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Good Morning!

This is a slowly moving but effective drama with an odd slant. And I—who as a rule do not care for Ruth Chatterton—wish to say that I liked her immensely during the entire picture. Her reactions seem genuine, her emotions real.

Whatever authors would do without a stage revue in the making as a back drop for their plots, I don't know! In "Journal of a Crime," as in many other productions, people connected with the stage are principals in a story that unveils to the accompaniment of rehersals preparatory to an opening night.

One of these is in progress, when the murder, which furnishes momentum for most of the action, occurs.

A musical comedy favorite, a playwright, his wife, and a bank robber who is also a killer are the outstanding characters.

The journal is kept by the playwright—after his mistress—the prima donna—has been killed.

Day after day he makes his entries, while, day after day, the silent woman who is his wife, grows whither and weaker, and Toby, dog of the deceased, wanders through the crime-haunted house like a wistful, black, four-footed shadow. . . .

The death of the killer precipitates the situation which results in the film's unusual ending.

The production has been deftly directed. It is excellently staged and boasts some telling dialog.

Mr. Menjou while, as ever, the smart sophisticate, has a rôle that requires him to portray more emotion, more depth than is customary. He makes convincing both his passion for the actress and the varied feelings he entertains toward the wife who loves him with such hopeless desperation.

Claire Dodd is bonelessly avid as per usual. She and several other ladies of her build and bearing recall to mind the classic remark made not long ago by a screen player—"Just another case of anemia mistaken for passion." George Barbier is fine as the producer of the show, and other players were intelligently chosen.

AND—don't forget to stay and give the Lyonses [Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon] a nice big hand! This engaging couple of Hollywood happyweds are appearing at the Chicago in person, you know.

See you tomorrow.

PERHAPS you have heard about the book on which the Reynolds twins, John and Edward P., are collaborating. It is to be a book of conversational etiquet, to be called "KEEP OFF THE GROSS."

Book—
Bride—
Spring.

* *

SPEAKING of conversational etiquet brings to mind the pleasant and informal conversation that Curtis Munson and his bride, Edith Cummings, managed to carry on with the hundreds of guests who came down the receiving line after their marriage Saturday afternoon. It was an amazing demonstration of tact, grace and poise. Instead of merely acknowledging the felicitations, Miss Cummings had a pertinent remark or question for each well-wisher. She managed to make a formality come to life, and, in an indescribably tactful manner, make each guest a part of the occasion essentially her own big moment. It was a feat the etiquet books might well discuss, if they don't already do so.

* *

IT is suddenly, and ardently, spring. Luncheon was served out of doors at the Lawrence Williamses in Lake Forest Sunday, and Stephen Hord had a crocus in his buttonhole. Boys at the crossroads are selling pussy willows to motorists from town, and the forsythia is tipped with pale gold. The Kenwood avenue block that was for years a part of the old Dunham cow pasture was blocked off Saturday for children to play in, and hotel doormen are beginning to wonder when they will be given their summer uniforms. There is a fashion show every day, and ladies, looking extremely chic, attend, complaining they haven't a thing to wear. Storm windows are coming down and screens going in. Terriers, with newly plucked coats, linger over fascinating spring scents in the relaxing earth. The Saddle and Cycle club is grooming its tennis courts this week. The famous dachshund Vicki Baum now has five little black puppies. Ambrose Cramer got sunburned from Sunday's sun and his wife appeared in a new blue hat surely inspired by a spring whimsy. We asked the cook if we couldn't have rhubarb pie for dinner tonight, and on the way downtown saw Coe Glade on Lake Shore drive on roller skates.

SYNOPSIS.

Dorinda Quarles is found stabbed to death following a dinner party in her Paris apartment. Dorinda, untrammeled by scruples or breeding, had served a drug to her guests. Helen Roderick, who was a friend of Dorinda's deceased mother, was staying with Dorinda. She didn't attend the dinner, but awakened early in the morning and discovered the crime and the guests lying about in deep sleep. She is able to arouse her friend Tommy Rostetter, a journalist. Tommy's dinner partner was Dinah Blake, an American artist, whose engagement to Christopher Loughton, in the American embassy, was, according to rumor, broken on account of Dorinda. Dinah is not among the sleeping guests. Tommy arouses the others and sends for the police, then calls to break the news to Dorinda's stepfather, Basil Jethro, celebrated Oxford scholar, who was her guardian and trustee and who had long since given up trying to curb his charge. Dinah can't be found. Tommy conducts a search for her and for facts to help clear her of suspicion. She paid a call on the Hubert Loughtons shortly past midnight, after leaving Dorinda's party. Dinah returns two days later to the apartment which she shares with her cousin, Hallie Pemberton. She had been sleeping in the studio of absent friends. Her memory is a blank. Tommy Rostetter happens to call before the police learn of Dinah's return and persuades Dinah to pretend she is engaged to him, so that jealousy of Dorinda may not be considered incriminating. Basil Jethro had lost his key to Dorinda's apartment in the court of the building the evening of the crime. Tommy's nephew calls to see him and tells him of a friend of his having seen Basil Jethro in a Parisian dive.

INSTALMENT XXVI.

BOLSTERING A LIE.

Though the matter did not seem worthy of pursuit, Tommy asked sarcastically, "What happened? I suppose Jethro spoke to your friend and inquired the right time?"

"Wrong," retorted Rank cunningly. "His eyes had a sort of filmed look and he didn't recognize Filly at all. It was Fil who got the wind up and made a bolt for it. Not quite the ring of truth, I admit," he continued with great fairness. "First and foremost, Fil was probably too blind to identify his own grandfather in gaiters. The only queer point is, why does Bilfilian deny it now? Why has he apparently not the dimmest recollection of the conversation we had? He gets quite heated over it, pooh-poohs the whole idea. Is it all bunkum? Or is this a sort of Freudian memory, locked in the unconscious and liberated only when he's drunk? Which?"

"Take your choice," said Tommy. "I don't want to hear any more about it."

"I'm afraid I haven't interested you in my little problem," said Rank regretfully. "It's puzzled me a lot, though, especially since this business has cropped up. I've kept saying to myself, 'Important philosopher . . . secret life . . . daughter done in . . .'"

"Stepdaughter," muttered his bored uncle.

"Have it your own way. No, I fear there's nothing in it. A pity, somehow."

Rank rose, drained the final drop of his whisky and stood swaying tentatively from one leg to the other. There was a pregnant pause, then Tommy blurted out, "See here, you limpet—is it another loan you're after?"

Rank immediately brightened. "Now you mention it, funds are rather short," he replied with alacrity. "What with doctor's bills——" Here he coughed. "Telegrams and . . . O, many thanks!" He accepted the note thrust angrily in his direction and slid it carefully into a pocketbook. "I'll add this on to the six—no, seven quid. Well, bung-o. Hope you square out of this all right."

But when Tommy thought he was gone he shoved his snub-nosed visage round the edge of the door to deliver a last tidbit of information.

"And I, darling," said Tommy blandly, "had intended to come here with Dinah, only I had work to finish."

"I say—Fil declares he was wearing a magnificent dressing gown. Just thought I'd speak of it."

Tommy heaved an irritated sigh. He was totally unimpressed, as always, by his nephew's highly colored narratives. He reached for a volume and turned to the section headed "Indian Drugs" and read absorbedly. What Mowbray had supplied was evidently a sweetmeat called majun. Majun, it seemed, caused hallucinations.

The clause which troubled him most was: "These being governed by the nature of subject towards which thoughts were most often directed." However, even more alarming was the following passage quoted from the Journal of Mental Science of 1894:

"Abuse of hemp drugs, especially when adulterated with datura, will produce even in healthy persons a very violent intoxication simulating mania, or may lead to a morose melancholy condition, or to dementia. These conditions are generally of short duration and the patient ultimately recovers."

Datura, the seeds of which were used, he found to be a plant growing practically wild in India and Malay. Taken in sufficient quantities it produced giddiness, staggering as in ordinary drunkenness, and great dryness of the throat, followed by deep sleep or coma, sometimes within a quarter of an hour, the time varying in accordance with the amount consumed. A noticeable peculiarity was the dilation of the pupils.

Tommy stared hard at these last words. How well he remembered the enormous size of Dinah's pupils! He could see again, too, the gesture of clutching at her throat, as though she were stifling. If he had had any lingering doubt as to the girl's being genuinely drugged it would now be dispelled, but the trouble lay in that fatal phrase, "violent intoxication simulating mania." In spite of all his arguments, in spite of the contrary evidence of the doorknob, it came over him overwhelmingly that Dinah could have committed murder and afterwards retained not the slightest recollection of it. He knew to a certainty that she had gone about for weeks in mental torment aggravated by repression, her unconsciousness surcharged with the primitive craving for revenge which her reasoning self forbade. Under the influence of a drug as dangerous as this majun, who could say what forces might have been liberated?

He could bear no more. Banging to the covers of Medical Jurisprudence, he hurled the book across the room.

At ten next morning Tommy was ushered into the apartment of the Baroness Waldheim, in the Avenue Kleber.

A gold laced footman led him through palatial corridors to a boudoir where Sophie Waldheim, keg shaped and swathed in a peach colored negligee, lay on a gilded chaise longue.

"My adored one!" she shouted. "So you've come to tell old Sophie the real facts of this desperate affair. Ach, Gott—that poor, hotheaded Dorinda, butchered under your very nose! And the sweet little Virginia girl, so charming, so dignified. Think of it, my dear boy! Both of them, here in my salon, only the afternoon before!"

"'And I, darling,' said Tommy blandly, 'had intended to come here with Dinah, only I had work to finish. We meant you to be the first to hear our news, but when Dinah found you surrounded——'"

"What news?" The baroness bored her visitor with a look. "You and she? You mean to say you know this Dinah?"

"But, my dear lady, haven't you read the morning papers?" cried Tommy, his blue eyes wide with astonishment. "But I forgot, the announcement's only mentioned in one of them. Why, Dinah Blake and I are going to be married."

"Married! You are going to marry this . . . this . . ." Sophie sank back, overcome, and fanned herself with a scented handkerchief. "I can't cope with such shocks. I had no notion of this. None whatever. And . . . and . . ." She battled hard with her emotions and finally blurted out, "And Dorinda? Did she know about it?"

"I imagine so," he returned, his smile utterly fatuous.

"Diable! So both those young hussies were laughing in their sleeves!" mused the lady. "I was under the impression, you know, that it was that young man in the American embassy."

"Loughton? O, that episode petered out some time ago. Decent chap, of course, but——" He gave a tolerant shrug. "However, what about congratulations?"

Sophie surged towards him. "My pet, my own! I do wish you happiness. The child has good blood in her veins. But how shall you deal with this devilish business? To be sure, what you have told me alters it completely, but——"

"Why, what does it alter?" inquired Tommy innocently.

Sophie stirred uneasily. "O, all these vile insinuations in the press," she stammered. "It's quite true, mon cher, that she recalls nothing?"

"Nothing whatever. If you like, I'll give you the full account," volunteered Tommy obligingly, and with a confidential air he set forth the circumstances he wished to make public.

Bacon Hastens Meal Making of Hurried Cooks

BY MARY MEADE.

The meal maker with time to fritter is veritably a rara avis these days, practically unheard of as far as I can discover. Which is a most excellent reason for looking low and high for speedy dishes—one which gladdens families without at the same time stealing away all our precious playtime hours.

Such being the case, one of the most superior helpmates I've found for giving the family "something to eat in a hurry" is bacon. And a speedster among the bacon favorites at our house is:

STUFFED BACON STRIPS.

You will need fifteen slices of bacon and about 2½ cups of soft bread crums. Mix the crums with seasoning, several squirts of onion juice, and water to just moisten. Neatly transfer a heaping teaspoon of this dressing to one end of a slice of bacon. Roll it up around the dressing and secure it with a woodpin. Do likewise with all the other slices. These stuffed strips may now be broiled with frequent turnings or pan fried, also with great attention given to their all-over brownness.

Still another hustler-up in the bacon line is a special pet luncheon dish I root for on all occasions:

SCRAMBLED BACON AND CORN.

1 No. 2 can corn
4 eggs
¼ cup milk
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt

Put the bacon in a deep, cold skillet and cook it slowly until it is somewhat browned. Add the corn and stir about until hot. Now beat the eggs until light and combine with the milk and seasoning. Pour this over the bacon mixture and continue cooking and stirring until the eggs are set in their usual scrambled manner. Have ready hot, buttered toast and serve the scramble atop the slices. Cress or parsley gives the final touch that tempts you.

Mexican rice is another short cut to family fame. And for once here's a rice you don't have to stand and nurse while it tries to gallop all over the stove:

MEXICAN RICE.

¾ cup diced bacon
1 cup uncooked rice
1½ cups canned tomatoes or
3 large ripe tomatoes
½ cup sliced onions
1 tablespoon Chili powder
2-3 teaspoon salt
4 cups boiling water
2 eggs, hard cooked

Turn the bacon into a sauce pan and simmer it. Meanwhile wash and drain the rice. Add it to the bacon and cook with occasional stirrings until the rice begins to take color. Then add the seasoning, Chili powder, onion, and tomato, cooking for still another ten minutes, watching it diligently lest it burn. Now add the water and cook slowly with a cover on until the rice is tender and has taken up all the excess liquid. If it seems to be in danger of burning before it is done, then add a little more water. And finally dish up your rice onto a hot platter and garnish it with those hard cooked eggs, cut in quarters.

Warm Weather Brings Crop of Plans for Fair

Century Club Decision to Be Made This Week.

Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Porter.

Ever since Miss Wales was graduated from Smith college in the class of 1931, Mr. Porter has been her devoted escort. It was while she was a student at the eastern school, however, that she and Mr. Porter were introduced by their mutual friend, Mrs. Charles Drake, now of Davenport, Ia. Miss Wales and Mrs. Drake [the former Helen Depue] were roommates in one of the popular Green street houses at Smith.

The engagement of Miss Wales and Mr. Porter was to have been announced about a month ago when Mr. Wales' sudden and tragic death came as a shock to his family, legal associates, and many friends. Because it was his wish, however, that the betrothal be made known, Mrs. Wales is doing it as informally and quietly as possible. Just as quietly Miss Wales and Mr. Porter will be married the latter part of June at the Wales' Winnetka home, which is at 480 Sheridan road. After a wedding trip they will return to make their home for a year with Mrs. Wales.

Before entering Smith Miss Wales was graduated from the Roycemore school in Evanston and Rosemary hall at Greenwich, Conn. The last two or three years she has traveled extensively and served actively as a member of the Evanston Junior league. Last summer with her family she enjoyed a cruise through the Land of the Northern Lights.

Mr. Porter was graduated from the University of Wisconsin. He is now associated with a Chicago manufacturing company.

Chairs Popular at Flower Show.

Profiting by experience last summer at the World's Fair, many a visitor to the Annual Flower and Garden show, now in progress on Navy pier, is indulging in a wheel chair for the sake of comfort and convenience.

"I'm not lame, just lazy," was Dr. Julia Strawn's comment the other evening as she was seeing the glorious riot of bloom on wheels. Dr. Strawn was looking especially attractive in a dark tailored suit and broad brimmed sailor hat.

There was a reason for Mrs. David S. Cook Jr. taking a chair the same evening, for she is suffering a lame knee. "A very beautiful show," she commented after she had made the mile up the pier and back again.

Early yesterday morning before reporting at his downtown office, Prince Cantacuzene met his mother, the Princess Julia Cantacuzene, as she stepped off an eastbound train and delivered her at the Potter Palmers' Astor street apartment. She has come for the primary purpose of delivering an address tomorrow evening before the annual national defense conference of the American Legion auxiliary at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club, but she intends to extend her visit at least four or five days.

Princess Cantacuzene's daughter and Prince Cantacuzene's sister, Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, the former Mrs. Bruce Smith, arrived in Chicago last week to be the guest of her brother at his house in Wadsworth. She and her mother will return east together to the Washington, D. C., apartment they have had during the winter.

As every one knows, no doubt, the senior Princess Cantacuzene is a cousin of the Palmers. She was born a Grant, the daughter of Gen. Frederick Dent Grant and the granddaughter of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. As chairman of the American Legion auxiliary's national committee on defense, she has for the last several years directed the auxiliary's nation-wide activities in support of adequate preparations against war. She will discuss this program tomorrow evening.

Vassar alumnae will hold their spring meeting this afternoon at the Fortnightly club. Dean Mildred C. Thompson of Vassar will make an informal address on "Are Colleges Human?" Dean Thompson will receive informally from 2:30 o'clock until 3. Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, will sing.

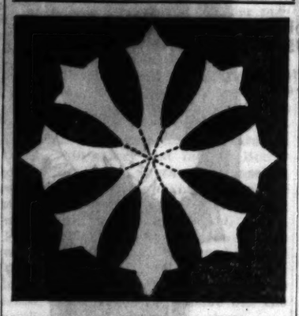
Snowflake Quilt Design Is Pretty in Blue and White



Snowflake.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents each, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Few quilt blocks are loveliер than "Snowflake," made in white and applied to a blue ground. The quilt was first made in the east in 1840. The quilting design used for this spread is a modified snowflake with tiny drifts quilted in each corner.

Music Chiefs at Concert of City's Schools

Supervisors Open National Conference Here.

About as many of the visiting music supervisors attending the national conference as could find accommodations in the Auditorium theater were entertained last night by a festival concert of the Chicago high schools.

The large Marshall orchestra played a group of numbers under the direction of Merle Isaac. There followed in quick succession the Roosevelt Symphonic choir and chorus, two organizations under the direction of Erhardt Bergstrasser; a girls' chorus from various high schools, Edith M. Wines, director, and the Schurz choristers under the baton of La Roy Wetzel.

A specially featured number was "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus," by the late Dr. J. Lewis Browne, former director of public school music, sung by the Roosevelt chorus to his memory.

In makeup of program and in performance this was a concert that aroused much interest and enthusiastic applause from the supervisors who composed the audience. Seldom is there to be heard a lovelier quality of tone than comes out of the throats of large groups of young singers, and when they are under such excellent discipline and subject to such careful training as the greater number of last night's choruses, there is reason to become extra fervid in thinking of them.

Much can be said, also, of the alert accuracy, good tone, and warm interpretations of the Marshall orchestra.

Courses in musical instruction as an essential of the public school curricula were defended by Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan during an address of welcome before the conference which opened a five day meeting at the Stevens hotel.

"This conference," he said, "offers encouragement and inspiration to pupils and teachers of the entire nation. Most important of all, it proclaims to a doubting public that musical education is a necessity. Its great authority will aid in spreading happiness to millions."

"Private and parochial schools here," he declared, "appreciate the value and beauty of music, but financial depressions and political extravagance demand a sacrificial goat be made in the tax supported school. The evil deeds of politicians are piled upon the little goat called music, which with a well directed kick is propelled into the bush leaving its tormentors with a warm glow of virtuous satisfaction."

Sandburg Talk to Aid Fund of Art Institute

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Art institute has an interesting literary event planned for tonight. Carl Sandburg, Chicago poet, will lecture in Fullerton hall at 8:15 o'clock under the auspices of the Alumni association of the institute. Tickets are 50 cents and may be purchased at the school office. The proceeds will be used for the scholarship fund.

A group of water colors, chiefly modern in character, by some fifteen members of Delta Phi Delta, the Greek letter fraternity of the Art institute school, may be seen in the Palmolive Book shop, 919 North Michigan avenue.

The exhibit is small, but has its attractive points. There is, in particular, a gleaming silver fish against a vivid blue background that is intriguing. One or two still life studies are of interest. Naturally something of the student atmosphere is felt in the exhibit, but several of the paintings give promise.

Across from this exhibit, which continues to April 19, is an exhibition of photographs of the Russian ballet by Victor Haveman, in the Florence Meyers shop, 900 North Michigan avenue. In newspaper parlance these photographs are what is known as "candid," that is, they are not posed studies but pictures of the dancers in action. They are stunning, alive, alert, and full of color. The poetry of motion so beautifully illustrated in the ballet has been successfully caught by the camera.

Creed Launches Suits with Hooded Capes That Make a Hat Superfluous

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — The famous old tailoring establishment of Creed in the Rue Royale has made practical clothes for the queens of Europe for half a century. This season they have broken with the old traditions, and are launching some daring style novelties, no less practical. Young Mr. Creed, who is designing there, was a designer in a famous New York house for several years, and he has returned to Paris to put American verve and chic into the house of his father.

The motoring and practical sports suit in our sketch is one of the products of Creed's designing talent. A number of fashionable Parisiennes have adopted it already. They like the hooded cape, which enables them to dispense with the extra item of the hat when out on active country jaunts.

The cape and the skirt of this model are made of a rich brown tweed, and young Mr. Creed uses the cotton or woolen tweed for the suit according to what his clients want—for the two have practically the same look to the casual eye.

The skirt has a center front inverted box plait and is draped over to the left side of the waistline with a triangular piece of the tweed held by two gold rings.

The blouse is made of beige challis printed with red and blue rings and is gathered around the neck on a brown cord with tasseled ends.

"Stealing" Not Grave Offense in Young Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Suppose your little boy or girl of 5 took something that wasn't his or hers, would you be heartbroken?

We think of the word "steal" and we are horrified. Yet such behavior may be easier to deal with than some other behavior, such as fears, night terrors, or inability to get on with other children.

Take the following: Anne, we'll call her, is 6½, loves her dolls dearly, and is passionately enthusiastic over a doll house she is making. People give her furniture for it and she has been trying to make some herself. The other day when they reached home after shopping her mother found that she had taken a delectable hand-painted little doll's hairbrush from a counter.

It is the first time this has ever happened. The child was wrought up emotionally when it was discovered.

Many, perhaps I should say, most children take something that does not belong to them at some time in their early years. They know, not that it is wrong, but that the doing will meet with disapproval. And usually the act is never repeated.

One reason it is not usually repeated is that the child really knows better. And the other is that as a rule so much fuss is made over the act—so much disapproval and explanation ensue that it is impressed upon the child strongly that here is something one does not do.

This mother must not take this occurrence so seriously. She must not call it stealing. A quiet explanation without emotion is all that is necessary.

May Man Have Weekly Evening Free of Wife?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Saturday night is husband's night out the country over, according to a check-up by Dr. George Gallup, director of research. The fact that all husbands suffer the Saturday night itching foot is presented here to quiet those women who think they're personally discriminated against, when hubby hints the boys would like him to join in a little game.

Dr. Gallup got his findings from a study of the Saturday night radio audience population, which drops 20 per cent of its listening audience.

The peak listening nights, according to our source of information, are Thursday, Friday, and Sunday, the big home nights for the family.

Thursday nights home are probably explained by Thursday being popular as the maid's day off. For Friday's lien on the fireside chairs, we have no explanation other than that Friday has always been a slow entertainment evening, and maybe there is a certain amount of resting up for the next night out, Saturday. It must be admitted that not all the husbands absent from the home loudspeaker on Saturday nights are off on stag parties. The wives are frequently along at the club dance or theater or night club bridge or neighborhood party.

If a woman cannot find occupation for herself one evening a week, reading, catching up on correspondence, catching up with her old girl friends, or just retiring to catch up on sleep, we feel that the husband is due for an evening away from such an uningenious soul. What do you think?

Right Exercise Will Eradicate Posture Faults

Office Habits Encourage Muscle Flabbiness.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we were talking about the swivel-chair-worker-look which one may get from long hours of round-shoulder application to work. I promised to tell you how you can get the muscles of the back strengthened so you'll not only escape the "sign" of the swivel-chair worker but make your clothes appear much smarter.

It's all a habit of getting into a curved back way of working. So, why not exchange a bad habit for a good one? Habits work both ways. When you sit at your desk or, for that matter, anywhere, bear in mind two things: chest up and abdomen in! Sitting or standing, these two practiced observations make a remarkable improvement in one's appearance.

At home make a business of practicing on a straight chair, sitting back on said chair, keeping weight on the back of the thighs. You begin inviting spine and shoulder curves, a protruding abdomen, double chin, and other liabilities when you slump away forward on the chair, holding to the edge of the chair with buttocks only. Get the whole thigh on the chair until you can sit forward with graceful erectness. Of course, if you've been a curved shoulder addict for years, you are going to have to do some back muscle strengthening before you can get these rear muscles to respond. And I am going to give you one which will prove of great value in strengthening those back muscles. It's simple to do, but exceedingly good.

Stand with your back to the wall using a small pillow or folded towel to protect the back of the head. With feet together and about one and a half feet forward from the wall stretch arms forward. Head rests against the wall on the pillow or folded towel so that the weight of the body is supported by the head and feet. Now lower the buttocks to the wall and recover to first position. Repeat—back, forward, back, forward—fifty times.

Miss Swanson Gets Call for Film Comeback

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., April 9.—[Special.]—Producer Sam Goldwyn has important comeback plans for Gloria Swanson, whom he is bringing back from New York hurriedly to star in "Barbary Coast." Goldwyn had at first intended the part for his new Russian find, Anna Sten. Gloria's film fortunes and film fame, which slumped with her extended recent film vacation, ought to profit by the Goldwyn connection.

The funniest thing about the sore finger of W. C. Fields, comedian, is that I know his story is true. Bill rowed out on the lake at Lakeside Golf club and was feeding the swans. An over-hungry swan bit his finger.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

THE JUMP RAISE IN A MINOR SUIT.

Continuing this subject from yesterday, I want to remind you of a response we have already discussed the minimum raise in the suit. This is to give your partner a chance in case his hand is well above a minimum; in doubtful situations use this single raise, when you cannot rightly bid two trumps and do not feel justified in giving the jump raise. If your partner does rebid over this weak response, then you have good reason to hope for game and should tell him this by your next bid. Holding

Sp. A x x x x	Di. Q x x x
Hts. x	Cl. K J x x

and hearing a diamond bid from your partner, do not be afraid of missing a game if it is in the cards. The heart situation rules out a two-no-trump response, and that would be misleading anyway, as the hand is not of the no-trump type and contains barely two tricks. Three diamonds may appear the most informative response, and many theorists would work out several "raises" in trump length and the singleton and insist that you jump the bid. However, I would be content to bid two diamonds. If my partner must pass this, it is very unlikely that we can take eleven tricks in that suit or nine in no trumps. If he bids two hearts, now bid three no trumps, the delayed jump showing that the gap has been bridged; if he bids spades or clubs, now you know that no trumps is not your destiny and should raise his second suit to show four of them in support. Your partner will now select his trump suit and bid for game in the suit which offers the best playing chance. Spades, of course, is preferable—but if the choice is between the two minors, he knows you have four of each and should select his shorter suit for trumps, enabling the longer suit to be employed to furnish a discard of losers from dummy.

Choosing the Trump Suit.

Last week Sir Derrick Wernher, who assists me in preparing these articles, obtained a top score in a Howell game through making a brilliant raise in the partner's shorter suit though holding strong support in the first suit. Incidentally, several pairs got into trouble on this hand, bidding for an impossible game, presumably because they did not spot the duplication in both minor suits. The Sims system, aided by an overcall by the enemy, steered this particular partnership to the right declaration, though it is true that the extra trick gained in the play could have been saved by West had he opened hearts. The South hand bid a diamond on

Sp. A x	Di. A Q x x x
Hts. x x	Cl. A Q x x

and West, holding five spades to the king, queen, jack, and king queen, six, two of hearts, overcalled with one spade; he was not vulnerable. Werner, North, passed with

Sp. x x x x	Di. K J 10
Hts. J x	Cl. K x x x

as the bidding had been kept open by an opponent. South bid two clubs, West ventured to two spades, and now North raised to three clubs, which held the contract. In the play, the spade was opened, declarer won it and cleared the trumps in three leads. Now the diamond suit enabled dummy to shed both hearts and South made five-odd, losing only a heart and a spade. With diamonds as trumps, it is impossible to make more than ten tricks. When South gambled for game in no trumps, West, duly warned of the spade-stopper, opened his fourth best heart, and they ran five heart tricks immediately.

BANISH COMMON CONSTIPATION WITH DELICIOUS CEREAL

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Look out for headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexions, sleeplessness. Frequently these are warning signs of common constipation. If neglected, your health may be impaired.

Today you can rid yourself of common constipation by eating a tempting cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body it forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes. How much better this is than taking patent medicines!

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually overcome most types of common constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DANCE! DON'T RUB IT IN, GWEN! IT'S ALL I CAN DO TO WALK AT THIS TIME OF THE MONTH!

FIDDLESTICKS: YOU'RE COMING AND YOU'LL BE YOURSELF, TOO. I'LL TELL YOU HOW TO END "REGULAR" PAIN:

AND SHE DID!

Yes, the girl who once gave in to periodic pain has found a way to snap out of it.

Even those women who have always been "knocked flat" may now go through this time in perfect comfort.

The treatment is explained here. It's simple. It's perfectly harmless. It doesn't interfere with Nature's necessary process; all it does is block the pain. And this is all you have to do:

Watch the calendar. Just before your time, take a tablet of Midol, followed by a large glass of water. The usual pains may not start at all. But if you feel one twinge, take a second tablet.

That's all! Relief is complete, and lasts for several hours. Two tablets should see you through your worst day. Your period becomes just an incident. No need to "favor" yourself, or "keep off your feet." Keep your dates, and keep active.

Midol is not a narcotic. Don't be afraid of the speed with which it takes hold. Don't hesitate to try it, for it has helped thousands of desperate cases. Just ask the druggist for Midol—today, so you'll be prepared.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

It may strike you as funny that a nuts and bolts company, in other words a hardware manufacturer, has gone into the beauty business, but thrust your sense of humor sternly behind you and listen to our announcement of a new, slick, smart alecky compact that we know you'll be crazy about.

It's a slender, light little vanity skilfully designed to hold your door key, and if that isn't a find for any absent minded woman we'll eat these words, because it's true of most of us that we're never without a powder puff but we're forever mislaying the key to the front door. Here's the way to keep the two together.

The little compacts are enameled in assorted colors, all with chromium trimming. We were rather partial to the ivory one but you can have a much gayer one if you like. You'll be bowled over by the price; they're beautifully inexpensive in a Chicago store.

When the tricky compact is closed nothing protrudes to disturb its slender lines except a small flattish knob at the top. When this knob, set in its slot, is merely pushed along its groove the doorkey automatically pops out.

The inside is divided by a metal mirror; on one side of this is your cylinder key, held in place by an ingenious spring. On the other are powder or powder and rouge compartments, each with its tiny puff. Once the key is inserted and the mirror snapped down it's held fast for all time. You can't lose it unless you lose the compact, which heaven forbid.

Dont'cha think you'd like one for your evening bag, or for any bag, for that matter? It will save a lot of door pounding if you're the forgetful type.

CHICAGO WOMAN BUYS WINNETKA HOME AT $90,000

One of Largest Suburban Deals in Months.

BY AL CHASE.

One of the largest suburban real estate transactions in several months was the purchase by Dorothy A. Shrader, wife of Frank K. Shrader, vice president and director of Halsey, Stuart & Co., of a Winnetka residence for an indicated $90,000. This was disclosed yesterday when the deed was filed for record at the county recorder's office.

Mrs. Shrader bought the house at 819 Sheridan road, Winnetka, from Mrs. Mary Mansfield Jones, widow of E. Mansfield Jones, controler of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company at the time of his death four years ago. E. Sawyer Smith, of Smith & Goss, Winnetka, was broker. Mr. and Mrs. Shrader's town house is at 1209 Astor street.

Built by I. K. Friedman.

The house was built by I. K. Friedman, author, twenty years ago from plans by Pond & Pond. It occupies grounds which front 201 feet on Sheridan road, extending back approximately 600 feet to the lake shore. It is of stucco and contains twelve rooms, four baths and has a three car garage.

Mrs. Shrader gave in part payment the eight room house, with three baths and a two car garage, at Deerfield, overlooking the Briargate Golf club. It occupies a two acre site. Mrs. Jones has leased the Deerfield house to Clarence Morgan of Clarence Morgan, Inc., chemicals, who now lives in Chicago. Harkness & Lloyd of Highland Park, negotiated the lease.

Buys River Forest House.

Henry F. Woulfe, an official of the Pepsodent company, yesterday purchased the nine room brick residence at 841 Clinton place, River Forest, from Ralph G. and Amelia Tiffany. The revenue stamps on the deed indicate a price of $20,000.

Another residential transaction yesterday was the purchase of the nine room residence at 230 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette, by Leona A. Wehrheim from A. W. Weil & Co., Inc., for a reported $24,000, subject to a $4,000 incumbrance. A two flat building at 6835 Hillidale avenue, Chicago, was given in part payment.

IOWA POSTOFFICE MOVING REDUCES RATE TO CHICAGO

How the building of a new postoffice a short distance from the old one in Dubuque, Ia., caused a material reduction in the parcel post rates between Chicago and Dubuque was revealed yesterday by G. R. Leonard, president of G. R. Leonard & Co., publishers of postal data.

When the new structure on 6th street between Locust and Bluff streets became the official postoffice, it was found that it was in unit of area No. 2414. The old building at 9th and Locust streets had been in unit of area No. 2413. The change brought the postoffice from zone 3 in relation to Chicago to zone 2, which has lower rates.

A 70 pound package which formerly cost $1.47 to send from Chicago to Dubuque may now be sent for 84 cents. A package weighing 16 pounds now costs 25 cents instead of 39 cents. Mr. Leonard said the most famous previous case of the shifting of a postoffice with lowered postal rates was in New York, when the location was changed from Park row to 32d street.

1933 ACTIVITIES OF STATE STREET GROUP REVIEWED

The activities of the State street council during 1933 were reviewed yesterday in a meeting of the council at the Palmer house. Accomplishments in the way of stimulating business, improving State street and helping to keep up the morale of the buying public in the time of economic stress were enumerated in a report submitted by Walter L. Gregory, president of the council.

Among the activities recalled were State street day, the street's 100th anniversary week and State street hospitality day.

"State street," said Mr. Gregory, "is not just a hard, cold surfaced highway of stone and traffic. It is, as it has been and always will be, a street of romance, adventure, and courage. It is a market place vibrant and living that welcomes the owner of the lowliest penny as well as the owner of the haughtiest dollar."

4,000 MERCHANTS GATHERING HERE TO BUY SUPPLIES

More than four thousand merchants from eighteen states in the Chicago territory gathered here yesterday to attend the midseason market week sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Approximately 500 of the city's leading manufacturers and wholesalers are participating in the event.

Sales fully met expectations, it was reported. It is believed substantial purchasing will continue the remainder of the week as middle western retail stocks have been reduced by an excellent Easter business and supplies on hand for summer sales are said to be low.

SUITS

Is the Most Important Word in Fashion's Vocabulary This Year And Now That Spring Is Here to Stay—It's

SHEERS

Suits to the right of us, suits to the left of us—everywhere we turn, this spring, we see suits and more suits. And don't think for a minute that Fashion is going to let rising temperatures talk her out of this pet fashion. On the contrary, she's featuring "sheers."

Sheer suits are virtually the fashion for summer—and it's really extraordinary how far they have already gone toward making themselves indispensable to the spring and summer wardrobe.

These in our collections show a charming diversity of style. Some use pique accents, some go in for taffeta, some combine with prints—but each one has an individuality all its own.

A scalloped and embroidered collar of white crepe and the elaborately detailed sleeves give a "dressmaker" air to this sheer suit. The frock has the much-in-demand ¾ sleeve. Navy or black. 36 to 42. At $15. (Shown at the top.)

Women's Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

The white pique jabot gives a fresh and spring-like charm to this short-sleeved sheer with wrist length jacket. It's especially designed for the shorter woman and may be had in plain navy and black or with polka dots on navy, black or brown. 33½ to 43½. (Shown at far left.) $22.75.

Apparel Petite, Fourth Floor.

Misses' Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

$25

A peasant linen collar decoratively fagoted, and three peasant linen flowers are a distinctly new touch on this wide-ribbed sheer suit in sizes for women. In navy blue only, with natural linen collar. Right. $29.75.

Women's Better Frocks, Fourth Floor.

$29.75

Very new! The pastel sheer fingertip jacket with a two-tone frock that has pastel top and dark skirt. Dusty pink with black; powder blue with navy; Aqua with brown. Sizes for misses. $25.

$22.75

Expertly proportioned to the larger woman, this Gray Shop frock combines a printed top with a plain skirt in a short-sleeved one-piece frock, and tops it with a long sleeved jacket. Navy or black. 40½ to 50½. (Directly at left.) $22.75.

TEENYA'S BOWS

Show us a Teenya that can resist a bow! And, of course, it's always pleasant to have several bows on the string at one time—all distinctly different types. The Teenya who has these three crepe frocks in her wardrobe can take her choice of a taffeta bow, a plaid organdy bow, and a cross-bar pique bow.

THE frock with the pique bow pretends to be a two-piece suit, but it's really all in one piece. In navy, light blue, rose. 11 to 17.

THE frock with the taffeta bow has a separate jacket. In blue, rose, beige, navy—the double bow in white and a color to match the frock. 11 to 17.

THE organdy bow frock has an adjustable waistline to make it fit to perfection. It fastens with a buckle in back. In navy, rose or light blue. 11 to 17.

WHITE SOX EVEN PIRATE SERIES; WIN, 17 TO 7

HAWKS RENEW STANLEY CUP DRIVE TONIGHT

Victory Over Wings Will End Series.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Spring and baseball and golf and tennis are here once more, but the 1933-'34 National Hocky league season seemingly goes on and on without end. The Detroit Red Wings are largely responsible for the situation, for it was they who prolonged the world series of the ice game when they spanked the Chicago Blackhawks Sunday, 5 to 2. They will meet again this evening at the Stadium in the fourth debate for the Stanley cup, and any hocky fan in the country is convinced that there will be no fooling about the matter.

The Wings' victory was astounding, for they came to life with a will Sunday against a team which had run them into the ice during the first two games at Detroit last week with an exhibition of pluperfect hocky. There is no doubt about the kind of game which will be played tonight. The Wings will be struggling to tie the series at two games each, which would result in a fifth game at Detroit Thursday night, while the Hawks will attempt to regain the form they displayed in their initial two victories, the form of which there were only fleeting glimpses Sunday night. A Chicago triumph will end the series and make any further wandering on the part of the 42 year old Stanley trophy unnecessary. The battered cup is now in Chicago, having been sent on from New York by the Rangers, who won it last year.

Hawks Let Down.

The Hawks' defeat Sunday night yesterday was generally ascribed to a natural letdown following the great hocky they had played from the last two games of the regulation season until the Sabbath disaster.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, the owner of the Hawks, and Manager Tommy Gorman were undismayed by the unexpected setback with which the Wings managed to extend the series.

"We simply were not clicking Sunday night," Maj. McLaughlin said, "and I wasn't surprised. Counting the last two games of the regular schedule, when we beat the Toronto Maple Leafs twice to clinch second place in our division, then took two playoff games with the Canadiens, two more with the Maroons, and the opening pair of games at Detroit, we came out on top eight times in succession. No team can keep that up every night. We have that defeat out of our system, we are still one game ahead of the Wings, and our confidence is not shaken."

The Unexpected Happens.

The strain under which the Hawks and the Wings have been operating makes for the unexpected in the present cup final, Gorman said yesterday.

"It is a curious thing that in a total of fourteen playoff games, involving six teams, only two games have been won on the victors' home ice. It has been a mad, crazy playoff all around, with the unusual happening in nearly every game. Why, two of the best pals on our team, Chuck Gardiner and Johnny Gottselig, almost came to blows near the finish. Everything was breaking against us in those last few minutes and their nerves blew up. After the game was over they shook hands and the incident is completely forgotten. Everything went on Sunday, but one defeat in seven playoff games has not discouraged us."

Although they lost by three goals, the Hawks in reality had more opportunities to win in the course of the game than the Wings. The principal reason for this was Wilf Cude, the Wings' young Welsh goalie, who made 42 stops against Gardiner's 31, and reserved most of his miraculous saves for the moments following a crash in the second period, when he sustained a broken nose.

A Bad Gardiner Night.

Gardiner, on the other hand, had what might be called a bad Gardiner night, one of the few witnessed this year on the part of the man who is admittedly the greatest gate minder in the game. He was not looking for the goal which actually won the game, the one fired in from far out by Doug Young of the Wings. He cannot really be charged with the last pair of Detroit scores, for he was almost helpless, the entire Hawk team having gone down the ice in a last effort to tie the score.

Tonight's game is not expected to be a cautious defensive battle, such as was played in the first game at Detroit and throughout the greater part of the Sunday night contest here, despite the fact that the Wings played their best defensive hocky of the series in beating the Hawks. The fear that one or the other will get the upper hand early and then nurse whatever advantage they may glean probably will cause some of the most spirited work of the season in the closing minutes.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

CHUCK KLEIN, playing center field for the Fort Wayne, Ind., club made six consecutive putouts for his team in the first two innings of a game at Fort Wayne on June 24, 1928. . . . Ducky Holmes, manager of the Dayton Central league team, is said to be the only baseball leader who has directed his club from a telephone pole. . . . He was ruled out of the park in a game in 1932 and climbed a telephone pole outside the grounds from where he wigwagged instructions to his players. . . . Gene Mako of the University of Southern California, who is regarded as a Davis cup possibility, is so afraid of water that he used a doctor's certificate to avoid being tubbed by fraternity brothers. . . . Mako is of Austro-Hungarian birth and not a Japanese, as frequently reported. . . . William Harridge, president of the American league, will see two of his 1934 openers on two consecutive days. He will be at Washington when the Senators and Red Sox play next Monday and at Boston the next day to watch the same teams. . . .

ROSS, McLARNIN BOX FOR WELTER CROWN MAY 28

Sign Today for Battle at Long Island City.

New York, April 9.—(AP)—Two of the rings doughtiest little fighting men, Jimmy McLarnin, the Irishman who holds the welterweight title and Barney Ross, Jewish lightweight champion, today were matched to go 15 rounds for McLarnin's title May 28.

The fight was formally approved by the New York state athletic commission and probably will be staged in Madison Square Garden's big bowl at Long Island city.

Sign Contracts Today.

Contracts will be signed tomorrow. Managers of both boxers have agreed to terms, with McLarnin coming in at the class limit of 147 pounds.

Every promoter in the country has been angling for the match, which may outdraw the Primo Carnera-Max Baer heavyweight title fight which the Garden will stage in the bowl June 14. The commission, incidentally, also formally approved that fight and the date today.

McLarnin has numbered among his victims several Jewish fighters including Benny Leonard, Sid Terris, Ruby Goldstein, and Al Singer.

Ross to Fight at 140.

Ross has been making a tour of the country, defending his synthetic junior welterweight title here and there, and probably will weigh in for the McLarnin fight at around 140 pounds. He had little difficulty making the lightweight limit of 135 pounds for his title defense against Tony Canzoneri here last September, but has been over that weight in his more recent bouts.

The fight will be McLarnin's first defense of the title he won from Young Corbett III. in Los Angeles last May 29. Since then he has taken out citizenship papers, renouncing his Canadian allegiance.

Agree to Defend Titles.

Both fighters, as a condition to the commission sanctioning their meeting, agreed to defend their titles within 90 days after May 28 against challengers previously approved by the commission.

McLarnin, if he retains his crown, therefore must meet Bep Van Klavern, the Dutch importation, for the welterweight title and Ross must defend his lightweight championship against Frankie Klick of San Francisco. He and Klick recently fought a 10 round draw at San Francisco in a nontitle bout.

COLGATE BEATS MICHIGAN NINE IN OPENER, 13-3

Hamilton, N. Y., April 9.—(AP)—Howard [Red] Lafamme, Colgate's veteran pitcher, let Michigan down with six hits today while his mates slugged out a 13 to 3 victory in the opening game for both teams.

Colgate knocked Whitey Wistert out of the box in the second inning during a six run rally. Steve Kuk of Colgate hit a home run. Score:

W-G-N on the Air with Hocky, Cubs Games Today

The final period of the fourth championship hocky game between the Chicago Blackhawks and the Detroit Redwings, to be played at the Chicago Stadium tonight, will be broadcast by W-G-N, starting at 9:45 o'clock. Before play starts in the third and final period, John Harrington will give a summary of the first two periods. He then will pick up the final period for a play by play report.

W-G-N also will broadcast the preview game today between two teams of Cub players at Wrigley field. The broadcast will open at 2:15 p. m. John Harrington at the microphone.

Army Poloists Face Cleveland in Title Game

The Cleveland Riding club and the Sixth Corps Area will play tomorrow night for the high goal junior championship in the western polo tournament, which is in progress at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

Baker, Fergus, and Evinger, the Cleveland players who caught the fancy of polo fans by surprise victories during the Metropolitan league schedule, have continued strongly during the western tournament. Having shown clear cut superiority over the Detroit Blue Eagles and the high goal Chicago Riding club team, the Cleveland trio is conceded an even chance against the United States Army team.

During the Metropolitan league season, Cleveland was the only team to defeat the Sixth Corps, which won the championship. Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, who will lead the army team, was missing from the lineup on that occasion, but his place was occupied by Capt. C. E. Davis, who also is rated at five goals. Lieut. Larry Smith and Lieut. John Hines will support Wilkinson tomorrow night.

In the other game on the program, the 123d Field Artillery will encounter the low goal Fort Sheridan trio in a semi-final in the division for teams rated under seven goals. The Artillery lineup will include Lieut. Art. Zimmerman, Lieut. Don Rice, and Lieut. Carl Johnson. The Fort Sheridan team will be made up of Capt. C. B. Cole, Lieut. R. C. Cooper, and Lieut. E. C. Greiner.

In the Wake of the News

IT'S AN ILL WIND.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., April 9.—O. B. Keeler of the Atlanta Journal, one of the best descriptive and most authoritative writers of present day golf, known to the profession as Bobby Jones' Boswell because he has attended every major tourney in which his fellow townsman participated, owes his newspaper career to admiration for the Chicago Cubs of 1908 and their peerless leader, Frank Chance.

Keeler at the time was employed as accountant and credit man for an Atlanta concern. He was a 33d degree fan. Of Illinois origin, he had gloried in Cub triumphs of 1906, couldn't understand how they lost the world series to the White Sox that year, continued his allegiance through their pennant and world series victory over Detroit in 1907, and was still sounding their praises in the campaign of 1908.

In fact, Keeler's enthusiasm was so exuberant he had become something of an office pest. As a result he was subjected to considerable kidding about his hobby, especially when the Cubs dropped a game. His employer in particular had a habit of "riding" him.

On one of those rare occasions when employer and employé meet socially the subject of baseball came up. Some one asked O. B.'s boss what team he liked for the National league pennant. The boss, probably more to get a rise out of his accountant than because of any real conviction, named Brooklyn. There was an argument, with O. B. becoming more and more excited and vehement, the crowd ganging against him to spur him on. Finally the boss put on a supposed clinching argument for Brooklyn, upon which Keeler turned to him and said:

"I haven't much money, but I've been working several years and have saved up $500. I'll just bet you that amount against $250 that the Cubs beat out Brooklyn."

Keeler's employer flushed but made no reply. Failing to head ominous silence, O. B. continued: "Furthermore, I'll bet you $500 even on the Cubs against the field or $500 to $250 on the Cubs against one other club which you or any of the others name."

By this time it was evident something was wrong in the picture and the group fell apart. The next week Keeler drew a blue envelope. At the time he had been sending short verses about the Cubs for the Atlanta Georgian and he continued until the editor summoned him and offered him a position. Afterward he worked as a baseball writer in Kansas City for four years and then returned to Atlanta.

In telling of the incident Keeler, thoroughly in love with his profession, says: "It's the only time I ever remember having been offensively boastful, but I've always been glad it happened, or I might still be an auditor or treasurer, for which I am not fitted by any known inclination."

CUBS TO BATTLE CUBS TODAY IN PRACTICE GAME

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

In case you are interested to the extent of 55 cents for a grand stand seat, the Cubs are going to play the Cubs at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Wrigley field. This show will be put on by the simple process of dividing the squad into two teams to be known as the Whites and Grays, and sending them through a regulation game. This same program will be in effect for four consecutive days and was arranged merely to keep the boys in trim during the interval between the Washington series and the series with the White Sox which occurs this coming week-end.

Mr. Charley Grimm, the Cub manager, really hasn't enough bone fide talent for two respectable looking nines, but he overcame this difficulty by giving one outfield job to a rookie catcher and making a last minute discovery yesterday of another phenom. The latter appeared with about thirty other kids invited to come out and show how good or bad they could act in a baseball uniform. A lad named Glossop from Belleville, Ill., proved the only one worth a second look. He'll play short for the Grays in the four so-called preview games.

English Stays at Third.

For today at least, and possibly for an indefinite period, Grimm's White team will be made up of fellows who can be regarded as regulars for the impending pennant campaign. Capt. Woody English is back on third and Babe Herman is in right field. Augie Galan, the Coast league rookie who at various times was delegated to handle the third base job, showed in Saturday's game with the Senators that he needs experience. Grimm has decided that a team with pennant ambitions can't afford to experiment.

Here's the White lineup for today and, except for the pitcher, it will be the same in the season's opener next Tuesday at Cincinnati: English, 3b; W. Herman, 2b; Cuyler, cf.; Klein, lf.; F. Herman, rf.; Grimm, 1b; Jurges, ss.; Hartnett, c.; Lee, p. The Grays will be made up of: Galan, 3b; Hack, 2b; Seebold, cf.; Stephenson, lf.; Stainback, rf.; Camilli, 1b; Glossop, ss.; Tate or Phelps, c.; Ward, p.

Both Ward and Lee will try to go nine innings today, but will be yanked if the going gets too tough. So far neither of these promising right handers has accomplished anything worth while. They've been wild, but more work may erase this difficulty.

Warneke to Pitch Opener.

Lon Warneke's excellent job against the Senators on Sunday has just about convinced Grimm that the Arkansas cattleman is the logical pick for the season's opener. That will mean Guy Bush will appear in the second game against the Reds and Charley Root in the third of the series. Root pitched several rounds of batting practice yesterday and worked so well that Grimm has just about ceased to worry over the condition of his 35 year old veteran.

According to present plans neither Warneke nor Bush will appear in the exhibitions with the Sox Saturday and Sunday. Pat Malone and Roy Joiner, the latter the southpaw hope, probably will start against the south siders.

The Cubs will leave Sunday night for Cincinnati. That will give them a chance to work out at the Reds' park Monday.

HOUSE VOTES FOR RACING, BOXING IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., April 9.—(AP)—The house voted today to let the District of Columbia have legal boxing and horse racing.

In a day set aside for consideration of bills affecting the nation's capital, 13 measures were passed. Many make minor changes in District of Columbia regulatory laws.

Measures passed and sent to the senate included those to legalize boxing and horse racing. Pari-mutuel betting on horses would be permitted.

SIMMONS LEADS 21 HIT ATTACK WITH 3 DOUBLES

Chicagoans Hammer Blanton, Birkofer.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aubuquerque, N. M., April 9.—The White Sox were quite riotous today in the business of evening the spring series with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Before the crowd of 6,000, which overflowed the stands and hemmed the playing field, the Chicagoans slapped down the Pirates, 17 to 7.

Twelve of the Sox's runs were made in the first three innings, during which Al Simmons made three doubles and Luke Appling and Red Kress made two each. Because of rather short fences, a ground rule was agreed upon which held all balls out of the premises to doubles. Of nine doubles knocked by the Sox, five were over the fence—two by Simmons, two by Appling and one by Dykes. Three of these would have been bona fide homers in average sized parks.

It Was a Field Day.

The Sox made 21 hits in all off Blanton and Birkofer. Fourteen of them came in the first three innings while the Sox still were bearing down. Sixteen of the Chicago hits were not affected by the size of the arena.

Zeke Bonura, with a single and a double, brought to 20 the string of games in which he has hit safely.

Sam Jones pitched the first five innings, but was foxy enough to keep all but P. Waner from utilizing the ground rule. Les Tietje pitched the last four innings and held the Pirates to one run.

The day's triumph made it five victories each for the Sox and Pirates in the spring series, including the two games played in Los Angeles, which the Pirates won. On the current road trip the Sox have won five while losing three. In the ten games of the series to date the Sox have scored 78 runs to 57 for the Pirates.

Gallivan Is Next.

The teams will perform at Tucumcari, N. M., tomorrow. Phil Gallivan will pitch instead of George Earnshaw, who had been scheduled. Earnshaw wants more rest after the two innings he pitched in Tucson last week. Larry French is scheduled to work for the Pirates.

Two ground rule doubles over the short fences and a legitimate double furnished most of the impetus in a four run Sox splurge in the first half of the first inning. Uhalt walked and after Bordagaray had lined to L. Waner he took second on a wild pitch. Bonura walked, then Simmons knocked the ball over the right field fence for a double, Uhalt scoring and Bonura, under the rule, being obliged to stop at third. Appling then knocked the ball over the left field fence for a double, scoring Bonura and putting Simmons on third. Dykes fanned, but Kress cracked a double to center that would have been of that caliber in any ball park, Simmons and Appling scoring. Pasek flied to Roettger.

Sox Continue Parade.

A walk to Roettger, a ground rule double by P. Waner and Vaughan's single gave the Pirates two runs in the Pirate half of the first inning.

The Sox made four more runs in the second inning, but this time without aid of ground rules. Singles by Jones, Uhalt, Bonura, and Simmons and Kress' second double did the business. The Pirates failed to score in their half despite a ground rule double by Veltman, a single by L. Waner, and a walk to Roettger.

The Sox continued their four an inning policy in the third. Singles by Jones, Uhalt, and Bordagaray, and Simmons and Appling's second drive over the fence accounted for the cluster. The Pirates in their third scored a run on singles by Traynor and Vaughan, and Suhr's fly.

After the Sox had been shut out in the fourth the Pirates touched up Jones with a flock of hits not affected by ground rules. The net of a four

RACE BOARD PUTS ERRANT TURFMEN IN A TOUGH SPOT

Asks Questions About Doping Charges.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The several owners, trainers, and jockies indicted as a result of the narcotic raids at Chicago race tracks last summer are presented with one embarrassing question as they file their applications for licenses to race in Illinois this year.

One of the questions which the new Illinois racing commission has placed on the license application blanks follows:

"Has an indictment or information been returned or complaint made against you by the United States, or any state, charging purchase, sale, use or possession of narcotics? State when and where—if matter disposed of and how."

More widely known horsemen were caught in the federal narcotic horse doping net in Chicago last season than in any other racing center. A number of federal indictments were returned, but so far none of the cases has come to trial.

There is quite a jocky colony at Aurora and most of the good riders are finding it easy to pick up considerable extra money by galloping horses during the training hours. Among the jockies who were in action yesterday morning were Melvin Knight, George Ellis, Nick Burger, R. Moon, Reggie Cooper, Willie Creese, Joe Redding, and Dan Brammar. The latter is an apprentice and will wear colors for the first time during the Aurora meeting. He is under contract to H. C. McConnell. Redding has signed a contract to ride for the L. M. Severson stable of Chicago.

One of the big stables due at Aurora within the next few days is that of J. C. Ellis, who owns the Dade Park track in Kentucky. The Ellis horses, which will be trained by former jocky O. Clelland, include Mutual Friend, Curly Head, Naneski, Moral Miss, Running Star, Roman Beauty, Golden On, Parr Boy and Miss Harmful.

From the Bowie track at Maryland E. K. Bryson is shipping 16 horses to the Aurora course. They include Hooligan, Engagement, Three Daggers, Drury, Rishi, Foxland Hall, First General, Daisy Cutter, Noble Pledge, Our Mae and Blind Star.

Two stables to be moved into the Aurora track within a few days from downstate are those of the Evergreen Stock Farm and Sam Gorbet. There will be a dozen in the Evergreen Stock Farm band while Gorbet's string will include Port O'Play, Hoops, Snaplock, King Cherokee, Fairyman, Phantom Rock, Ronnie A, Billie Burke, Judge Bartlett and Fair Heather. The Gorbet horses wintered near Fairbury and the Evergreen Farm horses near Bloomington.

Valentine Crane's horses are being whipped into shape at Wild Rose farm near St. Charles. Good weather has enabled most of them to be well advanced toward racing condition. They will be transferred to the Aurora track shortly before the season opens. Several of the Wild Rose Farm 2 year olds are reported to have shown exceptional speed.

150,000 TEAMS TO COMPETE IN SOFTBALL GAMES

More than 150,000 teams in the United States and Canada will participate in the International Softball league this summer, according to President Matt Ruppert. The championship tournament will be held in the 12 inch, 14 inch, and 16 inch slow and fast ball divisions for men and women.

The season will open Thursday. The deadline for entries will be May 15. Winning teams in the various divisions will compete in the final playoffs at Minneapolis Sept. 4 and 5. All expenses will be defrayed by the league.

Teams desiring to enter may phone Dearborn 4206 or write to the International Softball league headquarters, 180 West Randolph street.

PAT HANLEY TO OPEN BOSTON U. DRILL THIS WEEK

He will be accompanied by Walt Holmer, former Northwestern captain, who has been signed as backfield coach. Holmer has had extensive experience with the Warner system which Hanley will employ at Boston.

Eggs Manske, Northwestern basketball and football star, also has been signed as an assistant by Coach Hanley, but will not report until next fall. He will be graduated this spring.

SOX PLACE CUB AND OPENING DAY TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for the Cubs-White Sox game at Comiskey Park Sunday and the opening game of the American league season between the White Sox and the Detroit Tigers on Tuesday will be placed on sale at Comiskey Park, 35th street and Shields avenue, and at the Hub in the loop this morning, Vice President Harry Grabiner of the Sox announced last night.

Maroons Meet Armour in Baseball Opener Today

The University of Chicago baseball team will open its formal schedule today against Armour Tech at 3:30 at Greenwood field, 60th street and Greenwood avenue. The game will be the first of 18 on the Maroon schedule and the first of three this week. Friday the Maroons meet Lake Forest, and Saturday they play Western State Teachers at the Midway. Langford and Novak will share the pitching job for Chicago in today's encounter.

Bowie, Md., April 9.—[Special.]—The Jersey stable's Brass Monkey captured the mile and a furlong feature at the Bowie racetrack today. In the six furlong race which shared the spotlight position, C. C. Smithson's Miss Morocco returned to the races after a long lay-off to score at odds of better than 30 to 1.

Both Brass Monkey and Miss Morocco owed their victories largely to excellent handling by Jockey Jimmy Hunter, who completed a triple on the day. His first victory was astride S. W. Labrot's Color Bearer in the first race.

Jacobs Ties Porter.

Apprentice Joe Jacobs ranked second to Hunter among the jockeys riding today. Jacobs scored a double on the last two races on the card, thereby sending his total number of winners for the year to eighty-one. This tied him with Earl Porter for the lead among the jockeys of the country in number of winners ridden.

Brass Monkey displayed a great reserve of speed to win the feature event by three lengths, with Mrs. Doris Melanson's Fabius second, six more lengths before the third-place War Tide.

There were only six starters, with Southard, Lone Hand, and Polo Bar completing the field. For half a mile Brass Monkey trailed the field, more than a half dozen lengths out of the lead. Then, suddenly, as the racers turned out of the backstretch, Hunter roused the 6 year old campaigner and he shot up and into the lead.

Brass Monkey Draws Away.

Once in front, Brass Monkey encountered no difficulty in holding the rest of the field safe. He drew away easily in the stretch and was breezing along at the end.

War Tide had been the favorite in the wagering. Brass Monkey, a son of Light Brigade and Iwin, returned $12.20 as the result of his victory. His time was 1:56.

Hunter had a much more difficult time bringing Miss Morocco home first. The 5 year old mare scored by a head over Miss H. M. McGonigle's Vishnu, with Axentea third.

Vishnu Sets Pace.

Vishnu set the pace over most of the six furlongs and was four full lengths in the lead as the field swung into the home stretch. Hunter roused the mare, however, and she responded with a good turn of speed to overtake Vishnu in the last strides.

Miss Morocco paid $62.50 for a $2 ticket, $15.80 to place, and $8.90 to show. Her time was 1:14 4-5, although the track was considered fast.

Belanger Disqualified in Bout with Jack Casey

NEWCASTLE, England, April 9.—(AP)—Charley Belanger, Winnipeg light heavyweight, was disqualified in the seventh round of his 15 round bout with Jack Casey of Sunderland tonight for holding.

N. Y. Ring Board Puts O. K. on Carnera-Baer Battle

New York, April 9.—[Special.]—Formal approval of the Carnera-Baer title fight in the Long Island bowl was made today by the New York state athletic commission. The fight, to be held June 14, will be promoted by Madison Square Garden.

Cunningham to Race Venzke at Lawrence

Lawrence, Kan., April 9.—[Special.]—Glenn Cunningham of Kansas and Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania, filed entries today to compete with Kansas relays April 21. Efforts are being made to obtain Bill Bonthron of Princeton, for the event, a special mile race.

Venzke, Bonthron, and Cunningham are the three outstanding milers of America today, and while Cunningham has taken the majority of the races, and now holds the world's indoor mile record at 4:08.4, some of his victories have been by narrowest of margins.

Cunningham Goes East.

Cunningham and Venzke first met in the summer of 1932. Cunningham won, entered the Olympics, and was the first American to finish in a race won by the Italian Pecalli.

A year ago, Cunningham won the Wanamaker mile in New York in 4:13, three seconds slower than the time established the year before by Venzke. Venzke was second in the race. Later, Venzke defeated Cunningham in the 1500-meter event. Cunningham then came back to win the Baxter mile in 4:14.2. The Penn star did not enter the Columbian mile, which Cunningham also won.

Bonthron Beats Kansan.

Venzke was second to Cunningham in the Wanamaker mile again this year, when the Kansan won in 4:11.3. Cunningham lost the Baxter mile to Bill Bonthron Feb. 17, with Venzke third, in the slow time of 4:14.

In the 1500-meter indoor championships Feb. 24, Cunningham defeated Bonthron by a stride and Venzke was third. Cunningham's time of 3:52.2 set a new world record.

DICK METZ TO BECOME PRO AT LASKER COURSE

Dallas, Tex., April 9.—(AP)—Dick Metz, who has been assistant professional to Craig Wood at Deal, N. J., the last two years, announced today he would become head professional at the A. D. Lasker course, near Lake Forest, Ill. For five years Metz was pro at various Texas clubs.

Lasker has a long standing offer to any golfer who can break 70 on his course. Par is 72.

Helen Filkey, Track Star, Becomes Mother of Girl

Mrs. William De Vry, better known as Helen Filkey, one of Chicago's greatest women track stars, gave birth to a baby girl in the Swedish Covenant hospital last night. The child weighed 7 pounds and 5 ounces. Dr. S. Weiss attended. The track star and De Vry, a son of Herman De Vry, manufacturer of camera supplies, were married in August, 1932. As an athlete Mrs. De Vry carried the colors of the Illinois Women's Athletic club She holds several records.

Father of Tug Wilson Suffers Paralytic Stroke

K. L. Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern university, yesterday was called to the home of his father, Charles Wilson, at Atwood, Ill., where the latter is seriously ill as a result of a paralytic stroke suffered Sunday night. The elder Mr. Wilson is 63 years old.

Marquette Track Team to Enter Drake Relays

Milwaukee, Wis., April 9.—[Special.]—Conrad M. Jennings, coach of the Marquette university track team, today announced that the school will enter the Drake relays at Des Moines, Ia., April 27 and 28.

Londos-Garibaldi Bout Approved by State Commission

The Jim Londos-Gino Garibaldi heavyweight wrestling match was approved yesterday by the Illinois state athletic commission for the night of April 20 at the Chicago Stadium.

Londos already has an engagement in Montreal two days before his match with Garibaldi. The commission has a rule that a main event performer must be on the scene three days in advance. In allowing Londos the privilege of coming here one day in advance, George F. Getz, acting chairman at yesterday's meeting in the absence of Joseph Triner, said:

"We've cut the rule from five to three days to allow the wrestlers ample time to fill other engagements, and from now on the three day rule will stand. We will grant the Stadium a special permit on this occasion only."

Apparently the commission had not been notified that earlier in the day Paul Poloski, a Milwaukee promoter, had signed Londos to wrestle Joe Malcewicz at the Milwaukee Auditorium on April 19, one day before his match with Garibaldi here.

This Champ Wins Title by a Comb

New York, April 9.—[Special.]—A pebble once cost the Giants a world series with Washington. A marble upset Brown Merry in last year's famed Hambletonian trotting stake. Every one knows what a sickle pear did to Sidney Noyes in last year's national amateur golf tournament. Yesterday a pocket comb helped Solly Schiff of New York win the national table tennis championship.

Max Rushakoff of Chicago, the runnerup, is known as the most colorful player in the game and also a goat-getter. A good competitive temperament is considered the chief requisite of a table tennis champion. Once a player gets nerves his game goes haywire. Rushakoff had a cute trick which made his opponent explode. In the middle of a game he'd take a pocket comb from his trousers and begin to arrange his dark and lengthy locks.

Schiff Has His Own.

This trick had its irritating effect on Marcus Schussheim, who won the title six times. But when Rushakoff tried it on Solly Schiff, the trick proved a boomerang. Solly kept his attitude, pulled a comb out of his pocket and stroked it through his curly red mane, stroke for stroke with Rushakoff.

The crowd of 50 roared its approval as the two contestants stood tense, glaring at each other, performing their seemingly pleasant toiletries. Solly walked off with the match, 21-16, 21-19, 21-12. The Chicagoan blew up like a Cincinnati pitcher.

Solly is 16, small and a student at Textile High school. He hopes to study engineering at Cooper Union.

It's a Tough Game.

He plays tennis and handball. He thinks table tennis is tougher than both these, however. His best shot is a forehand smash. He has been playing three years. He won the eastern and metropolitan titles earlier this year.

Rudy Rubin defeated Sidney Heitner, the defending champion, in the quarter finals. Irish Little won the woman's title when she defeated Helen Germainen, former champion, 2-15, 19-21, 23-21, 21-17. Schiff and Murice Moskowiz won the doubles title by defeating Schussheim and Heitner, 21-13, 21-13, 21-19.

South Bend Prep Coach May Resign Football Post

South Bend, Ind., April 9.—[Special.]—Rumors prevailed today that Ceaser Janeshesksi, football coach at St. Hedwig High school the last two seasons, will resign. Rev. C. J. Witucki, director of athletics at St. Hedwig, denied the report. Janeshesksi, it was learned, has accepted a position with a local industrial firm.

Shea Signs to Battle Rodak at White City

A 10 round boxing bout between the promising Leo Rodak, and Eddie Shea, veteran south side featherweight, was closed yesterday after two weeks of negotiations. It will be held at White City roller rink April 23 under the promotion of Johnny Coulon. The weight has been set at 130 pounds. Rodak is expected to return from Florida immediately and launch preliminary training.

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday ordered Karl Ogren, north side middleweight, to go through with his scheduled conflict with Solly Dukelsky at White City Friday night. Ogren had agreed to box Dukelsky, but when Solly lost to Young Stuhley last Friday, Ogren preferred a meeting with Stuhley. Ogren is to appear before the commission today to present his case.

Chairman Joe Triner of the state boxing commission is due back tomorrow from a New York business trip. . . . A boxing show is to be held May 3 and a wrestling program April 26 at Quincy, Ill. . . . Al Swenski, Detroit wrestler, remains suspended until he appears before the Illinois commission. . . . Mickey Joy, Brighton Park junior welterweight, sparred several rounds yesterday with Hank Bueker for his eight round encounter against Dick Sisk at Midway arena next Monday.

Six amateur champions from Honolulu, accompanied by Boxing Commissioner Edward Hoch, will leave Chicago today for New Orleans, La., where they are to engage in a series of matches Friday. . . . From there they will proceed to Shreveport, La., to go through with some contests Monday. They are to visit California prior to returning to Honolulu. The boys took part in the National A. A. U. tournament at St. Louis last week.

Johnny Fitzpatrick, Batavia, Ill., featherweight, and Merril [Red] Tonn, Peshtigo, Wis., heavyweight, have returned home after engaging in several bouts in Florida. . . . Fitzpatrick will be idle for about two months because of a broken jaw sustained in a losing battle with Eddie Shea at Miami, Feb. 27. . . . Lenny Cohen, Chicago flyweight, resumed training yesterday after being out of action for a month. . . . A Northwestern university fraternity, Theta Xi, is sponsoring the show at Rainbo Fronton Friday.

Bobby O'Dowd, Sioux City, Ia., bantamweight, and Harry Fierro, Chicago, have opened exercises at Trafton's gymnasium for their eight round scrap at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Kid Leonard, East Moline, Ill., 160 pound fighter, and Tait Littman of Cudahy, Wis., have been matched for 10 rounds at Milwaukee Monday. . . . Mickey O'Shea faces Frank Misko in a six round supporting encounter. . . . Johnny Terry, welterweight, may oppose Eddie Ran on the program.

The schedule of bouts tonight follows:

Eddie Ran, claimant of the 147 pound championship of Poland, has replaced Mickey O'Shea against Iowa Joe Rivers in a 10 round skirmish at Eau Claire, Wis., April 20.

Eddie Sparrow and Bill Fitzgerald, amateur welterweights, will clash in the main event at C. Y. O. center Thursday night. Both are employed at the center. Sparrow operates the switchboard and Fitzgerald is a clerk in the gymnasium. Seven other contests are being arranged. F. M.

BADGERS POUND KYLEN; DEFEAT DE KALB, 8 TO 3

DeKalb, Ill., April 9.—[Special.]—Wisconsin won from the DeKalb Teachers this afternoon, 8 to 3, in the opening baseball game of the season. Led by Joe Capicek, right fielder, who had four hits for four and also scored four runs, the Badgers pounded Eugene Kylen for 12 safeties. Two of Capicek's hits were doubles. Errors were profuse. Poor base running proved a decided handicap to DeKalb.

Ross, Klink and Nordstrom each made two hits for the winners, while Mustapha and Rankin collected two each for DeKalb. The defensive play of Roland Ritzman, second ba

RED SOX THIRD, MACKS 7TH IS EXPERTS' GUESS

Pick Senators to Repeat, White Sox Sixth.

New York, April 9.—(AP)—The most striking point of the 1934 American league pennant poll, tabulated today by the Associated Press, is that the majority of experts look for the Boston Red Sox and Philadelphia Athletics to swap places in the standing.

It is no surprise that the major league writers and sports editors—97 of them—pick the champion Washington Senators and New York Yankees to run one-two again, but it is a testimonial to the prowess of Robert Moses [Lefty] Grove, sore arm or no sore arm, that these observers consider him good enough to supply the main motive power in hoisting the Red Sox from seventh to third place.

Macks Lacking Pitching.

Boston hasn't been in the first division since 1918, when the late Harry Frazee began wrecking its last championship team. Outside of Grove and his former teammates, Rube Walberg and Max Bishop, the new Red Sox ownership has not supplied any startling additions, but the experts, nevertheless, vote them the most improved team in the league. In fact, eight are optimistic enough to pick Boston to win the pennant.

The Athletics, shorn of all their erstwhile pitching aces, are selected to best no club except the Browns and thereby are consigned to seventh place. The A's were third last year. They have not been out of the first division in the last nine year.

White Sox Picked Sixth.

Although the Senators enjoy a substantial margin of preference in the poll, they are not conceded a walkaway. Of the 97 experts balloting, 49 name Washington to repeat and 33 pick New York.

Next to the surprising Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers are labeled the most improved club and picked to land fourth. The Cleveland Indians, who were fourth last year, look ready to give the Tigers a real argument, however.

The poll's second division lineup in order consists of Cleveland, Chicago White Sox, Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns. The "score" showing the choice by positions for each club follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Senators	49	36	9	3	..	..	..	..
Yankees	33	45	11	6	2	..	..	..
Red Sox	8	8	29	21	18	10	3	..
Tigers	6	5	22	28	15	12	8	2
Indians	0	1	17	14	18	21	16	10
White Sox	2	1	6	13	18	30	17	10

hit sally was three runs, which set the score at 12 to 6.

Tietje Takes a Turn.

The Sox added their 13th run after two were out in the fifth. Simmons was safe on Vaughan's fumble and Swanson ran for him. Appling walked then Dykes got a ground rule double, scoring Swanson. Vaughan threw out Kress.

Durham made his first appearance of the year in a Sox box score when he ran for Jones in the sixth. Ed ran clear around the bases for the Sox run in that inning and did not seem to be exhausted after the trip.

Tietje went in to pitch the sixth inning and allowed Roettger and Jensen to single. Young then hit into a double play, started by Chamberlain, and Appling threw out Thevenow. The Pirates got their first run off Tietje with two out in the seventh inning on a double by Lavagetto and a single by Birkofer.

The Sox made three runs in the eighth on a walk, a single by Bordagaray, a double by Bonura and a single by Swanson.

BAER FILES NEW PLEA IN GIRL'S ATTACK SUIT

New York, April 9.—(AP)—Max Baer, heavyweight boxer, expressed dissatisfaction through his lawyers today with a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Albert Cohn who granted him only two out of 25 questions he wanted answered by Shirley La Belle, showgirl.

Miss La Belle is suing Baer for $100,000 for an alleged assault. The attorneys renewed their request that Miss La Belle be required to furnish more information than could be gained from only two questions.

The two questions allowed deal only with the "manner and method" and of the "enticement" Baer is alleged to have used.

The attorneys asserted they also need to know the time of the "enticement," when Miss La Belle entered the hotel, when Baer entered it, "whether she claims she screamed," and the nature of injuries she claims to have received.

Rosenbloom Beats Miler in 10 Rounds

New Orleans, La., April 9.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, tonight won a close decision from Johnny Miler, Detroit, in a ten round non-title bout. Rosenbloom weighed 185¼, and Miler 176¼.

Giants End Slump; Beat Indians, 4-1

Huntsville, Ala., April 9.—(AP)—Behind the pitching of Fred Fitzsimmons and Jack Salveson, the New York Giants today checked their major league losing streak at three games, defeating the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 1.

The world champions jumped into the lead with two runs in the first inning and never were headed. Doubles by Rice and Pytlak gave the Indians their run in the fifth.

Score:

Cleveland	000	010	000	1	7 3

Batteries—Fitzsimmons, Salveson and Danning; Hudlin, Wisegarner and Pytlak, Spencer.

BROWNS, 6; DODGERS, 5.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 9.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns took advantage of three of the Brooklyn Dodgers' five errors today to win the final of the four game series, 6 to 5. The game was called at the end of the seventh to allow the Dodgers to catch a train for Richmond.

The American leaguers scored their runs off Bob Edwards in the first four innings. Two of the Dodgers' three runs in the first inning resulted from Frederick's home run. In the fourth, with the bases empty, Berres drove the ball over the fence for a homer.

Score:

St. Louis	400	200	0	6	11 2
Brooklyn	300	101	1	5	10 5

LOOKOUTS, 4; YANKEES, 1.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 9.—(AP)—The New York Yankees lost their third successive game today as the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern association won, 4 to 1.

The major leaguers were held to six hits, their lone run materializing in the eighth when Combs, who had supplanted Babe Ruth in left field, singled, Gehrig walked, and Chapman singled off pitcher Henslek's glove. For the last six innings the Yanks were blanked by Pettitt, who yielded four scattered hits.

Tamulis, making his first start of the season, was the victim of all the Lookouts' runs. He worked six innings, giving way to Johnny Murphy.

Score:

New York	000	000	010	1	6 1

Batteries—Tamulis, Murphy and Dickey; Pettitt, Henslek and Phillips, Warren.

RED SOX, 3; ATLANTA, 0.

Atlanta, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox, with Dusty Rhodes and Bob Weiland pitching, beat the Atlanta Crackers, 3 to 0, in an exhibition game today. Score:

PHILLIES, 22; U. OF PENN., 1.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 9.—(AP)—After circling the bases for seven innings the Phillies stopped their slaughter of the University of Pennsylvania nine at Franklin field today and counted up the score; it was 22 to 1. Score:

Phillies	533	021	8	22	21 0

WIATER STOPS JACK KRACKEN IN FIFTH ROUND

Adolph Wiater of Green Bay, Wis., advanced another step in the heavyweight division last night by stopping Jack Kracken of Washington in the fifth round of a scheduled eight rounder at the Marigold Gardens. It was Wiater's 13th straight victory.

Kracken succumbed to a series of right hand punches and was reeling around the ring when Referee Davie Miller stopped the bout. About 900 witnessed the fights.

In the semi-windup Art Zimmer and Freddie Gravelle went five rounds to a draw. Roosevelt Haines won a four round decision over Jack Elverillo. Mickey O'Shea knocked out Tommy Habel in the first round and Matt Dour stopped Frank Turocz in the second round.

Joey Kleko, Cicero welterweight, stopped Frankie Keevil in the fifth round of the windup to the weekly show at the Midway Arena. In the semi-windup Joe Serletic defeated George Trapp in five rounds. Other results were:

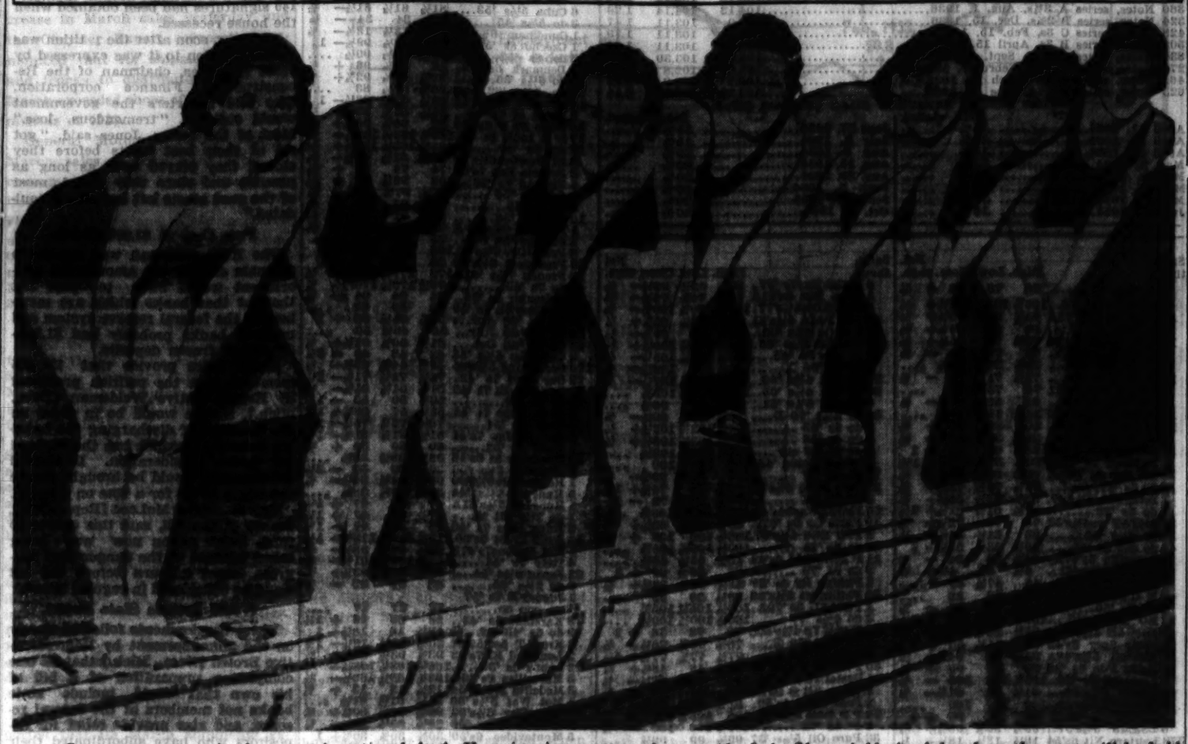
Jack McCarten beat Paddy Walthier [4].
Jack Kranz knocked out Gene Harris [3].

Y. M. C. A. BOXING MEET TO OPEN THURSDAY NIGHT

Preliminaries of the city Y. M. C. A. boxing tourney will be held Thursday evening at the Central Y, with 47 entries from eleven different departments, according to Elmer Olsen, chairman of the boxing committee. Holders of the city titles at 112, 147, 160, and 175 pounds will not fight this year, so there will be a good chance for newcomers in the game.

John Vorres will be referee, according to P. A. Leonhardt, secretary of the committee in charge, and judges will be furnished by the Illinois Athletic commission. Semi-finals will be held Saturday evening, April 14, at Central Y, and the finals will be held in connection with the Y. M. C. A. sports carnival April 21, at the 122d regiment armory, 3663 West Madison street.

NATIONAL MEET ATTRACTS CHICAGOLAND MERMAIDS



Seven contestants in the women's national A. A. U. swimming meet work out at the Lake Shore Athletic club, where the meet will be held from Wednesday through Saturday. Left to right are Helen Lee Smith, Ruth Faunts, Crystal Diets, Marion Dose, Marlys Lapin, Elizabeth Henry, and Dorothy Schiller. Miss Smith is from Indianapolis and the others from Chicago. Eleanor Holm Nears Record in Swim Test

Women swimmers served notice at the Lake Shore Athletic club yesterday that records are likely to fall in the National A. A. U. swimming meet which begins tomorrow.

Eleanor Holm of New York swam the 100 yard backstroke within a fraction of a second of her own world's record. Since she swam unpaced, Stanley Bauninger, athletic director of the club, predicted she would break the record for the event if closely pressed during the championship competition.

Lenora Kight of Homestead, Pa., free style champion, also showed unusual speed in her workout, indicating she would successfully defend her titles in the 100, 220, and 440 yard events. Miss Kight will find her stiffest competition in Alice Bridges of Massachusetts, who holds the 75 yard mark, while Emma Shemaitis of Lake Shore; Olive McKean, Seattle, and Helen Lee Smith of Indianapolis, are expected to push Miss Kight toward new records.

During warmups yesterday Katherine Rawls of Miami, low board diving champion, and Dorothy Poynton of Los Angeles, high board titleholder, gave exceptional exhibitions. Ann Govednik of Chisholm, Minn., breast stroke champion, contented herself with a few leisurely trips across the tank.

WALTON LEAGUE TO DISCUSS FISH, GAME PROBLEMS

Outdoor Fans to Attend Sessions April 19-20.

BY BOB BECKER.

Outdoor fans in Chicagoland now are making preparations for the Izaak Walton league convention to be held in Chicago, April 19 and 20. This gathering will bring together conservationists and sportsmen from most sections of the nation. Several nationally known authorities on wild game and fish problems are scheduled to address the sessions.

Probably the outstanding figure on the program, the man middle west sportsmen are particularly anxious to see and hear, is J. N. Darling, newly appointed head of the U. S. Biological survey. Darling will speak Friday morning, April 20. His rapid rise in the conservation world has captured the eyes of sportsmen.

Darling Has Rapid Rise.

First appointed on the President's committee to outline a plan for utilization of submarginal lands withdrawn from agriculture, Darling quickly was elevated to the position of chief of the U. S. biological survey following the resignation of Paul G. Redington. Darling, a militant Iowa outdoor fan has been extremely active in Iowa conservation circles and is practically the leader for wild life conservation in this country.

Thomas H. Beck, chairman of the President's committee on wild life restoration, is another important speaker on the convention program. It is expected that Mr. Beck will reveal something of the plan whereby millions of acres of submarginal lands will be devoted to the restoration of migratory game birds and upland game during the next few years.

Aldo Leopold, professor of game management at the University of Wisconsin, also will address the convention. Mr. Leopold is the third member of the President's committee which drew up the program for wild life restoration on a comprehensive national scale.

Harry B. Hawes to Speak.

Fireworks may be expected from that part of the convention program having to do with wild life and recreation on national forests. Among the speakers dealing with this subject is Harry McGuire, editor of Outdoor Life magazine, who has been leading a fight against the damage being done in national forests by the huge flocks of sheep which are pastured in those areas. Harry B. Hawes, former U. S. senator, will address the convention on national conservation accomplishments.

Pick Skaters to Perform in Henie Show

Sonja Henie of Norway will arrive in Chicago Thursday for her exhibition at the Chicago Stadium Sunday evening.

She will hold several private practice sessions on the Stadium rink Thursday, Friday and Saturday, in preparation for her famous interpretation of Anna Pavlova's "Dance of the Dying Swan" and the intricate turns, spins and jumps which won her eight world's championships.

Varied Program Planned.

A two hour program of more than a dozen varieties of ice skating is planned. The speed skating part of the program will be taken care of by Eddie Schroeder, world's 10,000 meter record holder and North American champion; Eddie Stundl, holder of the world's 500 meter indoor mark; Leo Freisinger, winner of every important skating race in the intermediate division last winter and holder of five speed records which he won in the national competition at Minneapolis last Jan. 20.

The girl skaters include Helen Bina, captain for the Olympia team; Elizabeth Dubois, Eleanor Theil, Priscilla Richley, and a host of other local favorites.

Robin Lee to Skate

Then there will be fancy skating by several amateur stars such as Robin Lee, Minneapolis lad who holds the United States national junior figure skating title; Eleanor Berger, Kenilworth golden-haired lassie who ranks highest of local figure skaters; little 8 year old Eddie LeMaire, New York trick and fancy skater and others of equal note.

What other cigar gives you this GUARANTEE?

New York, April 9.—The listed bond market moved irregularly in the early trading, but appeared to improve when the morning offerings had been absorbed.

Transfers totaled $13,877,000, par value, compared with $15,311,000 last Friday.

News of interest to ahe market was somewhat conflicting. There was profit taking in some of the secondary corporation groups, but the majority about held their own. Prime investment issues were generally unchanged to a little higher.

Governments Soft.

United States treasury issues again softened after their rebound of last week, and most of them recorded small recessions, with the 4s of 1944-'54 and 4¼s of 1947-'52 showing the least resistance and down 5-32ds. The called Liberty fourth 4¼s, of which more than $1,000,000,000 are outstanding, declined 3-32ds of a point.

Alleghany corporation 5s of 1950 scored another advance of a point, and Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s of 1895 were up half a point.

Some of the rail liens moved into higher ground, but there were sufficient recessions to give the list a mixed appearance. Two of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas issues gained a point each.

German Issues Weak.

Strength was shown by other foreign obligations. The Argentines were up a point or more at new tops for the year. Bonds of Dutch East Indies, Lautaro Nitrate and Belgium were also firm.

Gillette Safety Razor.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information regarding Gillette Safety Razor company?—C. C. M.

Answer: Gillette Safety Razor company is the leading manufacturer of safety razors and blades. It has undergone a radical change during the last decade. Prior to 1930 the company had a semi-monopoly protected by patents. The patents expired and new models of razors were introduced. Competitors questioned the validity of the new patents and openly infringed on the company's claims.

Serious inroads on the company's business were made. Chief of its competitors was Auto Strop Safety Razor company which, with more efficient production, began obtaining much of Gillette's business. Gillette instituted law suits. These proved vexatious and, when it appeared that they would not be successful, a merger with Auto Storp was effected.

Subsequently higher courts ruled against Gillette. Cheaper blades still represent a source of competition. To combat that a reorganization of the company's facilities was brought about. Its main plant at Boston was completely overhauled. Merchandising methods have been changed radically. The price of blades was cut and a special cheap blade was put on the market. These moves apparently have checked competitive inroads.

Lower price for blades, however, cut into profits last year. Net income was $3,659,000, or $1.06 per common share, against $5,505,000, or $1.98 per common share, for 1932. In 1931 net income was $4,022,000, or $1.24 per common share.

On December 31, 1933, current assets of $8,914,000 were about three times current liabilities of $2,864,000. Funded debt totals $4,709,000.

There are outstanding 310,000 shares of $5 dividend no par convertible preferred and 1,938,769 shares of no par common. The common pays 25 cents a quarter.

The company's future now appears to depend more on results of merchandising and advertising policies than on profits from a paten monopoly. The company has demonstrated its ability to cope with cheap blades, temporarily at least, although at the expense of large profits.

The preferred deserves a fairly high rating. The common is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

SENATE FLOUTS RADICAL STOCK CONTROL PLANS

Drastic Provisions in Bill Revised.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—The "young liberals" who wrote the administration stock market control bill were taking a trouncing today as the senate banking and currency committee began extracting the "teeth" the "liberals" had written into the exchange measure.

REP. FRED A. BRITTEN. [A. P. Photo.]

Revising the bill preparatory to its presentation to the senate, the committee voted to create a completely distinct body of three persons to administer the provisions of the legislation and to eliminate a vital statement of policy upon which hangs much of the act's constitutionality. Tomorrow the committee will vote on the hotly controverted margin requirement section and Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] agreed today that all indications are that the margins stipulated in the measure will be knocked out and power to establish flexible requirements vested in the new administrative board.

Glass Urges Separate Agency.

It was Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] who moved in committee that a separate agency be created to regulate the stock exchanges under federal supervision. His motion was carried by a vote of 10 to 8 and the committee's decision completely elliminates the federal trade commission and the federal reserve board from the picture as the regulatory agencies for stock market operations. As originally drawn the bill gave the trade commission and the reserve board the administrative functions entailed by enactment of the regulatory legislation.

Shortly afterward and again by a vote of 10 to 8 the committee accepted a motion by Senator Alva Adams [Dem., Colo.] to strike out all of section 2, which declared the policy of the stock market control measure. Efforts to substitute a less far reaching policy statement were defeated and the measure probably will be brought into the senate lacking the language upon which the "young liberal" authors of the bill depended heavily for constitutional sanction.

Changes Opposed by Rayburn.

The senate alterations, however, failed to meet with the approval of Chairman Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.] of the house interstate commerce committee, who has charge of a companion bill in the lower body.

"Personally I am opposed to the senate changes," he said. "I think section 2 should remain in the bill and I don't think there should be any separate authority. I am in favor of congress declaring its intent and purpose in passing this law if it is going to stand up in the courts."

Mr. Rayburn declared that while he cannot speak for his committee as a whole he considered it virtually certain that the committee will bring into the lower body a bill "with teeth in it." In this event the issue between the radical and conservative forces in congress will come to a showdown.

Disregard Roosevelt's Wishes.

Elimination of the policy section and wresting of margin control from the federal reserve board, it was pointed out, are directly contrary to the wishes of President Roosevelt, who has on several occasions requested an exchange control measure with "teeth in it."

Meanwhile, Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], asserted that the stock market bill had been rewritten a third time in response to public demand.

"Hundreds of thousands of personal letters and telegrams from every section of the United States to members of the house and senate protesting against the un-American provisions in the Fletcher-Rayburn bills for the control and regulation of securities exchanges, has caused another complete breakdown in the Roosevelt administration forces," said Mr. Britten.

Assails Control of Industry.

"The bills now pending would authorize the federal government to regulate and control practically every large industry in the country, notwithstanding the direction of the constitution of the United States to the contray. Under the guise of stock exchange regulation, the federal government could strangle any business with which it was not in complete sympathy, politically or otherwise. The federal trade commission would become the most important department of the government and the daily value of the securities of practically every corporation in the United States would depend upon the whim of this federal oligarchy."

Today's committee sessions approved the sections on definitions, registration exchanges, prohibiting certain "manipulative" practices and making others subject to regulations to be promulgated by the administrative board. The latter would become a new component of the list of alphabetical agencies known as the FSEC—the federal securities exchange commission.

Brain Trust's Actions Point Out Its Goal

BY HOWARD WOOD.

What amazes the financial community is why the congress finds it necessary to delve into the off-the-record remarks made by the brain trusters when their political philosophy is so plainly written in the legislation which they have drafted and which congress either has passed or is considering.

Day by day the conviction grows in the financial community that the net result of much of the brain trust sponsored legislation has been a move toward socialization of credit.

Whether or not this is the result of whispered conspiracy behind classroom doors or whether it is the natural by-product of an attempt to achieve a planned national economy matters little to the financiers. What they are interested in is the result. Whatever conspiracy there has been, most of them agree, has been open rather than closed.

* *

The reasoning runs something like this:

1. Normal credit outlets have been effectively dammed up.

2. A big influence in this damming up process has been the so-called "truth in securities" act of 1933, which is so vaguely worded that officers of corporations and bond houses are afraid to lay themselves open to its undefined penalties by selling bonds and thereby clearing the channels of long term investment.

3. The threatned stringent regulation for stock exchanges which it is feared would do for stocks what the securities act has done for bonds.

4. Possibilities of profit have been impaired by potential increases in taxes and by heavier operating costs under the NRA.

5. Uncertainty. The trend of recent legislation has been such that business men suspect that it has been prompted more by a desire to reform the economic system rather than bridge an emergency and restore prosperity. In doubt, business men hesitate to make long term commitments and investors hesitate to invest.

* *

With the nation's credit sources thus walled off from the uses to which they would normally be put the only credit outlet lies in the sale of government bonds. Approximately 96 per cent of the outstanding credit of the twelve federal reserve banks is now absorbed by the federal government, inasmuch as total reserve bank credit amounts to about 2 billion 500 million of which more than 2 billion 400 million represents holdings by the reserve banks of United States government securities.

The commercial banks also are glutted with government paper. Yesterday's report on the condition of member banks in 91 principal cities showed that of 17½ billions of credit outstanding 6 billions 175 millions—or more than one-third of the total—represented loans to the federal government.

Planned economy, the banker reasons, requires socialization of all credit because no perfect control of industry is afforded without control of credit.

* *

With these things in mind the men who are well informed in such matters as finance and credit cannot understand why it makes any difference whether a member of the brain trust admits planning economic revolution or even whether he recognizes that he is headed in that direction.

The important thing to note, they insist, is that—whether by design or accident—the nation is rapidly moving in the direction of socialization of credit.

In this frame of mind it was no wonder yesterday that the financial community was cheered by the news from Washington that congress' attitude toward credit legislation was changing; that the likelihood of amendments to relax the stringent provisions of the securities act of 1933 was strong, and that the proposed Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange regulation bill would be made more liberal.

This changed attitude on the part of congress was interpreted in La Salle street as an indication that congressmen were beginning to discover that, instead of conducting them into the cabbage patch of industrial recovery, the professors had been leading them blindfold down the pri...rose path toward social revolution.

GEN. MOTORS AND CHRYSLER SALES CLIMB

Former Reports Best March Since 1931.

General Motors reported a sharp increase in March sales yesterday and the Chrysler Export corporation announced that its shipments of cars and trucks to distributors abroad in March exceeded those of the first three months of 1933.

General Motors reported that in March sales of cars and trucks to consumers in the United States totaled 98,174 units compared with 58,911 in February and 47,436 in March of 1933. Only in June was this number exceeded in 1933, the total for that month being 101,827. It was the best March since 1931 when sales of 101,339 units were reported.

Largest Since April, 1931.

Sales to domestic dealers in March totaled 119,858 units compared with 82,222 in February and 45,098 in March, 1933. The number sold was the largest since April, 1931, when the total was 132,639.

Total sales to dealers in the United State and Canada plus overseas shipments in March were 153,250 units, compared with 100,848 in February and 58,018 in March last year. This was the greatest volume since April, 1931, when the total was 154,252.

General Motors' first quarter sales to domestic consumers totaled 180,523 units, compared with 140,369 in the like period of 1933. Sales to dealers in the United States during the quarter totaled 248,270, compared with 167,584 last year. Total sales for the quarter amounted to 316,604 units, compared with 199,749 a year ago.

Chrysler Near Record.

The Chrysler Export company reported that its March shipments exceeded those of any March in its history except in 1929. The gain over March, 1933, was 280 per cent. The volume for the first quarter of 1934 was the best for that period since 1929. The volume was 206.4 per cent ahead of 1933.

Studebaker corporation had on record April 1 orders for 5,754 cars and trucks, Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker Sales Corporation of America, announced. Domestic and export orders received during March totaled 10,067 vehicles, the largest total for any month since March, 1929, when 11,112 orders were received, Mr. Hoffman said. Shipments during March totaled approximately 7,500 units.

R. L. Polk & Co. stated yesterday that retail sales of all automobiles in the last ten days of March reached the highest total for a similar period since May, 1931. The total for March was reported as being greater than in any month of 1933 and in any month of 1932, except June.

STEEL INSTITUTE ESTIMATES 4.1% GAIN IN OUTPUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 9.—Production of steel rose 4.1 per cent last week, according to an estimate of the American Iron and Steel institute, activity now standing at 47.4 per cent of capacity, against 43.3 per cent a week ago.

The present level is only 0.3 point under the best levels reported by the institute since last October. Buying has increased substantially since price increases were announced a week ago. The improvement exceeds even the rosiest estimates. Although it was believed a gain would be attained, few expected it to exceed two points.

At Pittsburgh the sale of 3,000 tons of No. 1 railroad scrap was reported at $15.25 a ton, an advance of 15 cents and a new high price for the current upturn. This class commands a premium over the regular line of heavy melting scrap and the sale has strengthened the entire list of scrap quotations.

Wage Change Proves Aid to Illinois Mines

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Prospects for Illinois coal producers to operate on a profitable basis are brighter than they have been in years, in the opinion of Andrew T. Murphy, editor of the Black Diamond and authority on the American coal industry. Mr. Murphy explained that the coal code which went into effect recently will enable the Illinois producers to meet the competition of the eastern and Kentucky fields where wage scales are considerably lower than in this state.

"Illinois started to lose its coal business about ten years ago when the producers were paying a wage rate of $7.50 a day while their competitors in West Virginia were paying $2.50 to $3 a day and those in west Kentucky were paying around $2," he said.

Code Balances Wages.

"Under the code Illinois producers will pay a basic minimum wage of $5 a day to inside workers, while the scale in West Virginia and in Kentucky is $4.60 a day for inside workers. Outside workers in Illinois will get $4 a day, which is the same as the West Virginia miners will get for the same type of work.

"While, of course, Illinois operators have had to face the competition of gas and oil, their chief competition has been that of the cheap labor coal from the eastern fields.

"Competition in the coal industry as a whole has been so keen that no one was able to make a profit. Under the setup resulting from the code the eastern operators will have to satisfy themselves with a smaller tonnage. This they can afford to accept because the code will enable them to get a profit on what they sell. Hitherto many of them have had to take a loss on their tonnage.

Settle Freight Rate Problems.

"Another factor favorable to the Illinois producers has been settlement of the differences with the Indiana mine owners over freight rates. Formerly the producers of both states absorbed freight rate differentials.

"Both the Illinois and Indiana mine owners stand to gain by the operation of the code and of course the miners themselves will benefit because of the increased demand which is certain to arise for coal from these states when they no longer are under the handicap of having to meet the competition of the cheap labor product."

RESERVE BOARD HEAD PREDICTS REVISION OF SECURITY ACT OF 1933

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—Sweeping revision of the security act passed by the last session of congress was predicted today by Eugene R. Black, governor of the federal reserve board.

Holding that the drastic penalties prescribed by the security act are impeding recovery, Gov. Black said he believed the law would be modified before the present session of congress adjourns. He made his prediction after conferring with the house interstate commerce committee on the new stock exchange bill which is to be the sister measure to the security act.

Gov. Black has long been the leader of a small group within the treasury department and the federal reserve system who feel that the penalties set forth by the security act are unreasonably severe. He reiterated today that the law "is interfering with the flow of capital" because its penalties are frightening businesses which otherwise might borrow money for purchases.

The capital goods industries especially are suffering because the capital markets are closed by the security act, according to Gov. Black. He is sponsoring a two-fold program to free capital. The first phase is a system of intermediate credit banks at which small industries may borrow, and the second phase is relaxation of security act penalties so that large industries may again obtain credit through the security markets.

U. S. DRAWS DOWN DEPOSITS; BANKS CURTAIL CREDIT

Government deposits with federal reserve member banks, including New York and Chicago, declined $124,000,000 in the week ended last Wednesday, according to the banks' report issued yesterday for 91 leading cities of the country.

Total credit of the banks dropped $30,000,000 despite a gain in New York and Chicago of $66,000,000. Loans and discounts sagged $20,000,000, and total investments dropped $8,000,000. Security loans declined $9,000,000 and commercial loans dropped $7,000,000. While New York and Chicago sold government securities during the week the other banks increased their commitments $4,000,000. Investment in securities of other classes eased $12,000,000.

TREASURY SELLS 91 DAY BILLS AT NEW LOW RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—The United States treasury announced tonight that its latest short-term financing had been arranged at a new low record rate. On a discount basis, its 91 day bills sold at an average bid equivalent to .07 per cent. On March 26, the date of the previous offering of similar bills, a low of .08 per cent was established.

The latest offering of $100,000,000 of 91 and 182 day bills drew subscriptions totaling $330,037,000, of which $100,482,000 was accepted. A total of $50,257,000 of 91 day bills was sold on an average bid of 99.982, equivalent to an average rate of .07 per cent. A total of $50,325,000 of 182 day bills was sold on an average bid of 99.908, equal to a rate of .18 per cent.

Illinois Sells Relief Notes at Premium

Public offering will be made today by a banking group composed of the First National bank of Chicago, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Harris Trust and Savings bank, Northern Trust company, and the City National Bank and Trust company, of a portion of the $5,000,000 6 per cent revenue note issue of the State of Illinois for which the banks were successful bidders yesterday.

State Treasurer Martin said the state's credit is becoming better, as the notes brought a premium price of 102.57. They will be offered at 102.875 and are a part of the $30,000,000 unemployment relief issue, of which $10,000,000 previously have been sold.

The yield until the optional date, Dec. 31 next, will be only a little more than 2 per cent, while the previous sale brought a full 6 per cent. The Chicago group paid $5,128,567 for the notes. The next high bid, by a group headed by Blythe & Co., was $5,063,500.

Illinois voters will be asked to approve a bond issue retiring the notes next November. If the issue is approved the bonds will be retired from gas tax funds of counties and cities using relief moneys. If not approved the $30,000,000 obligation will become a state liability and the notes retired from general revenues or by other method designed by the assembly.

DOLLAR STEADY AGAINST FRANC, GAINS ON POUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 9.—Foreign exchange rates showed little change today in London or Paris markets, and held steady in dealings in New York.

The French franc weakened one point in the early trading, dropping to 6.59 cents, but rallied to 6.60 cents. Based on the franc at its final New York rate, the dollar was valued at approximately 59.36 per cent of its former parity, the same as Saturday.

Sterling firmed only slightly to $5.18 to the pound in the London trading, but soon slipped back to $5.17⅝ in the New York market, off ⅜ cent.

The French franc softened a little in relation to the British pound. Consequently the price of gold was reduced 3 pence in London to 124 shillings, 4 pence. At the opening rate of $5.18 to the pound in London, this would make the cost of gold to American buyers $34.79 an ounce, up 8 cents, owing to the higher cost of the pound when converted into dollars.

Today's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank showed imports of $2,494,600 from Colombia and a net increase of that amount in gold held under earmark.

Start Roundup of 375 Million Called Bonds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today called upon 18,500 banks to help him round up 375 million dollars of Liberty bonds which the treasury has called for redemption and which are still outstanding.

At the same time Secretary Morgenthau announced that on Thursday night the treasury will close its offer to trade the called Liberty bonds for new treasury bonds carrying 3¼ per cent interest. Thereafter holders of the called bonds will be forced to take cash.

Believing that most of the Liberty bonds still outstanding are in the hands of small investors, Secretary Morgenthau said today that he was anxious that all these investors be acquainted with the treasury's conversion offer quickly.

Asks Aid of Banks.

"Would greatly appreciate your cooperation in reaching individual holders of called fourth Liberty loan bonds. Please use your good efforts not only in contacting your own customers, but as a public service offer your facilities to your community. Suggest you get in touch with your local newspapers, requesting them to bring facts to attention of public.

"A great many holders of bonds in small denominations are doubtless unaware of advantages of exchange into new issue now selling at substantial premium. They are difficult for us to reach.

"Bonds should be in the mail not later than midnight Thursday, April 12. Would appreciate if you telegraph me collect whether we can count on your cooperation.

Many Small Bonds Out.

Secretary Morgenthau pointed out that there were 240,000 $50 bonds among those called, and 400,000 $100 bonds, making 740,000 called bonds in the hands of small investors hard for the treasury to reach.

Later the secretary revealed that up to the close of business today 625 million dollars of the called bonds had been traded for new 3¼ per cent treasury bonds maturing in 1936. As about a billion dollars of the old Liberty bonds were outstanding, there still are 375 million dollars to be refinanced or redeemed in cash.

The bonds which are called for redemption or refinancing and on which interest will cease after April 15 are all of the fourth Liberty bonds issue having serial numbers which end in 0, 1, or 9, Morgenthau explained.

AIRING OF HOLC CONDITIONS IN ILLINOIS ASKED

Money Wasted, Says Rep. Dirksen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 9.—Illinois' muddled Home Loan situation will be thoroughly aired before a select committee of congress unless a special resolution introduced by Representative Everett M. Dirksen [Rep., Ill.] is pigeonholed by leaders in the house of representatives.

REP. EVERETT M. DIRKSEN.

Introduction of the Dirksen measure followed his withering attack on the Illinois branch of the HOLC on the floor of the house last week, in which he charged that the state home loan organization is shot through with political corruption and inefficiency.

The congressional investigation hich Mr. Dirksen proposed today would be directed at the "integrity and ability" of the personnel of the Illinois HOLC branch; at the "economy, justness, correctness and legality" of disbursements made by the Home Loan corporation in the state, and by "any irregularity or illegality" in the operation of the Illinois branch.

"Waste of Public Money."

In a long list of "whereases" prefacing his resolution the Illinois Republican charged that under present conditions operation of the Illinois branch constitutes a "waste of public money."

He recalled that the state administration was once before under scrutiny by officials of the HOLC in Washington and that their inquiry resulted in the removal of William G. Donne as state manager. But the appointment of Henry Zander Jr. to replace Donne, according to Dirksen's resolution, has brought "no appreciable improvement in the efficiency and operation of the Illinois division."

"While the cost of making and closing a loan in many states ranges from $12 to $20 per loan," the resolution continued, "in the state of Illinois the cost per loan as disclosed by the said corporation in Washington for the month of February to be $456.19.

Says Loan Cost Increases.

"The cost per loan, instead of decreasing since the date of opening of the Illinois division of the said corporation, with increased familiarity with the work and with increased personnel, has actually increased." Figures furnished him by HOLC headquarters, he said, showed that the cost per loan in Illinois was $504 in October, 1933; $135 in November, $199 in December, $238 in January, and $456 in February.

"Applicants for loans in the state of Illinois have been waiting for many months without affirmative action on their applications while this waste of public funds continued," the resolution alleged. "At the present rate of progress, it will require the Illinois division of the said corporation fifty years to disburse the funds allocated to the state of Illinois for the relief of distressed home owners."

EXEMPT FROM ALL FEDERAL INCOME TAXES

STATE OF ILLINOIS

6% Revenue Notes

To be dated April 12, 1934 — Redeemable on or after December 1, 1934

THESE REVENUE NOTES, issued by the State of Illinois and authorized by act of the State Legislature, are, in the opinion of counsel, issued in anticipation of and payable from a general State ad valorem tax now levied and to be collected as a part of the 1934 tax levy for emergency relief. These Revenue Notes may be issued in an amount not to exceed 75% of the amount of the levy specifically provided for by a legislative act of the 58th General Assembly, First Special Session, such levy having been made upon all the taxable property in the State in an amount of $38,000,000.

Another act passed at said First Special Session as one of the group of six acts for emergency relief, provides for the submission to popular vote at the Fall election in 1934 of a general obligation State of Illinois Bond Issue in an amount of $30,000,000 with serial maturities and provides for the levy of an annual tax sufficient to meet the principal and interest requirements of the bonds. This tax will be extended and collected only if a sufficient amount is not realized to pay such principal and interest out of the motor fuel or gasoline tax, as a portion of the gasoline tax which is distributed to the several counties and municipalities has been specially appropriated by law for this purpose, each county and municipality contributing in proportion to the amount of relief it receives.

These Revenue Notes are redeemable by lot at any time after December 1, 1934, after fifteen days' public notice, at par and accrued interest, from the proceeds of the sale of this State Bond Issue, if voted; otherwise, said notes will be paid solely as said emergency relief tax levied for the year 1934 becomes available.

The entire proceeds from the sale of these notes are appropriated to the Emergency Relief Fund to be used under the supervision of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission.

Price 102⅞ and accrued interest

(To yield about 1¼% from April 12 to December 1, 1934, the first redemption date, and 6% thereafter.)

STOCKS EASIER; AUTO TROUBLES CAUSE CAUTION

Range of Prices Narrow; Trading Is Dull.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 9.—Prices of stocks continued to drift in a narrow channel today and some ground was lost on the average in the process. The market from morning to close was an extremely dull affair, turnover dropping well below the million share level.

Renewal of labor trouble in the Detroit area returned as a depressing influence on automobile and allied shares. General Motors, Chrysler and independent auto producers were subject to fitful selling and gave up fractions to more than a point on the day. On the other hand, steels, metals and a handful of individual favorites contributed some strength. Coppers were especially strong in the late business.

Traders Cheerful but Cautious.

A cheerful undercurrent was maintained by the daily output of business news and prospects. Speculative initiative, however, was kept in leash by uncertainties over Washington legislative developments, particularly the pending stock exchange regulation measure. Little attention was paid to the news around noon that the senate banking committee had decided to put regulation powers in the hands of an independent board, as proposed by exchange spokesmen, and supposedly contrary to the wishes of President Roosevelt.

A minor buying movement, with mild repercussions elsewhere in the list, was touched off by reports of a gain in steel production. The bulge in mill output was more or less anticipated, however, in view of the rush to close contracts against old prices before the step-up in steel prices goes into effect tomorrow. Scrap steel is being bought in quantity, furnace centers reported, and this is usually a dependable index on steel production.

Steel Leaders Gain Fractions.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, and Republic Steel set the pace in the group with fractional gains on the day. Other pivotal industrials, however, kept to cover and dipped fractionally where they changed at all. This was true of stocks of the class of American Can, Du Pont, General Electric, Radio, and Westinghouse.

With a turn for the better in metal markets, accompanied by hints of higher dividends, buying developed for metal stocks. Anaconda, Kennecott, and other coppers were active on a rising course, Anaconda getting a lift from reports of profitable operations. Kennecott's dividend prospects looked especially good to the street, it was said.

TRADE OF CHILE WITH U. S. BASED ON ITS NITRATE

But Commerce is Curbed by Regulations.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ANTOFAGASTA, Chile, April 9. — This northern coast of Chile might become another southern California, with Antofagasta a "new Los Angeles." It now stretches for 800 miles along the Pacific surf, the most barren of deserts except where touched in six small tracts with the miracle of water. Then the molecules of life coalesce, the green reaches up to the sun, and a new cycle begins.

The urban oasis of Antofagasta presents an astonishing contrast to the desert traveler. The Andes rise abruptly behind it, with "earth clouds drear and wild" gathering over the summits, reaching down into valleys that look as gloomy and desolate as the mystical vale of Usher. Then a descent into a garden perfumed with jasmine and all the flowers of home, the sound of band music and a scene of strolling, leisurely evening life, with restaurants, hotels, pretty girls with a bit of fur draped over the shoulder, gentlemen with canes and buttonhole flowers, bowing to acquaintances on the plaza benches, a place of amenities and comforts and lights.

Wealth Based on Nitrate.

This is built upon a strange product of these mountains, a rock called nitrate, which comes out of the morning of earth building, thrust out of primeval seas, lying motionless for geologic ages, holding a power of life or death for this age. Crushed and refined into a white powder it finds its way into a Japanese rifle and sends a bullet into a Chinese bandit. In the form of a coarser, sugar-like product it is sown in the wheat fields of North America and on exhausted farm land, in the old world, brining new life to the soil. A vitalizing or death proces, arises from the same source.

Nitrates, iodine, copper and gold, and the enterprise of an English company in bringing water 145 miles over the mountains and selling it at eight cents a ton, tell the story of Antofagasta. Down the coast for hundreds of miles is a plain of immense potential fertility, quiet harbors by blue bays, the scene for future cities under a bland sun and a tempered air, room for millions, waiting only for some Moses of science and finance to strike the rod of water.

Properity Depends on Minerals.

This city and half a dozen small places along this barren coast exist now on the crops of nitrate, copper and other minerals. With the demand good, as at present, they are happy. It is the same economic base as the sugar and coffee countries farther north near the equator. Today the ships are waiting and the white flood of nitrate is pouring into their holds. American firms control this largely, but it is going to all the world. Japan is taking large quantities, and this, in connection with her large imports of scrap iron and orders for South America meats, leads shipping men to believe that she is getting ready for war.

The population of this district of 140,738 square miles of mountains, plateau and coastal plain is 230,000. It is a Spanish country, with the people much whiter than those farther north and more energetic. The district accounts for 10 per cent of all the imports into Chile, with the United States taking the chief place as a trading nation. The imports of American nitrate and copper companies, however, account for much of this.

Regulation Hampers Trade.

At present trade is suffering from exchange troubles and the government regulation of imports. Direct imports from the United States have practically ceased in the northern district as a result. It is necessary to get government permission to import, and it takes two months to get such papers into Antofagasta from the central board at Valparaiso. Increase of trade, therefore, is not only a matter of purchasing power and salesmanship, but of government arrangement. Chile is stimulating its own manufactures first. A depreciated currency due to inflation has resulted in the bootlegging of money in exchange, so that while American firms are held down to an exchange of 16 pesos to the dollar the local buyers are able to get 24 on the street.

This situation has led the American consulate here to advise that it is impracticable for exporters to ship merchandise to Chile without first receiving payment in American currency in the United States. As credit is one thing that is demanded, trade is practically stopped except for a few big concerns. Other nations have succeeded in making trade agreements with Chile, but the United States is lagging in this.

Chile has another product that might enter the United States without competition. This is guano, which is found on islands and cliffs along the coast. Irrigated soil farmed in the natural way is said to produce a return on maize of 15 to 1, while with the aid of guano it produces 300 to 1.

COPPER RISES TO 8⅜ CENTS; LEAD, ZINC GAIN

New York, April 9.—(AP)—Copper, lead and zinc prices all advanced in the New York market today. Copper sold at 8⅜ cents a pound, up ¼ cent. This represented an advance of ⅝ cent in less than a week. Some producers were asking 8½ cents. The metal's rise is attributed to expectations that the industry will soon adopt its NRA code.

American Smelting and Refining company lifted its lead quotation 10 points to 4.10 cents a pound. Demand for the metal was said to have improved.

ALL LIVE STOCK PRICES SAG ON LARGE RECEIPTS

Live stock prices declined unevenly under pressure of larger receipts yesterday. The increase in cattle, hog and sheep supplies over the previous Monday amounted to 42 per cent. However, as the condition of the weather has such influence on the movement of receipts at this time of the year, when farmers commence working in the field, members of the trade do not regard yesterday's run as indicative of the available supplies in the country.

Light weight hogs for which the government has been paying premium prices predominated in yesterday's receipts and these kinds were hit hardest on the break. They continue to sell within a wide range of prices, and trading in the lighter weights is very erratic. Losses of 15 to 25 cents were general in 210 pound averages and lighter weights, while the heavier "house" hogs were off only 10 to 15 cents for the day.

Buy 2,800 Hogs For U. S.

Four packing houses obtained about 2,800 hogs for the relief corporation which cost mostly $4 to $4.10 and weighed 150 to 210 pounds, although some of the lightest ranged down to $3.50 and less. A fairly large number of selected light and light butchers topped the market to packers and shippers at $4.15, while the majority of the good 250 to 325 pound averages sold on local account at $3.90 to $4.05. The general average price of hogs for the day was lowered to $4, showing 10 cents loss compared with Saturday and 15 cents loss compared with last Friday.

Native spring lambs, which were selling at high prices last week for the Greek Easter trade, dropped several dollars in value yesterday. This break was anticipated, however.

Choice Spring Lambs At $10.50.

Choice springers sold at $10.50. A shipment of "cleanup" stock averaging 54 pounds sold at $7. They would have brought $11 last week. Matured lambs from last year's crop of "fed" stock brought steady prices yesterday. shippers buying at $9.40 and packers at $9.35 late in the day after a deadlock that lasted several hours and ended when packers offered concessions.

Heavy water-fills partly offset the decline in cattle prices yesterday, packing houses in some instances calling the market almost steady because of the extra weight. Choice steers showed the least weakness, the biggest declines being in the common and medium grades and in cows and heifers. Butcher stock ruled weak to 25 cents lower. Several carloads of prime 1,061 to 1,385 pound steers topped the price list at $7.65, with 30 per cent of the day's sales of beef steers made at $7 and above.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—Raw sugar declined 1-32c today under continued liberal offerings of duty-frees and a rather limited demand. Sales reported aggregated about 46,000 bags of Philippines for late April and early May arrival at 2.80c. Further declines in the spot market led to renewed liquidation and hedge selling in futures, but part of the declines were recovered near the close, with the market finally 2 to 3 points net lower on active positions. Sales were 17,900 tons. Prices follow:

LARD OFF AS HOGS DROP AND MAY IS UNLOADED

A break of 15 to 20 cents in hog prices brought selling pressure on lard yesterday. Interests changed from May to distant deliveries. In all, a fair business was transacted, with the close at net losses of 7½ cents.

Cash lard was weaker and 7½ cents lower on regular and loose to $6.02½ and $6, respectively, while leaf declined 12½ cents to $6. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower.

Exports of lard from New York on Saturday were 962,584 pounds, and of bacon 222,600 pounds. Cash prices on bellies were unchanged at $8, while futures were unchanged to 2½ cents lower, the latter on July.

Learn Beauty Culture at DeLEE

Girls who learn beauty culture and hairdressing at DeLEE under the personal supervision of MADAME LOUISE assure themselves good paying, pleasant positions. Visit DeLEE today and let the Dean explain exactly why you can get a better position with more pay if you are trained the DeLEE way. If you can't come in, write for the FREE DeLEE book!

Individual Instruction

At DeLEE you are not herded into a classroom with a hundred other girls. You actually receive individual, personalized instruction. The DeLEE "university type" of schooling is available to YOU at very reasonable tuition fees. Terms can be arranged to suit you.

When you are graduated the FREE DeLEE employment service will help place you in a good paying position. Visit DeLEE today—it's America's most modern, most beautiful beauty school. Or write for the Free DeLEE Book, "Your Career in Beauty Culture."

CADILLAC V-12

A distinctive custom 1932 convertible coupe, which has every appearance and condition of new, it is warranted by Cadillac. The orig. deep finish is offset by 6 whitewall tires, 2 mtd. in fender wells with covers, as well as full chrome trim, including twin trumpet horns, radiator ornament and V-12. Enhanced by its smart beaut. Burbank collapsible top, which folds neatly it to a recess and practically out of sight. A written description of this car does not do its beauty justice. We suggest that you see and drive this most marvelous multi-cylinder Cadillac product. Priced low and you will appreciate its true value when you see it. Terms.
